Record Winter Chill In Marin, S. Sonoma

10-Degree Reading Recorded

By PAT ANGLE

Record cold gripped Marin and Southern Sonoma today, sheathing the two counties with an icy cover.

Below freezing temperatures caused a variety of problems, from freezing pipes to minor traffic accidents and even set off an automatic fire sprinkling system in the Lark Theater in Larkspur, causing minor damage to an office next door.

The federal weather service forecast more sub-freezing weather tonight and tomorrow night, with lows in the high 20s and highs in the low 40s.

Increasing clouds and showers were predicted for tomorrow and Monday, with snow in the hills and light north winds.

It was coldest in Point Reyes Station, where Mrs. John Wagner of Bambi Lane reported 10 degrees at 8 a.m. today.

Elsewhere, things weren't much better as Marinwood, Novato and Mount Tamalpais all registered lows of 15 degrees on what most observers said was the coldest night in memory.

Temperatures of between 16 and 19 degrees were reported in Petaluma, Woodacre, Terra Linda, Cotati and Nicasio.

San Rafael shivered with 23 degree temperatures early today and recorded 37 at noon today.

The plummeting temperatures, brought on by a prolonged cold front, froze water pipes throughout Marin, leaving hundreds of residents without water. The Marin Municipal Water District and many police departments reported scores of calls about frozen pipes from 3 a.m. onward.

As late as 11 a.m. today, there was still no water coming from the taps in parts of San Anselmo, Mill Valley, Tamalpais Valley, Novato, Kentfield, Bolinas and Santa Venetia.

J. Dietrich Stroeh, MMWD manager of engineering, said the freezing had not occured in major district lines, but rather in pipes between meters and the homes they served.

Stroeh suggested that persons who know where their water lines are located could aid the thawing by pouring heated water from toilet tanks on the ground over the pipes.

Stroeh also recommended that district customers leave faucets dripping in their homes tonight to avoid further freezing.

The California Highway Patrol said that ice-slick roads or ice-covered car windows caused minor auto crashes on Highway 101 near Alto, Panoramic Highway, Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of San Quentin, and in Mill Valley, Greenbrae and San Rafael. One minor injury was reported.

Upset Win For Demo Party Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jean Westwood won an upset victory today in her battle to retain the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee on a razor thin vote of 105 to 100.

The National Committee turned down a motion to oust the Utah woman who was the personal choice of Sen. George S. McGovern to head the party but even with that victory, there still was a possibility that the Democrats would wind up with a new national chairman before the day was out.

The outcome was a defeat for Robert Strauss of Texas, former party treasurer, who is the candidate of old line regulars to recapture control from the "new politics" group backing Mrs. Westwood.

But Mrs. Westwood announced in advance that no matter how the ouster motion fared, she still would resign if the national committee could agree on a compromise candidate who was not symbolic of the warring Democratic factions. She said that would require Strauss to drop out of the race as well as herself.

The ouster of Mrs. Westwood was central to Strauss' plans to win the chairmanship.

The Texas lawyer, former party treasurer, was regarded as the leading candidate in a field of four or five hopefuls. And a successful effort to fire Mrs. Westwood, McGovern's personal choice for national chairman, was seen as the last

CHICAGO (UPI) — Firemen using steel saws today freed the bodies of two more persons from the snarled wreckage of homes and of a United Air Lines Boeing 737 jetliner that crashed into a row of houses while approaching Midway Airport yesterday. (See picture, page 2.)

At least 45 persons were known dead as a result of the crash. Eighteen persons were injured.

The plane, en route from Washington to Omaha, Neb., with a stop in Chicago, carried 61 persons.

Witnesses said the plane came in low over a residential district in the approach path of Midway Airport, its tail scraping power lines, then slammed into a residential area about one and one-half miles southeast of the airport.

Some witnesses speculated that the pilot, once the crash was imminent, might have let the plane down in the cluster of bungalow-type houses to avoid slamming into a school about a block away. School was in session at the Hurley Elementary School, when the crash occurred about one block from the school.

Forty-three bodies were recovered from the wreckage yes-

Another Round Of Talks On Viet Peace

GIF-SUR-YVETTE, France (UPI) — U.S. presidential peace envoy Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators met again today in another attempt to bring the Vietnam War to an end.

The meeting here in a villa owned by the Communist party between Kissinger and Hanoi special counsellor Le Duc Tho got under way at 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EST).

Full teams from both sides drove 15 miles south of Paris to the villa that was bequeathed to the French Communist party by a long-dead Communist artist.

Xuan Thuy, Tho's aide, smiled and raised both arms in the air in salute to onlookers as the Vietnamese arrived shortly after the Americans. After hand-shakes all round, the two sides went into the house to start the 20th hour of bargaining.

Kissinger and Tho have gone through 19 hours of negotiations thus far this week.

At the close of yesterday's four and one-half-hour session, Kissinger escorted Tho to his car and gave him a long and cordial handshake. But the news blackout held fast and neither side would make any comment on the progress of the talks.

Kissinger went sight-seeing early today and strolled bareheaded in the bright sunshine from the U.S. embassy residence to a famed Paris art gallery, the Jeu de Paume.

In the meantime, French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said the world's press was too pessimistic about the prospect of an early peace in it Vietnam.

OFFICIALS WORRIED

Disaster Exercise Too Successful?

By JEFF GREER

Marin County disaster officials worried that "things went too well" in the county's first training exercise yesterday.

Alto Fire Chief Franklin J. Buscher warned, "Let's not everyone go home and say, 'Gee, that worked great'," and forget about the rough spots uncovered by the simulated earthquake that put officials through their paces.

Almost 60 county department heads and top aides, fire chiefs, utility executives and officials of special districts went through the routine they would follow in the first three hours after a major earthquake, if one should shatter Marin.

The imaginary quake, of magnitude 8.0 on the Richter scale, wreaked havoc that has been predicted in federal studies now underway of Bay Area seismic risks. Highway operpasses collapsed, a dam was damaged, a school collapsed and fires hypothetically killed some 60 persons, communications were hampered, and water and sewer mains were shattered, all according to a carefully worked out "scenario."

Following the exercise, the trainees voiced a wide variety of reactions in a self-critique session.

University of Southern California instructors who conducted the emergency test listened, offered advice, and made notes for the next training exercise, tentatively set for next spring. It probably will center on a different type of emergency, such as a simulated airliner crash in a residential area, according to Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator.

Yesterday's training session was the first all-out disaster rehearsal ever held in Marin. It was based on a new disaster plan prepared by Kirby, county department heads and local agencies. The plan has been under development since shortly after Californians were jolted into disaster awareness by the San Fernando Valley earthquake of 1970.

At that time, Marin County's disaster plan — unmodernized since 1960 — was labeled a disaster in itself — because of its obselenscence and inadequacy — by William R. Ward Jr., director of the Bay Area regional offices for the state Office of Emergency Services. Ward was an observer at yesterday's test in the Marin Civic Center.

"If you'd told me two years ago that this would be happening today, I wouldn't have believed you," Ward said after the critique. "I must say, I'm very pleased."

The participants were more critical of themselves. One fire official felt the test "wasn't realistic enough. . . I've worked in three major emergencies, and normally there's a sort of chaos" in the command center, he related.

Sidney Smith of the county schools office warned that not enough attention had been paid to traffic jams likely if a temblor damaged schools. "You know that every mother in the county — on foot or in a car —

Truman Is Reported As Improved

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The aged and ailing heart of Harry S Truman, sapped by a five-day fight against infection, gained slight strength today. The 88-year-old former president was reported improved but still critically ill.

As the tough little man fought back, signs that showed the same pep that Truman did when he led the nation were placed in shop windows.

"Give 'em hell, Harry. Let's get well," they read.

A high-protein liquid, fed Truman every four hours through a nasal tube, helped him gain strength, physicians said. His heart condition had been reported as "extremely precarious" the day before, a condition disputed by Truman's daughter.

"The former president's cardiac situation is slightly improved as indicated by the lowering of his pulse rate," said Truman's physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, at a medical briefing Saturday. "His pulse is 96 and regular. He is much calmer."

Truman's pulse rate had jumped to 124 last night and had been reported at 120 when he came out of an "ultracritical" period Wednesday, the day after he was hospitalized with a lung infection.

"He is improved today but remains critical," Graham said in a medical report read by hospital spokesman John Dreves. "His temperature is 100 degrees. Kidney function is adequate. He continues to tolerate his tube feeding well."

Graham said Truman showed response to nasal feeding of the wheat-based liquid.

A Flap Arises Over Span Board Election

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

San Francisco attorney Stephan C. Leonoudakis was elected president yesterday of the Golden Gate Bridge District, despite an ill-fated attempt by opponents to reconsider the vote at the board's next meeting.

Leonoudakis got nine votes and Daniel F. Del Carlo, a San Francisco labor leader, got eight. San Francisco Supervisor Robert E. Gonzales, who initialed his ballot for Del Carlo in the secret voting, switched his vote to Leonoudakis, however, in order to force reconsideration of the outcome at the Dec. 21 meeting. Only a voter on the majority side can move to reconsider an issue.

Robert's Rules of Order was consulted by district officials, but no reference to such a reconsideration could be found in the hurried check, so the board assumed that the motion by Gonzales passed automatically.

The Independent-Journal, however, later learned that Robert's Rules explicitly prohibits such a reconsideration, thus Leonoudakis was in fact elected. He will have to wait until the board's next meeting, however, to make it official.

According to Robert's Rules, "an election to an office becomes final immediately if the candidate is present and does not decline. . . After an election has become final as stated in this paragraph, it is too late to reconsider the vote on the election."

As for objections by some directors that election of the president should be by a majority of the 18-member board, the vote switch by Gonzales made this point moot. Only director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco was absent.

The unprecedented election hassle came after a special committee of five directors nominated Leonoudakis for president. His nomination was contrary to the board's strict tradition of elevating the previous year's first vice president to the presidency.

The first vice president had been Del Carlo, and it also was Gonzales who immediately nominated him as well for president. Gonzales told newsmen that the usual tradition should be followed "otherwise it will become a political football."

A member of the nominating committee told newsmen that Leonoudakis was recommended because Del Carlo already has served once as board president and because Leonoudakis has been passed over three times for the presidency in past years.

A group of directors never has forgiven Leonoudakis for his successful campaign five

Truman Is Reported As Improved

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The aged and ailing heart of Harry S Truman, sapped by a five-day fight against infection, gained slight strength today. The 88-year-old former president was reported improved but still critically ill.

As the tough little man fought back, signs that showed the same pep that Truman did when he led the nation were placed in shop windows.

Graham said Truman showed response to nasal feeding of the wheat-based liquid.

SEARCH AMONG THE WRECKAGE

The severed nose section of a United Air Lines jet, which crashed into a residential area near Midway Airport in Chicago yesterday afternoon, lies in the wreckage of one of the demolished homes as the grim search for bodies continues. B52s Hit Targets In The DMZ

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers staged heavy raids against targets in the so-called Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today in an attempt to halt a suspected buildup of North Vietnamese troops and supplies, military sources said. In the ground war, fighting increased to its fiercest pitch in a month.

In response to the bombing, Radio Hanoi broadcast identical statements by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong saying U.S. air raids had "dimmed the prospects for peace in Vietnam."

The U.S. command said the giant Stratoforts flew about 100 sorties in North and South Vietnam. Three quarters of them were concentrated along Vietnam's wasp waist within an 80-mile band divided by the 17th parallel buffer zone separating the north and south.

The U.S. Command said 17 waves of B52s each dumped at least 90 tons of explosives in and along the edges of the DMZ. While the air war over the DMZ was stepped up, the South Vietnamese command reported 83 Communist-initiated attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the same number as the previous day, and the highest since Nov. 12 when 87 were recorded.

UPI correspondent Kenneth F. Englade reported that 1,208 artillery and mortar shells hit airborne and marine positions during daylight hours today in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

More than 1,000 shells a day have been plowing into South Vietnamese positions nearly every day since cease-fire negotiations made a breakthrough six weeks ago.

Since then, both sides have been trying to seize control of as much land and as many people as possible in the event of a stand'still cease-fire.

The increased raids by the Guam and Thailand-based Strategic Air Command planes began Wednesday, after U.S. officers spotted large concentrations of troops and supplies in the buffer strip area.

The officers thought that the supplies were destined for South Vietnam and ordered the heavy raids, military sources said.

In all, 57 waves of B52s and scores of strikes by smaller, conventional jet fighter-bombers have hit the DMZ area since the new North Vietnamese buildup was spotted, spokesmen said.

Playboy Shelled Out On Prop. 18

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State records show Playboy Magazine, the trailblazer of the nude centerfold, kicked in $125,000 to the successful campaign to defeat the antiobscenity initiative on the November ballot.

Playboy's contribution to the effort against Prop. 18 was included in hundreds of campaign spending reports on file yesterday with Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Final post-election campaign reports on ballot measures indicated that the biggest spender was the California State Employes Association at $1.7 million for its salary initiative.

The deadline for submitting financial statements on the propositions was Thursday, but many were still being processed by Brown's office or believed en route in the mail.

The anti-obscenity initiative, sponsored by Republican Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, proposed enacting strict new controls to crackdown on what supporters said was an avalanche of obscenity in California.

Opponents charged that if enacted the controversial measure would establish "censorship" and would ban great works of art, movies and magazines such as Playboy.

The Committee for Yes on Prop. 18 reported spending $162,000 in its campaign. The biggest single contributor was P. J. Frawley Jr., the Los Angeles razor mogul.

The Citizens Against Prop. 18, bankrolled by movie theaters, film makers and publishers, reported spending $746,852 on its campaign. Playboy Magazine and Playboy enterprises funneled in $125,000.

The state employed-sponsored initiative proposed eliminating a governor's power to blue pencil veto pay raises from the state budget. The CSEA members voted themselves a dues assessment to finance the campaign. The measure was defeated.

Opponents of the state employe salary initiative, organized under the banner of the "Committee to Stop the Blank Check Initiative," reported spending $20,000 and raising $30,941.

Several Reagan administration officials each contributed $25 or slightly more to the campaign, including Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian, Deputy Finance Director Kenneth Hall as well as governor's office staff assistants William Evans, Don Livingston and James Jenkins.

The "Fair Labor Practices Committee," proponents of a measure to enact a California farm labor relations initiative, reported spending $721,355 and collecting $937,408.

Opponents led by Cesar Chavez and the California Federation of Labor, reported spending in excess of $80,000. Chavez' United Farm Workers Union said it spent $37,781 alone.

Sponsors of the defeated initiative to legalize the personal use of marijuana said they spent $164,882 and collected $182,301 in contributions. They said they plan to try again.

Supporters of Prop. 14, the Watson property tax limitation initiative, spent $1.1 million in their unsuccessful campaign while opponents calling themselves "Citizens Against Higher Taxes" reported spending $739,200.

A Twin Attack

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI condemned abortion anew today as a crime against God and humanity and he attacked the women's liberation movement for what he said are its "certain distortions" on the subject.

The Pope said abortion is "repugnant not only to Catholic morality but even to universal human ethics."

The pontiff used a meeting with a group of Italian Catholic jurists to get across his point of view in a particularly hard-hitting speech.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A meeting will be held in Washington, D.C., Dec. 19 on the possible merger of the Teamsters Union and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU, said he and his top aides would meet with Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons.

The ILWU will "get a final 'yes' or 'no' on the question of merger," Bridges said in a letter to ILWU locals and their leaders.

Drugs In Flames

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Authorities burned more than 27 metric tons of marijuana, 13 pounds of heroin and nearly 35 pounds of cocaine Friday.

Assistant attorney general David Franco Rodriguez, the top man in Mexico's antidrug force, presided over the bonfire.

The drugs were confiscated during recent months by police agencies.

POW Bracelet Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill taxing the sale of Vietnam prisoner-of-war bracelets the same as girl scout cookies has been signed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

The measure signed yesterday is aimed at preventing the 5 per cent sale tax from being imposed on the total price of the bracelets.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, introduced the bill after the state Board of Equalization questioned the position of POW groups that sales of the bracelets were exempt from the tax.

SEARCH AMONG THE WRECKAGE

The severed nose section of a United Air Lines jet, which crashed into a residential area near Midway Airport in Chicago yesterday afternoon, lies in the wreckage of one of the demolished homes as the grim search for bodies continues. At least 43 bodies have been recovered. The Boeing 737 jet was carrying 61 persons. See story, page 1. (UPI Telephoto)

B52s Hit Targets In The DMZ

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers staged heavy raids against targets in the so-called Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today in an attempt to halt a suspected buildup of North Vietnamese troops and supplies, military sources said. In the ground war, fighting increased to its fiercest pitch in a month.

In response to the bombing, Radio Hanoi broadcast identical statements by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong saying U.S. air raids had "dimmed the prospects for peace in Vietnam."

The U.S. command said the giant Stratoforts flew about 100 sorties in North and South Vietnam. Three quarters of them were concentrated along Vietnam's wasp waist within an 80-mile band divided by the 17th parallel buffer zone separating the north and south.

The U.S. Command said 17 waves of B52s each dumped at least 90 tons of explosives in and along the edges of the DMZ. While the air war over the DMZ was stepped up, the South Vietnamese command reported 83 Communist-initiated attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the same number as the previous day, and the highest since Nov. 12 when 87 were recorded.

UPI correspondent Kenneth F. Englade reported that 1,208 artillery and mortar shells hit airborne and marine positions during daylight hours today in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

More than 1,000 shells a day have been plowing into South Vietnamese positions nearly every day since cease-fire negotiations made a breakthrough six weeks ago.

Since then, both sides have been trying to seize control of as much land and as many people as possible in the event of a stand still cease-fire.

The increased raids by the Guam and Thailand-based Strategic Air Command planes began Wednesday, after U.S. officers spotted large concentrations of troops and supplies in the buffer strip area.

The officers thought that the supplies were destined for South Vietnam and ordered the heavy raids, military sources said.

In all, 57 waves of B52s and scores of strikes by smaller, conventional jet fighter-bombers have hit the DMZ area since the new North Vietnamese buildup was spotted, spokesmen said.

Playboy Shelled Out On Prop. 18

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State records show Playboy Magazine, the trailblazer of the nude centerfold, kicked in $125,000 to the successful campaign to defeat the antiobscenity initiative on the November ballot.

Playboy's contribution to the effort against Prop. 18 was included in hundreds of campaign spending reports on file yesterday with Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Final post-election campaign reports on ballot measures indicated that the biggest spender was the California State Employes Association at $1.7 million for its salary initiative.

The deadline for submitting financial statements on the propositions was Thursday, but many were still being processed by Brown's office or believed en route in the mail.

The anti-obscenity initiative, sponsored by Republican Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, proposed enacting strict new controls to crackdown on what supporters said was an avalanche of obscenity in California.

White House Staffers To No. 2 Jobs

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon today selected two members of his White House staff, John C. Whitaker and Ekil (Bud) Kroth Jr., to take over the No. 2 jobs in the Interior and Transportation departments.

Both Whitaker and Kroth served on the staff of the Domestic Council headed by John Erlichman. Whitaker, who has a doctor's degree in geology, also was secretary to the Cabinet.

Whitaker, 45, succeeds William T. Pecora, who died last July, as undersecretary of interior. Kroth, 33, replaces James M. Baggs as undersecretary of transportation. Baggs will return to private life.

White House Press Secretary Ronald l. Ziegler, who announced the appointments, noted that both men were young and predicted "you will see an infusion of young people — young men and young women —moving into positions of responsibility."

Ziegler said no decision has been made whether Whitaker and Kroth will be replaced at the White House because "the structure of the Domestic Council staff ... has not been set yet" for Nixon's second term.

Ziegler also said Carl Kamp Jr., will become acting chairman of the Federal Home Bank Board until a permanent chairman is designated to succeed Preston Martin, who resigned earlier this month. Kamp had been a member of the board since May 1969.

Ziegler said Nixon continued to work at his Camp David office today, studying cables from his national security affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, and drafting additional instructions for Kissinger at the Paris peace talks.

Nixon's latest appointments followed a complete overhaul of the Justice Department, although Richard G. Kleindienst will remain as attorney general.

Crash Kills Three

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force C130 cargo plane with eight persons aboard crashed today while landing at the Agana Naval Air Station. A military spokesman said three persons were killed.

Union Leader Deaths Termed 'Professional'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Nevada officials are helping Sacramento officers investigate the gunshot deaths of two union leaders which are now being called "a professional killing."

The chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, Phil Hannifin, said yesterday, "We are sharing and comparing information."

A spokesman for the Sacramento County sheriff's office, William Miller, said "quite a few people" in Nevada would be interviewed as a matter of routine. He said "we're contacting everyone everyplace" who has associated with the victims.

Killed were Roger Ekar, 34, international representative of the Stationary Engineers Union, and John Duncan, 31, business agent of Local 39. They were found shot to death in the local's headquarters here Wednesday morning.

Both had been reported active in trying to organize workers in Reno, Las Vegas and the north shore of Lake Tahoe.

Tom Kenny, secretary of the Sacramento Central Labor Council, said, "It's my personal opinion and the general opinion of us in the local labor movement that this was a result of their attempts to organize labor in Nevada. It's traditionally a tough nut for us to crack over there."

Miller said the men "were obviously set up" for the shooting. "I was a professional killing, the kind we don't see around here but very rarely," he said.

Investigators said the two had an appointment in the office Tuesday evening with someone who apparently was a "fictitious person." The meeting was arranged at the request of a telephone caller who said he wished to discuss the representation of employes of a Sacramento area hospital.

But the hospital told investigators no one by that name had ever worked there.

The Nevada efforts were both successful and unsuccessful. A contract was signed with Howard Hughes' Harold Club in Reno, where the local's steward, Ken Sharpnack, said he knew of no problems. He said Duncan had visited him only two days before being found dead.

$30,000 Suit Filed Over Column Picture

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Tiburon male model and restaurateur has filed a $30,000 lawsuit against the Pacific Sun Publishing Co. for printing his photograph with a sexual advice column.

Francis H. B. Ingall filed suit in Sonoma County Superior Court through his attorney, James Murray of Tiburon.

Ingall, who works as a male model and actor and also operates Butler's Pantry in Tiburon, asked $5,000 for damages to his career; $10,000 in damages for "severe emotional shock and mental anguish" and $15,000 in punitive damages.

The suit claims the weekly Pacific Sun of July 27 carried Ingall's picture in connection with a sexual advice column known as "Dr. Diddle."

The suit claimed the article "subjected him to scorn, ridicule, derision, humiliation and embarrassment, and has cast him in a false and defamatory light in the eyes of the public at large and has greatly injured and defamed his character, reputation and professional standing."

Ingall described himself as an actor and theatrical performer "primarily engaged in posing for commercial advertising for hire and his photographic likeness has appeared in many publications and television commercials."

Named in the suit were Stephen McNamara, editor and publisher; Donald Stanley, managing editor, and Roberta Branning, advertising manager.

The complaint was filed in Sonoma County because Ingall said he wished to avoid further publicity in Marin County.

San Mateo Escapee Captured

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The seventh of nine prisoners who escaped March 22 from the San Mateo County Jail has been arrested in Florida.

A spokesman for Sheriff Earl Whitmore said Friday the John S. Szymkiewicz, 28, was in the Dade County Jail at Miami, Fla., on robbery and assault charges following a holdup of a pharmacy at Hialeah, Fla.

Szymkiewicz was arrested Nov. 30 under the name of John A. Morgan. His true identify was discovered Friday through a fingerprint check.

Still at large are Joseph B. Mora and William Marchilette. The escapers had keys to their cells and used a hacksaw to cut out a door lock.

Whitmore vowed not to cut his hair until all nine of the prisoners had been captured. However, when his locks began hovering near his shoulders several months later, he allowed them to be trimmed at a law enforcement dinner in Hillsborough.

Search Is Abandoned For Bear

READDING, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. Customs agents have abandoned the search for the innocent victim of a $625,000 hashish smuggling plot—a shaggy, black, Himalayan bear missing in the snow covered northern California mountains.

Two Himalayan bears were shipped to the United States from Nepal in cages laden with hashish concealed in false panels, authorities said.

One bear was shot by a hunter last Sunday after its cage was found. The cage that contained the second bear was found by agents Wednesday with an estimated 60 pounds of hashish stashed inside.

Authorities estimated the value of the illicit drugs at $625,000. Four men have been arrested and others are being sought in the smuggling case which agents began pursuing when the two cages arrived at San Francisco International Airport last month.

A wildlife specialist at the University of California at Davis said Himalayan bears are nocturnal and do not hibernate. He said the animals are "less aggressive and more vegetarian" than the American black bear.

Sonoma County Step Closer To Closing Ranch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sonoma County authorities were a step closer today in their attempt to close a 315-acre commune were scores of young persons live in alleged unsanitary conditions.

The California Court of Appeal Friday unheld a 1969 Sonoma County effort to end communal life at the Wheeler Ranch near Occidental.

The Sonoma County Superior Court issued an order to tear down dilapidated ranch buildings, saying the conditions on the ranch "endangered public health and safety."

Ranchowner William Wheeler and about 75 followers currently live on the ranch.

Register Omits Nixon In-Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — Society checked through the newly published 1973 Social Register today and found the mysterious omission of a White House inlaw.

Missing from page 181 of the 87th New York edition of Society's who's who was Howard Ellis Cox Jr. of Westwood, Mass., brother-in-law of Tricia Nixon Cox, and his wife, the former Julia Dempsey of Cleveland. Still listed were Cox's parents, his brother Edward with his wife Tricia, and sister Mary Ann.

The Register never explains or comments on omissions.

Apollo 17 Crew Sleeps Through Voice Call, Kansas Fight Song

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 17's astronauts slept through voice calls, the Kansas fight song and even a wailing warning horn before finally being awakened more than an hour late today on the last leg of their wrapup flight to the moon.

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt stirred at last at 10:14 a.m. EST and mission commander Cernan said, "We're asleep."

"That's the understatement of the year," ground communicator Gordon Fullerton replied.

"That was some party last night," Cernan quipped. "It was a humdinger."

While the astronauts were sleeping, Apollo 17 started accelerating toward the moon. Their landing craft was reported in great shape for Monday's descent into a mountain valley believed blanketed with ashes from an ancient volcano.

The astronauts were 67,000 miles from the moon when they awakened. They will brake into lunar orbit tomorrow evening.

Even though the pilots started the day behind schedule, they made up time quickly. Cernan and Schmitt returned to their landing craft about 12:30 p.m. for a second systems check.

"It's just like a refrigerator," Schmitt said from the lander cabin.

Controllers told the astronauts earlier that time was not critical today and there was no need to hurry.

"Our biggest problem this morning is keeping Ron from going back to sleep," Cernan said.

Evans was supposed to have had earphones on while he slept during the night and a Mission Control spokesman said it appeared that either he had the volume turned down or the earphone had slipped off.

The first wakeup call was sent at 9:09 a.m. when Mission Control broadcast the opening strains of the University of Kansas' Jayhawks football fight song. It was repeated twice, along with voice calls and finally the warning horn. Despite all that, the pilots slept until a repeat of the song finally woke up the crew.

Lodge Plan For Club Is Protested

Black Point Improvement Club members last night voted 14-7 to oppose a permit for the Moose Lodge to use the Atherton Swim Club building for the fraternal organization's wining and dining.

The issue split Black Point residents, with L. Charles Smith of 6 June Lane and his neighbors objecting to the club plans, and Stanley Weiss of 330 School Road, a member of the Moose, stoutly defending the use permit.

The lodge seeks to move from its longtime quarters in the former Hilltop restaurant in Novato to the clubhouse east of Atherton Avenue. A use permit granted by the county zoning administrator has been held up by appeal from neighbors, and is due a planning commission hearing Dec. 18.

The Black Point Improvement Club also:

FEDERATION — Nominated Albert Rivisplata for president of the Noarth Marin Federation of homeowner associations.

NOVATO — After a member urged "leave it to the Novatans," declined to nominate any Black Point resident to an advisory committee to revise the downtown Novato plan, as requested by city officials.

GENERAL PLAN — Voted unanimously to tell Novato that Black Point residents want to draft their own general plan, rather than be included in the general plan now being prepared by Novato officials.

DONATION — Added $64 to the $100 the club donated last month to the committee working on a Black Point plan.

Plea Made In Attack Case

A 27-year-old Marin City man, charged with participating in the kidnap and gang rape of a Sausalito woman, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

A preliminary hearing for David Barrow was set for Dec. 19.

Barrow was arrested Tuesday by sheriff's deputies in Marin City after the 19-year-old woman was given a ride from Sausalito to Marin City, then raped at least 14 times by six or more men during three early morning hours.

She was repeatedly beaten and threatened when she resisted, according to Sheriff's Lt. Richard Gaddini.

He said four other men are being sought.

White House Staffers To No. 2 Jobs

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon today selected two members of his White House staff, John C. Whitaker and Ekil (Bud) Kroth Jr., to take over the No. 2 jobs in the Interior and Transportation departments.

Both Whitaker and Kroth served on the staff of the Domestic Council headed by John Erlichman. Whitaker, who has a doctor's degree in geology, also was secretary to the Cabinet.

Whitaker, 45, succeeds William T. Pecora, who died last July, as undersecretary of interior. Kroth, 33, replaces James M. Baggs as undersecretary of transportation. Baggs will return to private life.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who announced the appointments, noted that both men were young and predicted "you will see an infusion of young people — young men and young women —moving into positions of responsibility."

Ziegler said no decision has been made whether Whitaker and Kroth will be replaced at the White House because "the structure of the Domestic Council staff ... has not been set yet" for Nixon's second term.

Ziegler also said Carl Kamp Jr., will become acting chairman of the Federal Home Bank Board until a permanent chairman is designated to succeed Preston Martin, who resigned earlier this month. Kamp had been a member of the board since May 1969.

Ziegler said Nixon continued to work at his Camp David office today, studying cables from his national security affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, and drafting additional instructions for Kissinger at the Paris peace talks.

Nixon's latest appointments followed a complete overhaul of the Justice Department, although Richard G. Kleindienst will remain as attorney general.

Union Leader Deaths Termed 'Professional'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Nevada officials are helping Sacramento officers investigate the gunshot deaths of two union leaders which are now being called "a professional killing."

The chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, Phil Hannifin, said yesterday, "We are sharing and comparing information."

A spokesman for the Sacramento County sheriff's office, William Miller, said "quite a few people" in Nevada would be interviewed as a matter of routine. He said "we're contacting everyone everyplace" who has associated with the victims.

Killed were Roger Ekar, 34, international representative of the Stationary Engineers Union, and John Duncan, 31, business agent of Local 39. They were found shot to death in the local's headquarters here Wednesday morning.

Both had been reported active in trying to organize workers in Reno, Las Vegas and the north shore of Lake Tahoe.

Tom Kenny, secretary of the Sacramento Central Labor Council, said, "It's my personal opinion and the general opinion of us in the local labor movement that this was a result of their attempts to organize labor in Nevada. It's traditionally a tough nut for us to crack over there."

Miller said the men "were obviously set up" for the shooting. "I was a professional killing, the kind we don't see around here but very rarely," he said.

Investigators said the two had an appointment in the office Tuesday evening with someone who apparently was a "fictitious person." The meeting was arranged at the request of a telephone caller who said he wished to discuss the representation of employes of a Sacramento area hospital.

But the hospital told investigators no one by that name had ever worked there.

The Nevada efforts were both successful and unsuccessful. A contract was signed with Howard Hughes' Harold Club in Reno, where the local's steward, Ken Sharpnack, said he knew of no problems. He said Duncan had visited him only two days before being found dead.

$30,000 Suit Filed Over Column Picture

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Tiburon male model and restaurateur has filed a $30,000 lawsuit against the Pacific Sun Publishing Co. for printing his photograph with a sexual advice column.

Francis H. B. Ingall filed suit in Sonoma County Superior Court through his attorney, James Murray of Tiburon.

Ingall, who works as a male model and actor and also operates Butler's Pantry in Tiburon, asked $5,000 for damages to his career; $10,000 in damages for "severe emotional shock and mental anguish" and $15,000 in punitive damages.

The suit claims the weekly Pacific Sun of July 27 carried Ingall's picture in connection with a sexual advice column known as "Dr. Diddle."

The suit claimed the article "subjected him to scorn, ridicule, derision, humiliation and embarrassment, and has cast him in a false and defamatory light in the eyes of the public at large and has greatly injured and defamed his character, reputation and professional standing."

Ingall described himself as an actor and theatrical performer "primarily engaged in posing for commercial advertising for hire and his photographic likeness has appeared in many publications and television commercials."

Named in the suit were Stephen McNamara, editor and publisher; Donald Stanley, managing editor, and Roberta Branning, advertising manager.

The complaint was filed in Sonoma County because Ingall said he wished to avoid further publicity in Marin County.

San Mateo Escapee Captured

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The seventh of nine prisoners who escaped March 22 from the San Mateo County Jail has been arrested in Florida.

A spokesman for Sheriff Earl Whitmore said Friday the John S. Szymkiewicz, 28, was in the Dade County Jail at Miami, Fla., on robbery and assault charges following a holdup of a pharmacy at Hialeah, Fla.

Szymkiewicz was arrested Nov. 30 under the name of John A. Morgan. His true identify was discovered Friday through a fingerprint check.

Still at large are Joseph B. Mora and William Marchilette. The escapers had keys to their cells and used a hacksaw to cut out a door lock.

Whitmore vowed not to cut his hair until all nine of the prisoners had been captured. However, when his locks began hovering near his shoulders several months later, he allowed them to be trimmed at a law enforcement dinner in Hillsborough.

Search Is Abandoned For Bear

READDING, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. Customs agents have abandoned the search for the innocent victim of a $625,000 hashish smuggling plot—a shaggy, black, Himalayan bear missing in the snow covered northern California mountains.

Two Himalayan bears were shipped to the United States from Nepal in cages laden with hashish concealed in false panels, authorities said.

One bear was shot by a hunter last Sunday after its cage was found. The cage that contained the second bear was found by agents Wednesday with an estimated 60 pounds of hashish stashed inside.

Authorities estimated the value of the illicit drugs at $625,000. Four men have been arrested and others are being sought in the smuggling case which agents began pursuing when the two cages arrived at San Francisco International Airport last month.

A wildlife specialist at the University of California at Davis said Himalayan bears are nocturnal and do not hibernate. He said the animals are "less aggressive and more vegetarian" than the American black bear.

Sonoma County Step Closer To Closing Ranch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sonoma County authorities were a step closer today in their attempt to close a 315-acre commune were scores of young persons live in alleged unsanitary conditions.

The California Court of Appeal Friday unheld a 1969 Sonoma County effort to end communal life at the Wheeler Ranch near Occidental.

The Sonoma County Superior Court issued an order to tear down dilapidated ranch buildings, saying the conditions on the ranch "endangered public health and safety."

Ranchowner William Wheeler and about 75 followers currently live on the ranch.

Register Omits Nixon In-Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — Society checked through the newly published 1973 Social Register today and found the mysterious omission of a White House in-law.

Missing from page 181 of the 87th New York edition of Society's who's who was Howard Ellis Cox Jr. of Westwood, Mass., brother-in-law of Tricia Nixon Cox, and his wife, the former Julia Dempsey of Cleveland. Still listed were Cox's parents, his brother Edward with his wife Tricia, and sister Mary Ann.

The Register never explains or comments on omissions.

Apollo 17 Crew Sleeps Through Voice Call, Kansas Fight Song

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 17's astronauts slept through voice calls, the Kansas fight song and even a wailing warning horn before finally being awakened more than an hour late today on the last leg of their wrapup flight to the moon.

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt stirred at last at 10:14 a.m. EST and mission commander Cernan said, "We're asleep."

"That's the understatement of the year," ground communicator Gordon Fullerton replied.

"That was some party last night," Cernan quipped. "It was a humdinger."

While the astronauts were sleeping, Apollo 17 started accelerating toward the moon. Their landing craft was reported in great shape for Monday's descent into a mountain valley believed blanketed with ashes from an ancient volcano.

The astronauts were 67,000 miles from the moon when they awakened. They will brake into lunar orbit tomorrow evening.

Even though the pilots started the day behind schedule, they made up time quickly. Cernan and Schmitt returned to their landing craft about 12:30 p.m. for a second systems check.

"It's just like a refrigerator," Schmitt said from the lander cabin.

Controllers told the astronauts earlier that time was not critical today and there was no need to hurry.

"Our biggest problem this morning is keeping Ron from going back to sleep," Cernan said.

Evans was supposed to have had earphones on while he slept during the night and a Mission Control spokesman said it appeared that either he had the volume turned down or the earphone had slipped off.

The first wakeup call was sent at 9:09 a.m. when Mission Control broadcast the opening strains of the University of Kansas' Jayhawks football fight song. It was repeated twice, along with voice calls and finally the warning horn. Despite all that, the pilots slept until a repeat of the song finally woke up the crew.

Lodge Plan For Club Is Protested

Black Point Improvement Club members last night voted 14-7 to oppose a permit for the Moose Lodge to use the Atherton Swim Club building for the fraternal organization's wining and dining.

The issue split Black Point residents, with L. Charles Smith of 6 June Lane and his neighbors objecting to the club plans, and Stanley Weiss of 330 School Road, a member of the Moose, stoutly defending the use permit.

The lodge seeks to move from its longtime quarters in the former Hilltop restaurant in Novato to the clubhouse east of Atherton Avenue. A use permit granted by the county zoning administrator has been held up by appeal from neighbors, and is due a planning commission hearing Dec. 18.

The Black Point Improvement Club also:

FEDERATION — Nominated Albert Rivisplata for president of the Noarth Marin Federation of homeowner associations.

NOVATO — After a member urged "leave it to the Novatans," declined to nominate any Black Point resident to an advisory committee to revise the downtown Novato plan, as requested by city officials.

GENERAL PLAN — Voted unanimously to tell Novato that Black Point residents want to draft their own general plan, rather than be included in the general plan now being prepared by Novato officials.

DONATION — Added $64 to the $100 the club donated last month to the committee working on a Black Point plan.

Plea Made In Attack Case

A 27-year-old Marin City man, charged with participating in the kidnap and gang rape of a Sausalito woman, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

A preliminary hearing for David Barrow was set for Dec. 19.

Barrow was arrested Tuesday by sheriff's deputies in Marin City after the 19-year-old woman was given a ride from Sausalito to Marin City, then raped at least 14 times by six or more men during three early morning hours.

She was repeatedly beaten and threatened when she resisted, according to Sheriff's Lt. Richard Gaddini.

He said four other men are being sought.

FOR HER 100TH birthday tomorrow, Mrs. Bertha L. Hatch of Mill Valley received a congratulatory letter from President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, triggering her memories of presidents and White House receptions from James A. Garfield to Theodore Roosevelt.

100TH BIRTHDAY

Memories Span A Continent Presidents, The White House

By BETTY FROST

The memories of Mrs. Bertha Loucks Hatch of Mill Valley span an entire century and a continent.

Bertha Loucks was born Dec. 10, 1872 in Savona, N.Y. and will be 100 years old tomorrow. Her birthday was to be celebrated at a reception today at the Mill Valley Community Church.

Her daughter, Mrs. James Bertenshaw of Mill Valley, with whom she lives, and her son, Osborn F. Hatch of Santa Monica, are co-hosting the party for more than 100 relatives and friends.

A 10-year Mill Valley resident, the alert Mrs. Hatch is receiving scores of letters and cards of congratulation. One, a message on White House stationery expressing good wishes from President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon and signed by the President, triggered a flow of memories about the other presidents Mrs. Hatch has met.

The Loucks family moved to Aurora, Ill., from Savona when Bertha was 3 years old. When she was 8, a carriage parade passed along the main street of the town, and as the child stood outside the gate in front of her house a gentleman stood up in the front carriage and said, "Hello, little girl." It was James A. Garfield, then campaigning for the presidency. He was elected in 1881.

Three years later, her father, who was a Civil War veteran, was appointed to a government position in the pension office. The family moved to Washington, D.C., and many of Bertha's memories revolve around the White House.

She and her brother and a sister attended an Easter Monday egg rolling on the White House lawn. She recalls that the ground was littered with broken colored eggshells and bits of egg, and "I couldn't look at a boiled egg for two weeks."

She also attended presidential receptions for Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Mrs. Cleveland made a lasting impression.

"She was the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life," Mrs. Hatch said. "She was wearing a white brocade silk dress with roses of all shades of pink appliqued on it."

Frances Folsom was 22 when she and Cleveland, then 49, were married in 1886.

At the age of 18, Mrs. Hatch accompanied her aunt to the White House where they had been invited to have tea with Mrs. McKinley. The President's wife, who was an invalid confined to a wheelchair, received the ladies in an uptairs sitting room overlooking the south lawn. Afterward they were given a tour of the White House by an usher.

Bertha was married to Frederick W. Hatch in 1898 in Washington, D.C. Her husband was a graduate of Colgate University and the Baptist Theological Seminary in Rochester, N. Y.

"We became engaged when he was a sophomore at Colgate. We waited five years to marry until my husband had finished his education," Mrs. Hatch said.

Her husband's first pastorate was in a small town on the Hudson in New York, and from there they went to Au Clair, Wis., Kalamazoo, Mich., and Lansing before they moved to California.

Reverend Hatch had a church in Bakersfield for five years, then went to Ocean Park Church near Santa Monica. In 1924 he founded the Trinity Baptist Church in Santa Monica and saw it grow to a membership of 500. He remained there until he retired. He died at age 80 in 1952. The Hatches celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1948.

Each year in March, Mrs. Hatch personally presents the Frederick Hatch award given by church members to the year's outstanding Santa Monica citizen, and she is looking forward to making the presentation next March.

Of her full century of living Bertha Hatch said, "I have had a wonderful life. I had a good home when I was a child, and I had the most wonderful husband."

If there is any hint for longevity she suggests that it might be "that I never drank coffee." Her daughter added, "In the family we say that Mother never drinks anything but cold water."

Mrs. Hatch is grateful for her good health. "I've never had a broken bone and I've had only one cold in 20 years."

Her one regret is that her eyesight is failing.

"I would love to go traveling if I could see," the sprightly lady said, "but I just can't see the colors anymore."

Beside her daughter and son, Mrs. Hatch has five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, all of whom will be in Mill Valley for the family celebration.

Dumas Keeps Skiwear Practical

His Newest Is Nonskid Snow Suit

By ELEANOR GUREWITSCH

CHATEL ST. DENIS, Switzerland — A ski-clothing manufacturer with headquarters here in the heart of ski country pays particular attention to practical details of the sport.

Thiy season, for example, while other skiwear makers are still giving primary attention to the cut, style, and line of their garments, Charles Dumas is emphasizing something quite different. He is promoting antigliss rutschfest, or antiskid ski clothes.

The ultrasmooth and shiny fabrics which have been used extensively for ski clothes, look great, and the garments feel great so long as the skier is standing up. But when he spills, the smooth, shiny fabrics have one distinct drawback: They slide so well they could double as toboggans.

For practical reasons as well as pretty ones, Charles Dumas ski outfits are dominating the scene here this season. In addition to the antiskid feature, they have a number of other thoughtful details.

Designed to keep out snow and wind, the suits are lined with a slippery, shiny, windproof and waterproof fabric — inside where it will do the most good and won't toboggan slide anyone down the slope.

To keep snow out at the waist there are other tricks. The suits with very short jackets come atop high-cut overall pants; some of the suits feature the short, lumber-jacket look but are cut in a single piece for the same no-snow-at-the-waist effect.

These outfits are designed for the active skier but with their wide, comfortable pants they are versatile enough to wear for any cold-weather sport.

Cross-country skiing is gaining in popularity here, and the ski-clothes designers are jumping on the bandwagon. This particular kind of skiing appears to call for knickers.

This season Bogner, always a pace-setter, offers jackets and knickers in matching fabrics — plain, checked, or prints —for the girls who have decided to skip the ski-lift lines and the ski-slope crowds for the quiet, snowy places accessible only to the cross-country skiers.

In New York holiday-resort clothes echo the retreating autumn and herald the approaching spring.

One of the most attractive collections on the market this season is Victor Joris's. Lush peach or aqua silk linen suits in safari styles combine extravagance of color and fabric with economy of design.

His evening separates are in a similar vein, with tailored, sporty styles glamorized for dressy occasions. Joris describes the mood this year as "more relaxed and less constricted," in keeping with an informal vacation atmosphere.

Other highlights of Joris's line are halter dresses and palazzo pants, which are the rage everywhere this year. Their full cut offers the advantage of camouflage to the stouter woman.

Although the prints are sometimes too flamboyant, basically they represent a pleasant compromise between a skirt and trousers.

Joris also is renowned for his caftans. "They originated in the Arabian countries," he explained, "because they allow the air to circulate during the heat of the day and provide warmth during the chilly evenings."

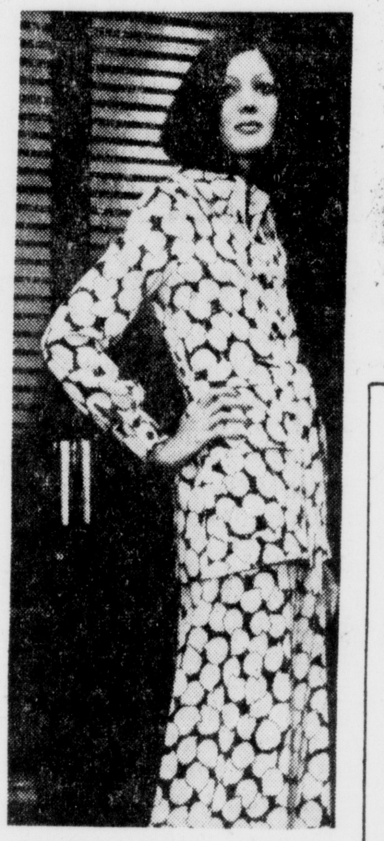
HOLIDAY SPORTSWEAR — Skidproof fabric, to keep the tumbling skier from sliding down the slope is the latest feature of ski clothing maker Charles Dumas of Chatel St. Denis, Switzerland, where Dumas ski fashions like the one at left are dominating the scene this season. In France, the latest fashion for the skier is an overall outfit, right, designed by Pindisports.



CONTRASTING RESORT wear is this palazzo pantsuit in a Japanese print. It was designed by Victor Joris of New York for the winter and spring resort season.

Bertha was married to Frederick W. Hatch in 1898 in Washington, D.C. Her husband was a graduate of Colgate University and the Baptist Theological Seminary in Rochester, N. Y.

"We became engaged when he was a sophomore at Colgate. We waited five years to marry until my husband had finished his education," Mrs. Hatch said.

Her husband's first pastorate was in a small town on the Hudson in New York, and from there they went to Au Clair, Wis., Kalamazoo, Mich., and Lansing before they moved to California.

Reverend Hatch had a church in Bakersfield for five years, then went to Ocean Park Church near Santa Monica. In 1924 he founded the Trinity Baptist Church in Santa Monica and saw it grow to a membership of 500. He remained there until he retired. He died at age 80 in 1952. The Hatches celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1948.

Each year in March, Mrs. Hatch personally presents the Frederick Hatch award given by church members to the year's outstanding Santa Monica citizen, and she is looking forward to making the presentation next March.

Of her full century of living Bertha Hatch said, "I have had a wonderful life. I had a good home when I was a child, and I had the most wonderful husband."

If there is any hint for longevity she suggests that it might be "that I never drank coffee." Her daughter added, "In the family we say that Mother never drinks anything but cold water."

Mrs. Hatch is grateful for her good health. "I've never had a broken bone and I've had only one cold in 20 years."

Her one regret is that her eyesight is failing.

"I would love to go traveling if I could see," the sprightly lady said, "but I just can't see the colors anymore."

Beside her daughter and son, Mrs. Hatch has five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, all of whom will be in Mill Valley for the family celebration.

Dumas Keeps Skiwear Practical

His Newest Is Nonskid Snow Suit

By ELEANOR GUREWITSCH
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHATEL ST. DENIS, Switzerland — A ski-clothing manufacturer with headquarters here in the heart of ski country pays particular attention to practical details of the sport.

Thiy season, for example, while other skiwear makers are still giving primary attention to the cut, style, and line of their garments, Charles Dumas is emphasizing something quite different. He is promoting antigliss rutschfest, or antiskid ski clothes.

The ultrasmooth and shiny fabrics which have been used extensively for ski clothes, look great, and the garments feel great so long as the skier is standing up. But when he spills, the smooth, shiny fabrics have one distinct drawback: They slide so well they could double as toboggans.

For practical reasons as well as pretty ones, Charles Dumas ski outfits are dominating the scene here this season. In addition to the antiskid feature, they have a number of other thoughtful details.

Designed to keep out snow and wind, the suits are lined with a slippery, shiny, windproof and waterproof fabric — inside where it will do the most good and won't toboggan slide anyone down the slope.

To keep snow out at the waist there are other tricks. The suits with very short jackets come atop high-cut overall pants; some of the suits feature the short, lumber-jacket look but are cut in a single piece for the same no-snow-at-the-waist effect.

These outfits are designed for the active skier but with their wide, comfortable pants they are versatile enough to wear for any cold-weather sport.

Cross-country skiing is gaining in popularity here, and the ski-clothes designers are jumping on the bandwagon. This particular kind of skiing appears to call for knickers.

This season Bogner, always a pace-setter, offers jackets and knickers in matching fabrics — plain, checked, or prints —for the girls who have decided to skip the ski-lift lines and the ski-slope crowds for the quiet, snowy places accessible only to the cross-country skiers.

In New York holiday-resort clothes echo the retreating autumn and herald the approaching spring.

One of the most attractive collections on the market this season is Victor Joris's. Lush peach or aqua silk linen suits in safari styles combine extravagance of color and fabric with economy of design.

His evening separates are in a similar vein, with tailored, sporty styles glamorized for dressy occasions. Joris describes the mood this year as "more relaxed and less constricted," in keeping with an informal vacation atmosphere.

Other highlights of Joris's line are halter dresses and palazzo pants, which are the rage everywhere this year. Their full cut offers the advantage of camouflage to the stouter woman.

Although the prints are sometimes too flamboyant, basically they represent a pleasant compromise between a skirt and trousers.

Joris also is renowned for his caftans. "They originated in the Arabian countries," he explained, "because they allow the air to circulate during the heat of the day and provide warmth during the chilly evenings."

HOLIDAY SPORTSWEAR — Skidproof fabric, to keep the tumbling skier from sliding down the slope is the latest feature of ski clothing maker Charles Dumas of Chatel St. Denis, Switzerland, where Dumas ski fashions like the one at left are dominating the scene this season. In France, the latest fashion for the skier is an overall outfit, right, designed by Pindisports.

CONTRASTING RESORT wear is this palazzo pantsuit in a Japanese print. It was designed by Victor Joris of New York for the winter and spring resort season.

Disillusioned Parent's Advice Is Not The Best In All Cases

DEAR RAP:

In reply to the "Disillusioned Parent," who said her teen-age daughter kept her baby, but the grandmother did all the work: She shouldn't warn all parents to insist their unwed daughters give their babies up for adoption, get abortions, and such. It depends on the girl — and maybe as you say — on how much the parents have spoiled her.

I kept my son when I became an unwed mother at age 15, and I accepted my responsibilities as a mother. My parents helped. They were wonderful. But they didn't take over.

D.P. said girls were following a trend or "fad" in keeping their babies. No! I went by what I felt was best for my son and myself. Maybe some girls keep their babies for brownie points but I did so out of love. This woman talks about putting an unwed mother "on probation." Many married mothers treat their children badly. Who is going to "probate" them? — UNWED TEENAGE MOTHER

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

We, too, became early grandparents, but we don't use the word "illegitimate." Our daughter was an unwed mother at 15. She wanted to keep the baby out of love but it was a family decision and we made it happily. We feel the love and joy our grandson has brought into our homes and lives has more than made up for any suffering we may have had.

Our "immature" daughter finished two years of high school and graduated. She helped do much of the housework and assumed most of the responsibility and care of the baby. We all realized there would be work, tears and sleepless nights.

Our daughter is now happily married and our grandson has a proud daddy. Her pregnancy and the way she faced the future brought the family closer together. Our way might not work for many families, but we have never regretted the decision. — PROUD GRANDPARENTS

RAP:

You both championed the right of an unmarried pregnant teenager to finish high school with her class, if she wishes. I agree: dropping out of school — perhaps never going back — is disastrous, but there are alternate ways of finishing an education.

In Holyoke, Mass., a YWCA-sponsored project called CAPP (Comprehensive Adolescent Parent Program) is filling a need. Under it, pregnant girls may continue their education, but they meet daily at the YWCA rather than school. CAPP works in conjunction with the department of education, which strongly supports the program. A licensed teacher is provided, and the girls also meet with a nurse who instructs them in pre-natal health, labor, delivery and postpartum care. Practical home economics and baby care are also part of the program. And of course there is counseling for girls and their families. . . and the unwed father too, if needed. Should financial aid be indicated, the girls are directed to "help" agencies.

Financing? The project coordinator's salary is provided by the Emergency Employment Act and the teacher receives her pay from Title 1 Funds for Special Education. The Junior League of Holyoke pays the salaries of the counselor and nurse, and League volunteers serve as tutors, conduct cooking and health classes, provide transportation, and do a lot of listening on a one-to-one basis. No moralizing here — just encouragement.

I'm sure other cities have similar programs, and perhaps this letter may inspire still other groups along these lines. Although the stigma of illegitimacy is disappearing, pregnant teenagers still need the reinforcement of talking and working with those in similar circumstances in a non-condemning atmosphere. — E.L.S.

Your letter certainly will be an encouragement to other groups. Thanks for writing, and congratulations to CAPP! — HELEN AND SUE

Try A New Approach To Replacing Old Buttonholes

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I have always selected Chesterfield coats for my children so that the boys and girls could wear them interchangeably. Now I find that the buttonholes are all pulling out and yet there is a lot of wear left in the coats. Can you suggest a way of mending these?

MRS. S.M.

DEAR MRS. S.M.,

I would forget trying to mend the buttonholes. Instead, try to camouflage the disaster. This year, nothing is newer than the leather toggle closings. These are triangles of leather with a hemp type cord attached, that buttons on large wooden or leather buttons. They are easy to find at fabric shops and even easier to attach. They will cover up the torn buttonholes and give the coats a great new look, besides, the children will love them.

MRS. LeROY Wagoner, Charles, City, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"When you need a featherweight pellon, just take your medium weight pellon and separate. Start at one corner and peel as much as you need. One yard goes a long way, this way."

DAR EUNICE,

I would love to wear the newest palazzo pants but since I'm not too thin, I'm wondering if these are out for me.

MRS. R. T.

DEAR MRS. R.T.,

There are variations of almost all fashions that can be adapted in some way to suit everyone's figure. In your case, you should select a pattern that has no fullness at the waist.

It should fit smoothly around the waist and hips and gracefully flare out at the hem, not too wide. Be sure and use a soft, flowing fabric to avoid that extra pounds look.

If you are thin, you may select palazzo pants that not only have gathers at the waistline, but that end in huge, full, legs. If you're not watching your weight, you may select wools, plaids, velvets, and knits for your pants. The secret to all of them is to make them full enough so that you will have a skirt look with the added comfort of pants.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a question concerning your caftan. I heard a clerk in a store tell a customer that women were wearing these when they go out in the evenings. Is this really true? I have never seen any worn in our city at night, so I am at a loss to know if it is proper or not.

MILLIE S.

DEAR MILLIE,

Today, anything is proper if you feel proper wearing it. The caftan has become one of the most sophisticated garments of today and the women who make fashion news are wearing them in the evenings with great confidence.

Naturally, the fabric has a great deal to do with the occasion. The most popular fabrics for evening caftans are pure silks, chiffons, crepes, sheer brocades and satins. They are an oriental expression of beauty. Keep this in mind when making your selection.

I think every woman should have one to wear at home, too. Spoil your family and pamper yourself. It's fun to be glamorous not only for your friends but for your family as well.

DEAR EUNICE,

There has been quite a bit written about flameproof cottons for children's sleep wear in ready-made clothes. I am wondering if there is a similar kind of fabric available for those of us who make our families' clothes?

MRS. L.J.F.

DEAR MRS. L.J.F.,

I don't have that answer at the tip of my fingers, I'm sorry to say. To my knowledge, this is not available for over-the-counter sales. However, if I'm wrong, please write to me at once giving me the name of the manufacturer so that I may pass it on to all of you readers.

Try A New Approach To Replacing Old Buttonholes

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I have always selected Chesterfield coats for my children so that the boys and girls could wear them interchangeably. Now I find that the buttonholes are all pulling out and yet there is a lot of wear left in the coats. Can you suggest a way of mending these?

MRS. S.M.

DEAR MRS. S.M.,

I would forget trying to mend the buttonholes. Instead, try to camouflage the disaster. This year, nothing is newer than the leather toggle closings. These are triangles of leather with a hemp type cord attached, that buttons on large wooden or leather buttons. They are easy to find at fabric shops and even easier to attach. They will cover up the torn buttonholes and give the coats a great new look, besides, the children will love them.

MRS. LeROY Wagoner, Charles, City, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"When you need a featherweight pellon, just take your medium weight pellon and separate. Start at one corner and peel as much as you need. One yard goes a long way, this way."

DAR EUNICE,

I would love to wear the newest palazzo pants but since I'm not too thin, I'm wondering if these are out for me.

MRS. R. T.

DEAR MRS. R.T.,

There are variations of almost all fashions that can be adapted in some way to suit everyone's figure. In your case, you should select a pattern that has no fullness at the waist.

It should fit smoothly around the waist and hips and gracefully flare out at the hem, not too wide. Be sure and use a soft, flowing fabric to avoid that extra pounds look.

If you are thin, you may select palazzo pants that not only have gathers at the waistline, but that end in huge, full, legs. If you're not watching your weight, you may select wools, plaids, velvets, and knits for your pants. The secret to all of them is to make them full enough so that you will have a skirt look with the added comfort of pants.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a question concerning your caftan. I heard a clerk in a store tell a customer that women were wearing these when they go out in the evenings. Is this really true? I have never seen any worn in our city at night, so I am at a loss to know if it is proper or not.

MILLIE S.

DEAR MILLIE,

Today, anything is proper if you feel proper wearing it. The caftan has become one of the most sophisticated garments of today and the women who make fashion news are wearing them in the evenings with great confidence.

Naturally, the fabric has a great deal to do with the occasion. The most popular fabrics for evening caftans are pure silks, chiffons, crepes, sheer brocades and satins. They are an oriental expression of beauty. Keep this in mind when making your selection.

I think every woman should have one to wear at home, too. Spoil your family and pamper yourself. It's fun to be glamorous not only for your friends but for your family as well.

DEAR EUNICE,

There has been quite a bit written about flameproof cottons for children's sleep wear in ready-made clothes. I am wondering if there is a similar kind of fabric available for those of us who make our families' clothes?

MRS. L.J.F.

DEAR MRS. L.J.F.,

I don't have that answer at the tip of my fingers, I'm sorry to say. To my knowledge, this is not available for over-the-counter sales. However, if I'm wrong, please write to me at once giving me the name of the manufacturer so that I may pass it on to all of you readers.

Unit Pricing Is A Shopper's Aid

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Unit pricing can help you do a better job of shopping.

Keep in mind though it is a price comparison only. The unit price tells you that one brand or one size of the same brand is cheaper than another when compared in pounds, quarts or ounces, says the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

It does not tell you anything about quality of the products, which one tastes better or which is the better buy for your particular needs.

Driver Killed In Shoreline Accident

A San Francisco man was killed yesterday when his small foreign car crashed into a tree on Shoreline Highway between Bolinas and Olema.

The California Highway Patrol said Arne Arnesen, 39, was northbound about 2:30 p.m. when he apparently attempted to pass a pickup truck driven by James R. Scagliola, 26, of 18 Pleasant Lane, San Rafael.

A witness reported the small car began to sway, then skidded across the highway and into a tree.

The highway patrol said there was sand on the road, dumped earlier to melt ice, but did not know if the sand had contributed to the accident.

The fatality was the 42nd in Marin this year, compared to 32 at the same period last year.

years ago to kill the proposed second deck on the bridge. He also has been the prime mover behind the district's entry into the ferryboat business.

Leonoudakis, 48, has been on the board for 10 years.

The secret ballot also was an unprecedented departure from the tradition of unanimously and quietly accepting the slate recommended by the nominating committee. Outgoing board president Lowell Edington of Napa County ordered the secret balloting "in the interest of harmony."

Also elected, but in open balloting, were Edwin M. Fraser of Del Norte County as first vice president, and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras as second vice president.

Del Carlo, first appointed to the board in 1942, served as board president two years later. Board presidents in recent years have served for two years, as has Edington. No director, however, ever has been reelected as president after leaving office.

push needed to give him the votes to recapture party control from the "new politics" faction that took over in July.

Mrs. Westwood had been offering for a week to step down if the party would replace her with a "consensus" candidate not identified with either warring faction of the party. She said again Friday she would quit in favor of a middle ground candidate even if the committee rejected the motion to oust her, provided Strauss agreed to step out also.

Asked about this at a caucus of the New Democratic Coalition, Strauss said he regarded such a deal as similar to suggesting last summer to McGovern that he quit if Gov. George C. Wallace would drop out. Strauss said McGovern would have told anyone making such a proposition "to go to hell" and he was doing the same.

Mrs. Westwood said she could accept any of the known candidates except Strauss.

would be heading for the schools" to find her children, he argued.

County Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who headed the "simulators" who posed emergencies for emergency service leaders to react to, agreed. He criticized lack of effort to informing the public whether to pick up students at the schools or let the schools deliver them home when conditions permit.

School officials and Kirby said firm policies would be set at meetings in the near future.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who probably will wear the hat of county disaster director next year if elected chairman of the board as expected, offered several observations. A main criticism, he said, was that not enough use was made of light aircraft to assess damage and find routes open for traffic.

Public Works Director Ray Foreaker Jr. reported that "problems were coming in faster than we could have kept track of them with a computer." County Administrator John F. Barrows opined that the fragility of Highway 101 as the county's only north-south route "is a problem that isn't easily solved."

Other officials pointed out that central San Rafael might find itself unable to reach Terra Linda in emergencies unless another traffic link were opened through Sleepy Hollow.

Utility officials stressed that citizens would have to depend on transistor radios and auto radios for instructions and news in many disasters, because blackouts would prevent TV sets from working. This led to considerable but inconclusive discussion of how to work with news media to reach the public.

Kirby reported the county is preparing a brochure explaining how the citizen should react in any of several disaster situations, and hopes to have it completed by May.

In addition, he said, the countywide disaster plan will undergo further revisions on the basis of weak spots that showed up yesterday. More than 150 copies of the bulky, complicated plan have been distributed to county and city officials. Each county library has a copy available for public scrutiny.

Vincent P. Connors and Charles C. Coleman, the instructors from USC, commented that the Marin test was "unusually realistic" because Kirby recruited private utility executives and special district officials as participants. The trainees were "very highly motivated," the instructors said.

"Don't leave it now — keep feeding ideas to Kirby," Coleman urged.

OBITUARIES

Philip W. Tompkins Dies At 99

Private funeral was held today for Philip W. Tompkins, a 99-year-old native Marinite who died Wednesday in the same San Anselmo home in which he was born.

Tompkins, who would have been 100 years old in April, succumbed after a short illness, although he long had been afflicted with arthritis.

Tompkins, an analytical chemist and chemical engineer who had retired two years ago from Curtis and Tompkins, a San Francisco firm he established before the turn of the century, lived in San Anselmo all his life.

The funeral was scheduled at the home, 52 Park Way, this morning.

Tompkins, whose late sister, Ethel H. Tompkins, founded the Marin County Humane Society, was one of the oldest members of San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, joining in 1911.

With his father, M. M. Tompkins, a banker, Tompkins was aboard the ferryboat San Rafael when it collided with the ferry Sausalito No. 2 and sank off Alcatraz Island in 1901. Both slipped into the water and were rescued by a lifeboat.

In an interview several years ago, Tompkins recalled early-day Marin. "It was pretty country then, well wooded... Deer were plentiful and quail were abundant... As a boy, I rode my horse to San Rafael to a private school."

Tompkins was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the mortuary.

Police roped off the crash site on Chicago's South Side and stationed guards to keep unauthorized persons out of the area.

When the plane when down, it hit the roof of one house, smashed through three garages, hit three more houses and plunged to a halt in the John Saldewski home, the plane's nose sticking out one side of the house and the tail from the other side. Several of the homes burst into flames.

A neighbor, Charges Kansler, said, "I heard screams coming from inside the house. I could see the pilot's arm stick out out the window. It looked all white. I couldn't tell if he was alive or dead."

IN MEMORIAM

NAU, JOHN — In Loving memory of JOHN NAU who passed away December 10, 1971

Gone dear husband and father, gone forever.
How we miss your smiling face.
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home was once enjoyed,
How sweet the memories still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill

Driver Killed In Shoreline Accident

A San Francisco man was killed yesterday when his small foreign car crashed into a tree on Shoreline Highway between Bolinas and Olema.

The California Highway Patrol said Arne Arnesen, 39, was northbound about 2:30 p.m. when he apparently attempted to pass a pickup truck driven by James R. Scagliola, 26, of 18 Pleasant Lane, San Rafael.

A witness reported the small car began to sway, then skidded across the highway and into a tree.

The highway patrol said there was sand on the road, dumped earlier to melt ice, but did not know if the sand had contributed to the accident.

The fatality was the 42nd in Marin this year, compared to 32 at the same period last year.

VOTE

years ago to kill the proposed second deck on the bridge. He also has been the prime mover behind the district's entry into the ferryboat business.

Leonoudakis, 48, has been on the board for 10 years.

The secret ballot also was an unprecedented departure from the tradition of unanimously and quietly accepting the slate recommended by the nominating committee. Outgoing board president Lowell Edington of Napa County ordered the secret balloting "in the interest of harmony."

Also elected, but in open balloting, were Edwin M. Fraser of Del Norte County as first vice president, and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras as second vice president.

Del Carlo, first appointed to the board in 1942, served as board president two years later. Board presidents in recent years have served for two years, as has Edington. No director, however, ever has been reelected as president after leaving office.

DEMOS

push needed to give him the votes to recapture party control from the "new politics" faction that took over in July.

Mrs. Westwood had been offering for a week to step down if the party would replace her with a "consensus" candidate not identified with either warring faction of the party. She said again Friday she would quit in favor of a middle ground candidate even if the committee rejected the motion to oust her, provided Strauss agreed to step out also.

Asked about this at a caucus of the New Democratic Coalition, Strauss said he regarded such a deal as similar to suggesting last summer to McGovern that he quit if Gov. George C. Wallace would drop out. Strauss said McGovern would have told anyone making such a proposition "to go to hell" and he was doing the same.

Mrs. Westwood said she could accept any of the known candidates except Strauss.

would be heading for the schools" to find her children, he argued.

County Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who headed the "simulators" who posed emergencies for emergency service leaders to react to, agreed. He criticized lack of effort to informing the public whether to pick up students at the schools or let the schools deliver them home when conditions permit.

School officials and Kirby said firm policies would be set at meetings in the near future.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who probably will wear the hat of county disaster director next year if elected chairman of the board as expected, offered several observations. A main criticism, he said, was that not enough use was made of light aircraft to assess damage and find routes open for traffic.

Public Works Director Ray Foreaker Jr. reported that "problems were coming in faster than we could have kept track of them with a computer." County Administrator John F. Barrows opined that the fragility of Highway 101 as the county's only north-south route "is a problem that isn't easily solved."

Other officials pointed out that central San Rafael might find itself unable to reach Terra Linda in emergencies unless another traffic link were opened through Sleepy Hollow.

Utility officials stressed that citizens would have to depend on transistor radios and auto radios for instructions and news in many disasters, because blackouts would prevent TV sets from working. This led to considerable but inconclusive discussion of how to work with news media to reach the public.

Kirby reported the county is preparing a brochure explaining how the citizen should react in any of several disaster situations, and hopes to have it completed by May.

In addition, he said, the countywide disaster plan will undergo further revisions on the basis of weak spots that showed up yesterday. More than 150 copies of the bulky, complicated plan have been distributed to county and city officials. Each county library has a copy available for public scrutiny.

Vincent P. Connors and Charles C. Coleman, the instructors from USC, commented that the Marin test was "unusually realistic" because Kirby recruited private utility executives and special district officials as participants. The trainees were "very highly motivated," the instructors said.

"Don't leave it now — keep feeding ideas to Kirby," Coleman urged.

OBITUARIES

Philip W. Tompkins Dies At 99

Private funeral was held today for Philip W. Tompkins, a 99-year-old native Marinite who died Wednesday in the same San Anselmo home in which he was born.

Tompkins, who would have been 100 years old in April, succumbed after a short illness, although he long had been afflicted with arthritis.

Tompkins, an analytical chemist and chemical engineer who had retired two years ago from Curtis and Tompkins, a San Francisco firm he established before the turn of the century, lived in San Anselmo all his life.

The funeral was scheduled at the home, 52 Park Way, this morning.

Tompkins, whose late sister, Ethel H. Tompkins, founded the Marin County Humane Society, was one of the oldest members of San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, joining in 1911.

With his father, M. M. Tompkins, a banker, Tompkins was aboard the ferryboat San Rafael when it collided with the ferry Sausalito No. 2 and sank off Alcatraz Island in 1901. Both slipped into the water and were rescued by a lifeboat.

In an interview several years ago, Tompkins recalled early-day Marin. "It was pretty country then, well wooded. . . Deer were plentiful and quail were abundant. . . As a boy, I rode my horse to San Rafael to a private school."

Tompkins was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Survivors are four children, Niccolette Russo of Petaluma, Cheryl and Debbie Cohen of Tiburon, and Terry Cohen of Fresno, and a brother, Herb Cohen of Maryland.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the mortuary.

terday before the search was halted. The search resumed today, and by midmorning, two more bodies had been found.

Police roped off the crash site on Chicago's South Side and stationed guards to keep unauthorized persons out of the area.

When the plane when down, it hit the roof of one house, smashed through three garages, hit three more houses and plunged to a halt in the John Saldewski home, the plane's nose sticking out one side of the house and the tail from the other side. Several of the homes burst into flames.

A neighbor, Charges Kansler, said, "I heard screams coming from inside the house. I could see the pilot's arm stick out out the window. It looked all white. I couldn't tell if he was alive or dead."

Pope Expresses Concern On Vice

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI voiced concern anew yesterday over "the polluted environment of licentious customs and degrading and provocative vice with which we are surrounded."

"We pray today, on this feast day of the Immaculate Conception of Mary," the Pope said, "that we be given back the ideal concept of human life and of the dignity of our person and of civil and human customs."

The Pope spoke from his studio windows to a crowd gathered in St. Peter's Square for his holiday noontime blessing.

Pope Expresses Concern On Vice

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI voiced concern anew yesterday over "the polluted environment of licentious customs and degrading and provocative vice with which we are surrounded."

"We pray today, on this feast day of the Immaculate Conception of Mary," the Pope said, "that we be given back the ideal concept of human life and of the dignity of our person and of civil and humgn customs."

The Pope spoke from his studio windows to a crowd gathered in St. Peter's Square for his holiday noontime blessing.

Places On Commissions Are Filled

San Rafael City Councilman Lawrence Mulryan has been named to the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission while Fairfax Councilman Frank J. Egger has been appointed to the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

Both men were selected by Marin County mayors, who met Thursday at the Marin Civic Center.

Mulryan, nominated for the LAFC post by the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen, replaces the late Harry Barbier. His appointment was unanimous.

Egger, meanwhile, beat out three other Marin councilmen for the appointment to the regional commission, which was authorized by Proposition 20, the state coastline conservation measure approved by voters last month.

The 14-member commission will review coastline building proposals and issue permits in much the same manner as the Bay Conservation and Development Commission does for construction near San Francisco Bay.

Others nominated for the position were Corte Madera Mayor Holmes S. Norville, Novato Councilman George Quesada and Tiburon Councilman Carlisle Becker.

Phyllis Diller, Husband Split

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Noting their marriage was "for better or for worse, but not for keeps," comedienne Phillis Diller announced Friday she has separated from her actor-husband, Warde Donovan.

Miss Diller, 55, who curently is performing here, said she and Donovan, 56, were living apart. She said each had custody of his or her own children from previous marriages.

She has five children and Donovan has two. They were married in 1955.

State Rate Of Jobless Takes Drop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's unemployment rate dropped in November to its lowest level in 31 months even though there were 50,900 fewer jobholders, the Reagan administration reported Friday.

Sigurd I. Hansen, director of the Department of Human Resources Development, said the jobless rate fell from 5.9 per cent to 5.6 per cent. The nationwide rate declined from 5.5 per cent to 5.2 per cent.

Hansen said 8.24 million Californians held jobs last month—the highest ever for a November and 178,400 above the corresponding month a year ago.

The state official attributed the October-to-November drop in jobholders to "the usual cutback in farm and other outdoor work" during the rainy season.

But he said seasonal decrease was "less than usual" because much of it was offset by expansion in trade, government, finance, insurance and real estate during the month.

He said the total number of Californians employed in November was 467,000, up from 427,000 the previous month. However, he said the figure was 40,000 lower than November 1971.

Here is a breakdown, by areas, of November unemployment rates, with October's figures in parentheses:

Los Angeles-Long Beach, 5.1 (5.3); San Francisco-Oakland, 5.5 (5.8); Anaheim-Santa Ana Garden Grove, 5.0 (5.2); San Jose, 5.1 (5.5); Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario, 5.9 (5.9); Sacramento, 5.9 (6.5); Fresno, 7.5 (7.4); Bakersfield, 5.8 (5.5); Oxnard-Simi Valley-Ventira, 6.0 (5.7); Stockton, 8.1 (8.9); Santa Barbara-Santa Maria-Lompoc, 5.1 (5.4); Vallejo-Fairfield Napa, 5.0 (5.9).

The department said figures were unavailable for the remainded of the state's major labor marketing areas.

State To Add Land At Point Mugu Park

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Parks and Recreation Department says more than 2,500 acres will be added to Point Mugu State Park under a combination federal grant-property owner gift.

Director William Penn Mott Jr. announced Friday that Richard E. Danielson Jr. has agreed to sell the property to the state at half its appraised value of $4,215,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Defective Vision May Cause Child's Behavioral Disorders

Behavior disorders in young children may be related to defective vision. A 6-year-old boy, for example, made very little progress in school and was considered backward. Routine tests for hearing and sight showed no abnormality.

The lad fell and broke his hip, and while in the hospital, became very uncooperative, spitting, throwing things, and crying. On his return to school, he was obviously disturbed, unpleasant, and aggressive and his school work deteriorated.

HE WAS NOW 8 years old and the teacher thought his vision might be impaired; the parents agreed because they noticed he had become increasingly afraid of the dark. A thorough eye examination showed that he could see just enough to count his fingers and that he viewed things eccentrically, looking over the top of them. Special electrical studies of the retina demonstrated that the boy was almost blind because of an hereditary ocular degenerative disorder.

Drs. Brian Harcourt and David Hopkins reported four of these cases in the British Medical Journal. One involved a 6-year-old girl who first began to get into trouble at school. She took little interest in her surroundings, cried a lot, talked continuously, and was intensely jealous of her infant sister.

She became increasingly more afraid of the dark and slept very little. She was under psychiatric care for some time and improved a little after going to a special school. But her vision progressivly worsened and in time, the parents agreed to extensive eye tests. The girl was no 9 years old and hardly able to see.

CHILDREN WITH this type of retinal degeneration often go 18 to 30 months before the ocular disturbance is recognized. Good vision exists during the first few years, after which there is a slowly progressive deterioration. Night blindness is the first sign and begins with trouble on dark days or in subdued light. On routine examination, the eyes appear to be normal and severity of the visual defect is masked.

These children had tapetoretinal degeneration, a form of retinitis pigmentosa. The rodsand cones in the retina slowly disintegrate leading to blindness. The behavior of these children improves when they are transferred to schools for the visually handicapped.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

BRITTLE DIABETES

A reader writes: What is brittle diabetes?

REPLY

This unstable form of diabetes fluctuates in and out of control for no apparent reason. The sugar content of the blood may be excessive at 9 a.m. and a small amount of insulin may bring it down to insulin reaction levels within a short time.

PREGNANT CYCLING

A reader writes: Is it safe for a pregnant woman to ride a bike?

REPLY

It would be better to walk after the third month. As the mother-to-be grows larger and more awkward, there is greater danger of falling from the bike.

SUBNORMAL THYROID

F. M. writes: Can a lazy thyroid have a disturbing effect upon the menstrual cycle?

REPLY

Yes. Fertility also may be disturbed.

Israel Will Continue To Keep Arab Lands

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Israel has pledged to disregard a U.N. General Assembly resolution calling on the Israelis to get out of Arab territories occupied since the six-day war of 1967.

But Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, in condemning the measure adopted late Friday by an 86-7 vote with 31 abstentions, did not repeat his government's threat to pull out of U.N. Middle East peace efforts if the Assembly tampered with the intent of a Nov. 22, 1967 Security Council resolution.

The United States abstained from voting on the measure, sponsored by 20 nonaligned powers with Arab blessing, which:

—Deplored Israel's failure to comply with the council resolution and repeated the exact language of that measure which called for Israel's withdrawal "from territories" occupied in the 1967 war and urged "secure and recognized boundaries" for all Middle East countries.

—Asked Israel to declare publicly acceptance of "the principle of non-annexation of territories through the use of force".

—Declared changes made by Israel in the occupied territories null and void and called on all countries to withhold aid to assist Israel in such changes.

—Recognized the rights of Palestinian refugees as an "indispensable element" for Middle East peace.

—Asked the Security Council to "take all appropriate steps" for the carrying out fully of the 1967 resolution.

—Expressed full support for the peace efforts of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and his special Middle East peace envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring.

Before the vote, Tekoah called the resolution a "characteristic reflection of the failings and travesties of U.N. debates on the Middle East".

"Israel cannot allow itself to be engulfed by numbers," Tekoah said.

Irish Leaders Laud Vote To Split Church, State

DUBLIN (UPI) — Leaders of the Irish Republic said today the voters' decision to sever the government's constitutional link with the Roman Catholic church was a necessary "first step" toward eventual unification of Northern Ireland and the Republic.

"There may be other changes later," a spokesman for Premier Jack Lynch's Fianna Fail party said. "But this was a first step toward reconciliation."

Final results in Thursday's referendum showed 721,003 or 84 per cent of those voting favored deleting from the 1937 constitution the special recognition granted to the Roman Catholic church, while 133,430 or 16 per cent voted to retain it.

But only 50 percent of the 1.8 million people eligible to vote did so. Lynch had urged a "massive response" from voters as a goodwill gesture to the Protestant majority in British ruled Northern Ireland.

"Naturally I am disappointed at the low poll," Lynch said. "But the republic has shown it is ready to make changes."

Lynch said the message of the poll had come through "loud and clear" for all on both sides of the Irish border.

"The vote in this referendum was for peace and reconciliation," he said.

First reactions from Protestants in Northern Ireland were unfavorable.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, Protestant militant leader and a member of the British House of Commons, described the result as "unrepresentative."

"The poll did not express a majority viewpoint," he said.

Symphony Opener Is Set Tonight

As a result of erroneous information in a press release from the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, the Independent-Journal incorrectly reported on Wednesday that the Orchestra would open its Marin series Sunday.

The series actually opens tonight at 8 o'clock at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building with the orchestra's concertmaster, Stuart Canim, substituting for originally scheduled Israeli violinist Pinchas Zukerman.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Dec. 9, the 344th day of 1972 with 22 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

English poet John Milton was born Dec. 9, 1608.

On this day in history:

In 1793, Noah Webster founded the American Minerva, the first daily newspaper in New York City.

In 1907, Christmas seals were placed on sale in the post office in Wilmington, Del., to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

In 1920, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to American President Woodrow Wilson.

In 1971, Dr. Ralph Bunche, former U.N. official and winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, died at the age of 67.

A thought for the day: British poet John Milton said, "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

Places On Commissions Are Filled

San Rafael City Councilman Lawrence Mulryan has been named to the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission while Fairfax Councilman Frank J. Egger has been appointed to the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

Both men were selected by Marin County mayors, who met Thursday at the Marin Civic Center.

Mulryan, nominated for the LAFC post by the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen, replaces the late Harry Barbier. His appointment was unanimous.

Egger, meanwhile, beat out three other Marin councilmen for the appointment to the regional commission, which was authorized by Proposition 20, the state coastline conservation measure approved by voters last month.

The 14-member commission will review coastline building proposals and issue permits in much the same manner as the Bay Conservation and Development Commission does for construction near San Francisco Bay.

Others nominated for the position were Corte Madera Mayor Holmes S. Norville, Novato Councilman George Quesada and Tiburon Councilman Carlisle Becker.

State Rate Of Jobless Takes Drop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's unemployment rate dropped in November to its lowest level in 31 months even though there were 50,900 fewer jobholders, the Reagan administration reported Friday.

Sigurd I. Hansen, director of the Department of Human Resources Development, said the jobless rate fell from 5.9 per cent to 5.6 per cent. The nationwide rate declined from 5.5 per cent to 5.2 per cent.

Hansen said 8.24 million Californians held jobs last month—the highest ever for a November and 178,400 above the corresponding month a year ago.

The state official attributed the October-to-November drop in jobholders to "the usual cutback in farm and other outdoor work" during the rainy season.

But he said seasonal decrease was "less than usual" because much of it was offset by expansion in trade, government, finance, insurance and real estate during the month.

He said the total number of Californians employed in November was 467,000, up from 427,000 the previous month. However, he said the figure was 40,000 lower than November 1971.

Here is a breakdown, by areas, of November unemployment rates, with October's figures in parentheses:

Los Angeles-Long Beach, 5.1 (5.3); San Francisco-Oakland, 5.5 (5.8); Anaheim-Santa Ana Garden Grove, 5.0 (5.2); San Jose, 5.1 (5.5); Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario, 5.9 (5.9); Sacramento, 5.9 (6.5); Fresno, 7.5 (7.4); Bakersfield, 5.8 (5.5); Oxnard-Simi Valley-Ventira, 6.0 (5.7); Stockton, 8.1 (8.9); Santa Barbara-Santa Maria-Lompoc, 5.1 (5.4); Vallejo-Fairfield Napa, 5.0 (5.9).

The department said figures were unavailable for the remainded of the state's major labor marketing areas.

State To Add Land At Point Mugu Park

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Parks and Recreation Department says more than 2,500 acres will be added to Point Mugu State Park under a combination federal grant-property owner gift.

Director William Penn Mott Jr. announced Friday that Richard E. Danielson Jr. has agreed to sell the property to the state at half its appraised value of $4,215,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Defective Vision May Cause Child's Behavioral Disorders

Behavior disorders in young children may be related to defective vision. A 6-year-old boy, for example, made very little progress in school and was considered backward. Routine tests for hearing and sight showed no abnormality.

The lad fell and broke his hip, and while in the hospital, became very uncooperative, spitting, throwing things, and crying. On his return to school, he was obviously disturbed, unpleasant, and aggressive and his school work deteriorated.

HE WAS NOW 8 years old and the teacher thought his vision might be impaired; the parents agreed because they noticed he had become increasingly afraid of the dark. A thorough eye examination showed that he could see just enough to count his fingers and that he viewed things eccentrically, looking over the top of them. Special electrical studies of the retina demonstrated that the boy was almost blind because of an hereditary ocular degenerative disorder.

Drs. Brian Harcourt and David Hopkins reported four of these cases in the British Medical Journal. One involved a 6-year-old girl who first began to get into trouble at school. She took little interest in her surroundings, cried a lot, talked continuously, and was intensely jealous of her infant sister.

She became increasingly more afraid of the dark and slept very little. She was under psychiatric care for some time and improved a little after going to a special school. But her vision progressivly worsened and in time, the parents agreed to extensive eye tests. The girl was no 9 years old and hardly able to see.

CHILDREN WITH this type of retinal degeneration often go 18 to 30 months before the ocular disturbance is recognized. Good vision exists during the first few years, after which there is a slowly progressive deterioration. Night blindness is the first sign and begins with trouble on dark days or in subdued light. On routine examination, the eyes appear to be normal and severity of the visual defect is masked.

These children had tapetoretinal degeneration, a form of retinitis pigmentosa. The rodsand cones in the retina slowly disintegrate leading to blindness. The behavior of these children improves when they are transferred to schools for the visually handicapped.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

BRITTLE DIABETES

A reader writes: What is brittle diabetes?

REPLY

This unstable form of diabetes fluctuates in and out of control for no apparent reason. The sugar content of the blood may be excessive at 9 a.m. and a small amount of insulin may bring it down to insulin reaction levels within a short time.

PREGNANT CYCLING

A reader writes: Is it safe for a pregnant woman to ride a bike?

REPLY

It would be better to walk after the third month. As the mother-to-be grows larger and more awkward, there is greater danger of falling from the bike.

SUBNORMAL THYROID

F. M. writes: Can a lazy thyroid have a disturbing effect upon the menstrual cycle?

REPLY

Yes. Fertility also may be disturbed.

Israel Will Continue To Keep Arab Lands

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Israel has pledged to disregard a U.N. General Assembly resolution calling on the Israelis to get out of Arab territories occupied since the six-day war of 1967.

But Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, in condemning the measure adopted late Friday by an 86-7 vote with 31 abstentions, did not repeat his government's threat to pull out of U.N. Middle East peace efforts if the Assembly tampered with the intent of a Nov. 22, 1967 Security Council resolution.

The United States abstained from voting on the measure, sponsored by 20 nonaligned powers with Arab blessing, which:

—Deplored Israel's failure to comply with the council resolution and repeated the exact language of that measure which called for Israel's withdrawal "from territories" occupied in the 1967 war and urged "secure and recognized boundaries" for all Middle East countries.

—Asked Israel to declare publicly acceptance of "the principle of non-annexation of territories through the use of force".

—Declared changes made by Israel in the occupied territories null and void and called on all countries to withhold aid to assist Israel in such changes.

—Recognized the rights of Palestinian refugees as an "indispensable element" for Middle East peace.

—Asked the Security Council to "take all appropriate steps" for the carrying out fully of the 1967 resolution.

—Expressed full support for the peace efforts of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and his special Middle East peace envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring.

Before the vote, Tekoah called the resolution a "characteristic reflection of the failings and travesties of U.N. debates on the Middle East".

"Israel cannot allow itself to be engulfed by numbers," Tekoah said.

Irish Leaders Laud Vote To Split Church, State

DUBLIN (UPI) — Leaders of the Irish Republic said today the voters' decision to sever the government's constitutional link with the Roman Catholic church was a necessary "first step" toward eventual unification of Northern Ireland and the Republic.

"There may be other changes later," a spokesman for Premier Jack Lynch's Fianna Fail party said. "But this was a first step toward reconciliation."

Final results in Thursday's referendum showed 721,003 or 84 per cent of those voting favored deleting from the 1937 constitution the special recognition granted to the Roman Catholic church, while 133,430 or 16 per cent voted to retain it.

But only 50 percent of the 1.8 million people eligible to vote did so. Lynch had urged a "massive response" from voters as a goodwill gesture to the Protestant majority in British ruled Northern Ireland.

"Naturally I am disappointed at the low poll," Lynch said. "But the republic has shown it is ready to make changes."

Lynch said the message of the poll had come through "loud and clear" for all on both sides of the Irish border.

"The vote in this referendum was for peace and reconciliation," he said.

First reactions from Protestants in Northern Ireland were unfavorable.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, Protestant militant leader and a member of the British House of Commons, described the result as "unrepresentative."

"The poll did not express a majority viewpoint," he said.

Symphony Opener Is Set Tonight

As a result of erroneous information in a press release from the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, the Independent-Journal incorrectly reported on Wednesday that the Orchestra would open its Marin series Sunday.

The series actually opens tonight at 8 o'clock at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building with the orchestra's concertmaster, Stuart Canim, substituting for originally scheduled Israeli violinist Pinchas Zukerman.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Dec. 9, the 344th day of 1972 with 22 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

English poet John Milton was born Dec. 9, 1608.

On this day in history:

In 1793, Noah Webster founded the American Minerva, the first daily newspaper in New York City.

In 1907, Christmas seals were placed on sale in the post office in Wilmington, Del., to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

In 1920, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to American President Woodrow Wilson.

In 1971, Dr. Ralph Bunche, former U.N. official and winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, died at the age of 67.

A thought for the day: British poet John Milton said, "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Salute today's birthday names, but remember some are make-believe. Who's using the real name and who's adopted a new one? That's the question.

1. KIRK DOUGLAS was a baby 56 years ago. Now he's the screen's tough hero, fighting to win in such pictures as "Seven Days in May," "Spartacus," or "The Vikings." His hometown is Amsterdam, N.Y. and his alma mater, St. Lawrence University. Often nominated for an Oscar, Kirk has never won one. His real name is Issur Danielovitch. Right?

2. REDD FOXX, co-star of TV's "Sanford and Son," is 50 today. If you think he's 65, that's because the part calls for a man that age. Redd got the role after NBC executives spotted him as a junk man in the film, "Cotton Comes to Harlem." For years Foxx played only the black night club circuit, but white audiences saw him 10 years ago and he really got going. Is Redd's real name John Sanford?

3. HERMIONE GINGOLD, 75 today, was raised a proper English lady, enjoying a private education, with her own governess and all that. But stage lights got her away from sewing rooms, first with Old Vic and today in films ("Gigi"), recording ("Life of the Party") and her own books ("My Own Unaided Work"). Is it true, however, her real name is Frances Gumm?

4. ELISABETH SCHWARZKOPF, star of grand opera, was born 57 years ago. Europe has applauded her voice for years and she has appeared in all the major opera houses, including La Scala in Milan and Covent Garden in London. She made her American debut at the San Francisco Opera House in 1955. Her name is Lilli Lehmann. Right?

ANSWERS: 1 - Right; 2 - Yes; 3 - False; 4 - Wrong.

Consider The Odds In Action Before Attempting The Contract

Today's hand, played 15 years ago in an intercollegiate tournament, was a test of the ability to foresee bad breaks. Several thousand college students played the hand, in more than a hundred colleges, but only a few came up with the right answer.

GETS TO CONTRACT

In most cases, South got to the correct contract of five diamonds. The jack of clubs was usually opened by the West player.

South can expect to win seven trumps, two top clubs and the ace of spades. The 11th trick, needed for the game contract, can come only from developing dummy's long club suit.

Declarer naturally thinks first of taking the top clubs and ruffing a low club. If each opponent has exactly three clubs, declarer can get back to dummy with the king of diamonds in order to run the last two clubs. South will then make 12 tricks.

GOOD BREAK UNLIKELY

The trouble with this plan is that the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break of the missing six clubs. The suit is more likely to break 4-2.

To guard against the expected 4-2 break, South should play a low club from dummy at the first trick!

BEST PLAY

East's best play is to win with the queen of clubs and return the queen of spades, South takes the ace of spades, draws two rounds of trumps with the ace and queen and then leads a club to dummy's king. It is now easy to cash the ace of clubs and ruff a club. This establishes dummy's last club as a good trick. Declarer can get back to dummy with the king of diamonds to cash the last club, making his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- 7 6 5
♥- J 10
♦- K 3 2
♣- A K 6 5 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club or pass.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, but some aggressive experts would open it. The hand would be a better opening bid if there were low hearts and if the clubs were A K J 10 2.

Hub Police Err In Crash Report

San Anselmo police said today they erred last week in reporting that a 28-year-old San Anselmo woman on a bicycle crashed broadside into a car driven by an 86-year-old woman.

Actually, the car driven by Ruby Smith Krelle, 86, of 425 Center Boulevard, San Anselmo, crashed into the cyclist, Claudia M. Polliti, 28, of 810 Butterfield Road, police said.

Police said today that the cyclist caused the crash, however, by not looking where she was going.

SHELTERS DESIGNED FOR BUS SYSTEM

This conception of shelters for the Golden Gate Bridge District bus system, despite the designer's misspelling of Tiburon, won first prize of $250 for Firooze Pejhan, a student of environmental design at the California College of Arts and Craft in Oakland. The 31-year-old Iranian, whose work will serve as a model for new shelters to be built under a pending federal grant, proposed a unit with a sheet metal umbrella supported by green steel columns.

Mistrial In Ellsberg Case Is Declared

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A mistrial will be declared in the Pentagon Papers case Monday.

U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne said at a hearing Friday he would order the mistrial because the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco earlier that day declined to overrule Byrne's decision not to grant a mistrial last Dec. 1, but said it would be "foolish to proceed to trial in the case with the jury selected four months ago."

"In view of the language," Byrne said, "I believe there would be substantial risk" in continuing the trial with the present jury because a verdict "might be disturbed on appeal."

Byrne said he would have issued the mistrial order at the hearing Friday except that Daniel Ellsberg, 41, was not present. Ellsberg has admitted providing the Pentagon papers to news media in July, 1971, but denies that constituted any wrongdoing. He was not aware the hearing had been called and was undergoing a physical checkup at the time.

Laird Says Some Bases To Be Shut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the Pentagon will begin closing some military bases next year to cut $1 billion from the defense budget by 1975.

Pentagon officials said the closings tentatively would include one naval base on the east and west coasts and many small Army depots.

Laird disclosed the move Friday at an Andrews Air Force Base news conference upon his return from NATO meetings in Belgium. Laird also said that he discussed the future of SEATO with British officials at the NATO talks.

Two important members of SEATO, Australia and New Zealand, have cooled toward the alliance since the election of new governments in recent weeks.

Laird said that he had received from the Army, Navy and Air Force lists of bases that can be closed or cut back.

"The chiefs and others do feel that cuts can be made in this area," the outgoing defense secretary said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., whose home state is a major center for the defense establishment, said Thursday that the Pentagon had a responsibility to help displaced workers find new jobs.

Laird said the primary problem in shutting down bases is combatting pressures from congressmen in whose districts the closings would take place.

Laird said that he has eliminated 4 million jobs of military and civilian personnel since becoming secretary in 1969. But he said the Pentagon has worked and will continue to work to attract new industries and open new job opportunities in areas where defense cutbacks have an impact on the local economy.

The current defense budget is $76 billion and Laird has projected the next budget at $80 billion.

He said the $1 billion savings could not be achieved in the year the base cutbacks are made. The expenses inherent in closing a base generally increase costs during the phaseout period, Laird said.

But he said he believed full savings were "attainable" in 18 months after the closings.

President Nixon in a postelection analysis of the federal bureaucracy said he believed that defense spending could be trimmed by 10 per cent.

The art of printing was introduced in Norway in 1634.

Three Confess To Plot On Marcos Life To Seize Power

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippine government said today that righwing conspirators have confessed they planned to assassinate President Ferdinand E. Marcos and seize power.

Alternatively, the government said, the rightwingers wanted to get into power through Marcos' ouster in a Communist rebellion.

Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad said at least three members of a "revolutionary junta" had confessed to the alleged plot. He warned that assassination attempts on President Marcos, his wife and their children would continue.

Tatad's statement came 48 hours after an assailant wielding a foot-long bolo knife stabbed Marcos' wife Imelda at an awards ceremony.

Mrs. Marcos suffered deep wounds in both hands and her right arm but was reported in satisfactory condition. Her attacker, identified as Carlito Dimaali, was shot dead by guards.

Tatad said as a result of that attack Filipino police had raided "14 houses" and arrested 85 persons in an effort to prevent more violence.

Previously the government said at least six Americans had been involved in a rightist conspiracy, including Vietnam war veteran Edward Lehman who is in custody, and San Francisco businessman Lawrence Tractman, whom the government is seeking.

"All those who have been apprehended in the rightist plot to take over the government upon the assassination of the president or after the success of a Communist takeover have signed voluntary confessions,"Tatad said.

Tatad said that among those detained or implicated were relatives of millionaires, politicians, retired military officers and others, including Sergio Osmena III, grandson of a Philippine wartime president and son of Sen. Sergio Osmena who lost to Marcos in the 1969 presidential election.

"The plan included the support for the Communist campaign of terrorism and violence to create a revolutionary situation and grab power even if the Communists should have succeeded in taking over the government," Tatad said.

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., today called on President Marcos and extended the sympathy of Americans to his wife.

The senator is in Manila in the course of a tour of Southeast Asia. He was accompanied on the call at the Malacanang presidential palace by U.S. ambassador to the Philippines Henry A. Byroade.

Woman Admits Welfare Fraud, Perjury Charges

A Hayward woman, said to have bilked Marin County of almost $3,600 in a welfare career that included claiming disability because a back injury ended her topless dancing career, pleaded guilty to two charges in Marin Superior Court yesterday.

Agreeing to a plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, Lia Culcleasure Stahrlite admitted felony counts of welfare fraud and perjury. The judge promised her a state prison sentence would be suspended in favor of nine months in jail and probation. She will also be ordered to pay restitution if the negotiation is followed.

Sentencing is set for Dec. 18.

The judge dismissed a petty theft count over the objection of Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, who sought a state prison term for the 27-year-old woman.

Hyams said the woman apparently used three other names to enroll for welfare in San Francisco and Alameda counties while receiving checks from Marin.

She received $3,523 she wasn't entitled to in Marin alone from January 1971 until September 1972 when a state computer caught up with her, according to Hyams.

At one point, he said, she may have been receiving five different aid checks from three counties, plus a $125-per-week paycheck from a job as a furniture refinisher.

Hyams said Alameda County may also prosecute her for welfare fraud and Santa Clara and Monterey counties want her on charges of passing bad checks. In Los Angeles County, she is wanted for defrauding an innkeeper, he said.

SHELTERS DESIGNED FOR BUS SYSTEM

This conception of shelters for the Golden Gate Bridge District bus system, despite the designer's misspelling of Tiburon, won first prize of $250 for Firooze Pejhan, a student of environmental design at the California College of Arts and Craft in Oakland. The 31-year-old Iranian, whose work will serve as a model for new shelters to be built under a pending federal grant, proposed a unit with a sheet metal umbrella supported by green steel columns.

Mistrial In Ellsberg Case Is Declared

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A mistrial will be declared in the Pentagon Papers case Monday.

U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne said at a hearing Friday he would order the mistrial because the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco earlier that day declined to overrule Byrne's decision not to grant a mistrial last Dec. 1, but said it would be "foolish to proceed to trial in the case with the jury selected four months ago."

"In view of the language," Byrne said, "I believe there would be substantial risk" in continuing the trial with the present jury because a verdict "might be disturbed on appeal."

Byrne said he would have issued the mistrial order at the hearing Friday except that Daniel Ellsberg, 41, was not present. Ellsberg has admitted providing the Pentagon papers to news media in July, 1971, but denies that constituted any wrongdoing. He was not aware the hearing had been called and was undergoing a physical checkup at the time.

Laird Says Some Bases To Be Shut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the Pentagon will begin closing some military bases next year to cut $1 billion from the defense budget by 1975.

Pentagon officials said the closings tentatively would include one naval base on the east and west coasts and many small Army depots.

Laird disclosed the move Friday at an Andrews Air Force Base news conference upon his return from NATO meetings in Belgium. Laird also said that he discussed the future of SEATO with British officials at the NATO talks.

Two important members of SEATO, Australia and New Zealand, have cooled toward the alliance since the election of new governments in recent weeks.

Laird said that he had received from the Army, Navy and Air Force lists of bases that can be closed or cut back.

"The chiefs and others do feel that cuts can be made in this area," the outgoing defense secretary said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., whose home state is a major center for the defense establishment, said Thursday that the Pentagon had a responsibility to help displaced workers find new jobs.

Laird said the primary problem in shutting down bases is combatting pressures from congressmen in whose districts the closings would take place.

Laird said that he has eliminated 4 million jobs of military and civilian personnel since becoming secretary in 1969. But he said the Pentagon has worked and will continue to work to attract new industries and open new job opportunities in areas where defense cutbacks have an impact on the local economy.

The current defense budget is $76 billion and Laird has projected the next budget at $80 billion.

He said the $1 billion savings could not be achieved in the year the base cutbacks are made. The expenses inherent in closing a base generally increase costs during the phaseout period, Laird said.

But he said he believed full savings were "attainable" in 18 months after the closings.

President Nixon in a postelection analysis of the federal bureaucracy said he believed that defense spending could be trimmed by 10 per cent.

Drake, Petaluma In Cage Tourney Finale Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Drake High School, which runs the tournament, and Petaluma High, which practically owns it, will meet at 8:15 tonight for the championship of the Drake Pirate Classic at the San Anselmo school.

Each team won frantic semifinal basketball games last night, with the Pirates rallying to defeat Ells of Richmond, 72-68, and Petaluma scrambling to beat Novato, 40-38. The losers will meet for third place tonight at 6:30.

In loser's bracket games yesterday afternoon, San Marin edged Terra Linda, 61-58, and San Rafael drubbed Napa, 56-47. The winners were to meet today for the consolation title at 5 p.m., while the losers were scheduled to collide at 3:30.

Drake has made the finals of its eight-year-old tournament only once, and that in the inaugural year, 1965. The Pirates won then, and are top-seeded now, but Petaluma has won the last two years and has an eight-game winning streak in the tourney.

Drake (5-1) rallied from a 38-30 halftime deficit to defeat Ells (1-2) before a near-capacity crowd of 1,400 fans. Center John Channell collared eight offensive rebounds and converted most into baskets for 18 points to lead all scorers, with Eddie Joe Chavez adding 14 and John (Skipper) Schmitz 10.

Drake did not take the lead for good until Schmitz converted a three-point play with 5:47 left in the game for a 59-58 advantage. Then Channell put in an offensive rebound, Dan Howard sailed in for a controversial layup and Chavez rifled home a long jumper for 65-58.

Just before Howard's basket, Ells' Richard Bailey was called for an offensive foul, his fifth. A buzzer was sounded to stop play so Bailey could be removed from the game, but the officials apparently could not hear it over the crowd noise. Play continued, and Howard scored.

The shooting of Petaluma (2-3) was nowhere near as glamorous as Drake's, but the Trojans showed similar grit in the clutch to upset second-seeded Novato (4-2). The Hornets led late in the third quarter, 29-25, but Petaluma surged for a 39-32 lead which turned out to be enough.

"We were out of the game as far as talent goes, but we controlled the tempo absolutely," said Petaluma coach Mark Reischling who, like Hayward, is a first-year mentor.

Jess Tremblay was the star of the surge with three baskets and a free throw, while Gary Mungle had three free throws.

Novato shot an atrocious 29 per cent from the field (16 of 54) and Petaluma was even worse at 26 per cent (12 of 47). In fact, the Trojans went a full 12 minutes in the second and third quarters without a bucket — and never relinquished the lead during that stretch.

Novato was called for 27 personal fouls to Petaluma's 12, with the predictabe result that

Marin, Sacramento Tonight; Tars Lose

By RON LENT

College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis plans only one change tonight at 8 o'clock when the Tars host Sacramento City.

"We plan to win," he asserted last night after his Tars bowed 85-67 to powerful Laney College of Oakland, in a non-league game in Kentfield.

"Sacramento doesn't run a lot like Laney — and they're not nearly as physical," Panagakis pointed out.

Certainly, the Tar fans would agree with Panagakis' assessment of Laney. Some 700 vociferous spectators looked on as the Eagles (6-0) handed the Tars (5-1) their first loss this season.

Regarding the defeat, Panagakis stressed, "It should serve as a lesson to us. If we don't screen out and rebound, we get killed. And that's what happened to us against Laney."

The Eagles outrebounded Marin 63-34 in controlling the game. Although the Eagles dominated the boards, they couldn't stop Tar star forward Wil Garner. Garner was the contest's top scorer with 24 points. His forward running mate Joe Casteel chipped in 13.

Despite the setback, Panagakis was looking ahead. "I told my players that this was just one non-league game. . . we've got a long way to go."

Off last night's showing, Panagakis is right; the Tars do have a long way to go. Marin led four different times in the first half, but the visitors outrebounded the Tars 33-20 during that span and grabbed a 39-32 advantage at the intermission. This was the first time this season that the Tars trailed at the half.

Enjoying a pronounced rebounding edge, the Eagles utilized a fast break and balanced scoring to throttle the Tars. Forward Tyree Foster and guard Vernon May were the big guns for Laney. They tallied 15 and 11, respectively for the team that finished second in the state tournament last year.

Able Laney reserves Geoffrey McCray and Fred McDonald also contributed mightily to the Tars' demise. McDonald, a 6-foot-9 center, and McCray, a hot-shooting guard, registered 10 and nine points, respectively, while the outcome was still in doubt.

McCray and McDonald did most of their damage in the second half when the Tars were battling to stay in contention. The Tars tied the game at 45-45 on a Garner jumper with 15:58 left, but Johnson promptly responded with a field goal to put the Eagles ahead to stay.

The Tars closed to within one point on three occasions thereafter before Laney pulled away. Laney was ahead, 52-51, when Foster and guard Bruce Fernandez ran off seven unanswered points between them, making it 59-51. Marin fell further behind from that point on as the Eagles hustled and muscled their way to victory.

ROUGH BATTLE — Marin Tars' guard Joe DeMaestri and Laney Eagles' guard Vernon May (10) scrambled for a loose basketball last night in Kentfield during a rugged, non-league contest. The Eagles prevailed, 85-67, in handing the Tars (5-1) their first defeat of the season.

AT CANDLESTICK

No Tomorrow For 49ers, Falcons; Game 'Crucial'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Operating on the theory there may be no tomorrow the San Francisco 49ers and Atlanta Falcons "hang it all out" Sunday in their "crucial" meeting at Candlestick Park.

The Falcons, who haven't won a division title since coming into the National Football League in 1966, go into the test — to be played in unusually cold weather — with the edge in the standings and the possible luxury of playing for a tie. But the oddsmakers are picking the 49ers by six points.

'WORST GAME'

Atlanta, which bowed, 49-14, to San Francisco six games back in what coach Norm Van Brocklin called "the worst game we've ever played," is 7-5 and leads the 49ers and Los Angeles Rams by a half game in the chase for the National Football Conference title. The two California teams are 6-5-1, following Los Angeles' upset 26-16 victory over the 49ers last Monday night.

For San Francisco, it's beat Atlanta or call it a year, which would be a little tough to take for the 49ers, NFC West champs the last two seasons. Atlanta goes into the game also faced with winning, but if the St. Louis Cardinals upset the Rams before the Falcon-49ers tilt, the Falcons could play for a tie if that is easier to accomplish in the waning minutes of a close contest.

FALCONS' FOE

In the event they have to go that route — in order to stay alive — the Falcons then would have to beat the Kansas City Chiefs in their final gmae of the season to win the title.

Steve Spurrier, sabotaged by his receivers in the Los Angeles loss, threw three of his 18 scoring passes in the earlier victory over Altanta. What made that game easy, though, was the running of Larry Schrieber, Ken Willard and Vic Washington. That set up the passing game and Spurrier had little trouble connecting in key situations.

Van Brocklin likes to think that game was not indicative of what his Falcons can do, and he's right. The San Francisco loss was just one of those games where a team starts off with a mistake and never recovers.

NOTHING RIGHT

"We didn't do one thing right except, perhaps, to show up," Van Brocklin says of that game. "We made enough mistakes to take care of us for the year. I don't want to take anything away from the 49ers, though. They were good enough to take advantage and that's always the sign of a good ball club. This time I hope things will be different."

Dick Nolan, about as upset as he could be with the loss to the Rams last Monday — a game in which Spurrier's receivers

Bay Shoreline Night Fishing Approved By State Commission

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — The state Fish and Game Commission Friday approved night fishing from the shoreline of San Francisco Bay, but decided to wait before permitting night fishing from boats, citing safety hazards.

"There's a real chance — even a probability — that if the commission authorizes" nighttime fishing from boats, "a result could be the death of a fisherman or grounding of a large ship, even a repeat of the 1972 oil spill," warned Cmdr. Frank E. Thrall, vessel traffic system chief for the U.S. Coast Guard in San Francisco.

Thrall also expressed concern that inexperienced small craft navigators would confuse a ship's running lights with the skylines of Oakland and San Francisco, and that operators of large ships might have difficulty avoiding smaller craft.

The commission said it will reconsider permitting nighttime fishing from boats next year after evaluating a study now being made by the Coast Guard of ways to minimize hazards.

The commission's action is effective March 1. The waters involved extend from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Carquinez straits, including San Pablo Bay.

In other actions, the commission increased the bag and possession limits for multi-day ocean sport fishing and diving trips to a maximum of three daily limits.

The three-day possession limit was also expanded to include abalone, scallops, spiny lobsters and clams in multi-day trips.

Among other changes, the commission set permanent dates for the opening of trout and salmon fishing seasons, and closed the trout season two weeks earlier in Inyo and Mono counties.

The new multi-day limit takes effect on Jan. 1. Most of the other regulations are effective next March 1 and remain in effect until February, 1974.

Other changes:

—The size limit on green abalone was reduced from 6¼ inches to six inches.

—One white sea bass under minimum size of 28 inches may be taken.

—Night fishing will be permitted in Clair Engle Lake in Trinity County and Evans Lake in Riverside County.

—For Northern California streams, and lakes and streams in Mono and Inyo Counties, the trout and salmon seasons will open the last Saturday in April. For north coast streams, opening was set for the Saturday preceding Memorial Day.

—Seasons will run through Nov. 15, except in Mono and Inyo counties where the season will close Oct. 31.

—Lakes and reservoirs in Alpine County will be open the year around.

—Weight limit on catfish was removed.

—A 40-mile stretch of the Kern River from Johnsondale Bridge to Democrat Dam was opened to all-year fishing.

Tomales Five Tops Lick; First Win Of Season

Tomales High School got its first basketball victory of the season in San Francisco last night with a 50-42 non-league win over Lick Wilmerding. The Braves are now 1-2 on the year.

"We did a lot better," Tomales coach James Clahan commented. "We took in a lot of rebounds, but our shooting is still off." The Braves hit a poor 29 per cent of their shots from the field.

Russ Sartori and John Ball were the scoring and rebounding leaders for Tomales with 15 and 13 points, and 12 and 11 rebounds.

Warriors Snoozing; Bucks Flying High

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Golden State was snoozing while the Milwaukee Bucks were grooving to a 23-point halftime lead Friday night. At the final sneaker squeak, Milwaukee found itself on top 124-91 without hardly working up a sweat to end a short two-game losing string.

There was no denying the Bucks who shot 62 per cent from the floor to pull to a 65-42 halftime advantage. Meanwhile, the Warriors managed only 40 per cent from the field.

Warriors coach Al Attles could tell it would be one of those nights when the Warriors turned the ball over five times in the first five minutes.

Milwaukee extended its 23-point halftime advantage to 32 points at the end of the third period.

Seven Bucks hit in double figures, topped by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 19. He saw only limited action.

Rick Barry of the Warriors led all scorers with 26 points but nobody else on his team could manage over 13. Center Nate Thurmond had 13 and guard Jeff Mullins 12.

TAM, REDWOOD

Marin Cagers' Tourney Wins

Hollis Owens of Tamalpais High School and Mark Kilmer of Redwood — two players who got their chances only because starters on their teams were injured — provided the spark yesterday as the two schools won tournament basketball games.

Owens scored 10 of his 14 points in the fourth quarter as Tam rallied to defeat Lowell of San Francisco, 38-37, in the Crusader Classic at Riordan High in the city, while Kilmer fired in 20 points as Redwood defeated Mission San Jose, of Fremont, 70-58, in the Amador Valley tournament in Pleasanton.

Tamalpais (2-4) trailed at the beginning of the final period, 32-26, but rallied behind Owens to close within one point with 20 seconds left. Then Jared McFerrin followed up a missed Owens shot for the winning bucket.

Owens, a 6-foot-4 junior, was moved from outside to the post to replace Mike Dinehart, another 6-4 junior who has been sidelined with Osgood's-Schlatter's "disease," a growth defect resulting in weakness in the bone shaft of the leg, Tam coach Bernie Schneider said.

Tam will play Balboa of San Francisco today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Redwood (2-3) shot 56 per cent from the field (40 of 71), with guard Kilmer hitting 10 of 13 in relief of Katsumi Johnson, who is missing the tournament with a hand injury requiring 10 stitches. "A good performance for a sophomore," grinned Giant coach Dick Hart.

Redwood set a dubious school record by missing 18 of 22 free throws, but got 10 points and 17 rebounds from Darrell Elder en route to victory. The Giants meet Berkeley today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Also going for a consolation championship is Marin Catholic, which was to meet Oakland High at 3:30 p.m. today in the St. Elizabeth tournament in Oakland.

Jets Vs. Oakland Monday Night

OAKLAND (UPI) — The New York Jets return to the scene of their infamous Heidi fiasco Monday night hoping to avoid a rerun on national television.

In 1967, the Jets were in the running for the championship of the American Football League East title when they dropped a 43-32 thriller to the Raiders. Oakland scored two touchdowns in the final 65 seconds while television turned to the children's show.

Now the Jets are back with quarterback Joe Namath limping through a typical year by hurling 18 touchdown passes to tie San Francisco's Steve Spurrier for the pro lead.

Emerson Boozer will have to be the running workhorse of the Jets because John Riggins, the other starting back, is injured and will miss the game.

The Jets need to win their final two games to have a shot at the wild card playoff berth in the AFC. They are presently 7-5 and battling Cleveland (8-4) and Cincinnati (7-5) for the remaining playoff spot.

Oakland (8-3-1) has clinched its division and a berth in the playoffs.

Drake, Petaluma In Cage Tourney Finale Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Drake High School, which runs the tournament, and Petaluma High, which practically owns it, will meet at 8:15 tonight for the championship of the Drake Pirate Classic at the San Anselmo school.

Each team won frantic semifinal basketball games last night, with the Pirates rallying to defeat Ells of Richmond, 72-68, and Petaluma scrambling to beat Novato, 40-38. The losers will meet for third place tonight at 6:30.

In loser's bracket games yesterday afternoon, San Marin edged Terra Linda, 61-58, and San Rafael drubbed Napa, 56-47. The winners were to meet today for the consolation title at 5 p.m., while the losers were scheduled to collide at 3:30.

Drake has made the finals of its eight-year-old tournament only once, and that in the inaugural year, 1965. The Pirates won then, and are top-seeded now, but Petaluma has won the last two years and has an eight-game winning streak in the tourney.

Drake (5-1) rallied from a 38-30 halftime deficit to defeat Ells (1-2) before a near-capacity crowd of 1,400 fans. Center John Channell collared eight offensive rebounds and converted most into baskets for 18 points to lead all scorers, with Eddie Joe Chavez adding 14 and John (Skipper) Schmitz 10.

Drake did not take the lead for good until Schmitz converted a three-point play with 5:47 left in the game for a 59-58 advantage. Then Channell put in an offensive rebound, Dan Howard sailed in for a controversial layup and Chavez rifled home a long jumper for 65-58.

Just before Howard's basket, Ells' Richard Bailey was called for an offensive foul, his fifth. A buzzer was sounded to stop play so Bailey could be removed from the game, but the officials apparently could not hear it over the crowd noise. Play continued, and Howard scored.

The shooting of Petaluma (2-3) was nowhere near as glamorous as Drake's, but the Trojans showed similar grit in the clutch to upset second-seeded Novato (4-2). The Hornets led late in the third quarter, 29-25, but Petaluma surged for a 39-32 lead which turned out to be enough.

"We were out of the game as far as talent goes, but we controlled the tempo absolutely," said Petaluma coach Mark Reischling who, like Hayward, is a first-year mentor.

Jess Tremblay was the star of the surge with three baskets and a free throw, while Gary Mungle had three free throws.

Novato shot an atrocious 29 per cent from the field (16 of 54) and Petaluma was even worse at 26 per cent (12 of 47). In fact, the Trojans went a full 12 minutes in the second and third quarters without a bucket — and never relinquished the lead during that stretch.

Novato was called for 27 personal fouls to Petaluma's 12, with the predictabe result that

Marin, Sacramento Tonight; Tars Lose

By RON LENT

College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis plans only one change tonight at 8 o'clock when the Tars host Sacramento City.

"We plan to win," he asserted last night after his Tars bowed 85-67 to powerful Laney College of Oakland, in a non-league game in Kentfield.

"Sacramento doesn't run a lot like Laney — and they're not nearly as physical," Panagakis pointed out.

Certainly, the Tar fans would agree with Panagakis' assessment of Laney. Some 700 vociferous spectators looked on as the Eagles (6-0) handed the Tars (5-1) their first loss this season.

Regarding the defeat, Panagakis stressed, "It should serve as a lesson to us. If we don't screen out and rebound, we get killed. And that's what happened to us against Laney."

The Eagles outrebounded Marin 63-34 in controlling the game. Although the Eagles dominated the boards, they couldn't stop Tar star forward Wil Garner. Garner was the contest's top scorer with 24 points. His forward running mate Joe Casteel chipped in 13.

Despite the setback, Panagakis was looking ahead. "I told my players that this was just one non-league game. . . we've got a long way to go."

Off last night's showing, Panagakis is right; the Tars do have a long way to go. Marin led four different times in the first half, but the visitors outrebounded the Tars 33-20 during that span and grabbed a 39-32 advantage at the intermission. This was the first time this season that the Tars trailed at the half.

Enjoying a pronounced rebounding edge, the Eagles utilized a fast break and balanced scoring to throttle the Tars. Forward Tyree Foster and guard Vernon May were the big guns for Laney. They tallied 15 and 11, respectively for the team that finished second in the state tournament last year.

Able Laney reserves Geoffrey McCray and Fred McDonald also contributed mightily to the Tars' demise. McDonald, a 6-foot-9 center, and McCray, a hot-shooting guard, registered 10 and nine points, respectively, while the outcome was still in doubt.

McCray and McDonald did most of their damage in the second half when the Tars were battling to stay in contention. The Tars tied the game at 45-45 on a Garner jumper with 15:58 left, but Johnson promptly responded with a field goal to put the Eagles ahead to stay.

The Tars closed to within one point on three occasions thereafter before Laney pulled away. Laney was ahead, 52-51, when Foster and guard Bruce Fernandez ran off seven unanswered points between them, making it 59-51. Marin fell further behind from that point on as the Eagles hustled and muscled their way to victory.

ROUGH BATTLE — Marin Tars' guard Joe DeMaestri and Laney Eagles' guard Vernon May (10) scrambled for a loose basketball last night in Kentfield during a rugged, non-league contest. The Eagles prevailed, 85-67, in handing the Tars (5-1) their first defeat of the season.

AT CANDLESTICK

No Tomorrow For 49ers, Falcons; Game 'Crucial'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Operating on the theory there may be no tomorrow the San Francisco 49ers and Atlanta Falcons "hang it all out" Sunday in their "crucial" meeting at Candlestick Park.

The Falcons, who haven't won a division title since coming into the National Football League in 1966, go into the test — to be played in unusually cold weather — with the edge in the standings and the possible luxury of playing for a tie. But the oddsmakers are picking the 49ers by six points.

'WORST GAME'

Atlanta, which bowed, 49-14, to San Francisco six games back in what coach Norm Van Brocklin called "the worst game we've ever played," is 7-5 and leads the 49ers and Los Angeles Rams by a half game in the chase for the National Football Conference title. The two California teams are 6-5-1, following Los Angeles' upset 26-16 victory over the 49ers last Monday night.

For San Francisco, it's beat Atlanta or call it a year, which would be a little tough to take for the 49ers, NFC West champs the last two seasons. Atlanta goes into the game also faced with winning, but if the St. Louis Cardinals upset the Rams before the Falcon-49ers tilt, the Falcons could play for a tie if that is easier to accomplish in the waning minutes of a close contest.

FALCONS' FOE

In the event they have to go that route — in order to stay alive — the Falcons then would have to beat the Kansas City Chiefs in their final gmae of the season to win the title.

Steve Spurrier, sabotaged by his receivers in the Los Angeles loss, threw three of his 18 scoring passes in the earlier victory over Altanta. What made that game easy, though, was the running of Larry Schrieber, Ken Willard and Vic Washington. That set up the passing game and Spurrier had little trouble connecting in key situations.

Van Brocklin likes to think that game was not indicative of what his Falcons can do, and he's right. The San Francisco loss was just one of those games where a team starts off with a mistake and never recovers.

NOTHING RIGHT

"We didn't do one thing right except, perhaps, to show up," Van Brocklin says of that game. "We made enough mistakes to take care of us for the year. I don't want to take anything away from the 49ers, though. They were good enough to take advantage and that's always the sign of a good ball club. This time I hope things will be different."

Dick Nolan, about as upset as he could be with the loss to the Rams last Monday — a game in which Spurrier's receivers

Bay Shoreline Night Fishing Approved By State Commission

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — The state Fish and Game Commission Friday approved night fishing from the shoreline of San Francisco Bay, but decided to wait before permitting night fishing from boats, citing safety hazards.

"There's a real chance — even a probability — that if the commission authorizes" nighttime fishing from boats, "a result could be the death of a fisherman or grounding of a large ship, even a repeat of the 1972 oil spill," warned Cmdr. Frank E. Thrall, vessel traffic system chief for the U.S. Coast Guard in San Francisco.

Thrall also expressed concern that inexperienced small craft navigators would confuse a ship's running lights with the skylines of Oakland and San Francisco, and that operators of large ships might have difficulty avoiding smaller craft.

The commission said it will reconsider permitting nighttime fishing from boats next year after evaluating a study now being made by the Coast Guard of ways to minimize hazards.

The commission's action is effective March 1. The waters involved extend from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Carquinez straits, including San Pablo Bay.

In other actions, the commission increased the bag and possession limits for multi-day ocean sport fishing and diving trips to a maximum of three daily limits.

The three-day possession limit was also expanded to include abalone, scallops, spiny lobsters and clams in multi-day trips.

Among other changes, the commission set permanent dates for the opening of trout and salmon fishing seasons, and closed the trout season two weeks earlier in Inyo and Mono counties.

The new multi-day limit takes effect on Jan. 1. Most of the other regulations are effective next March 1 and remain in effect until February, 1974.

Other changes:

—The size limit on green abalone was reduced from 6¼ inches to six inches.

—One white sea bass under minimum size of 28 inches may be taken.

—Night fishing will be permitted in Clair Engle Lake in Trinity County and Evans Lake in Riverside County.

—For Northern California streams, and lakes and streams in Mono and Inyo Counties, the trout and salmon seasons will open the last Saturday in April. For north coast streams, opening was set for the Saturday preceding Memorial Day.

—Seasons will run through Nov. 15, except in Mono and Inyo counties where the season will close Oct. 31.

—Lakes and reservoirs in Alpine County will be open the year around.

—Weight limit on catfish was removed.

—A 40-mile stretch of the Kern River from Johnsondale Bridge to Democrat Dam was opened to all-year fishing.

TAM, REDWOOD

Marin Cagers' Tourney Wins

Hollis Owens of Tamalpais High School and Mark Kilmer of Redwood — two players who got their chances only because starters on their teams were injured — provided the spark yesterday as the two schools won tournament basketball games.

Owens scored 10 of his 14 points in the fourth quarter as Tam rallied to defeat Lowell of San Francisco, 38-37, in the Crusader Classic at Riordan High in the city, while Kilmer fired in 20 points as Redwood defeated Mission San Jose, of Fremont, 70-58, in the Amador Valley tournament in Pleasanton.

Tamalpais (2-4) trailed at the beginning of the final period, 32-26, but rallied behind Owens to close within one point with 20 seconds left. Then Jared McFerrin followed up a missed Owens shot for the winning bucket.

Owens, a 6-foot-4 junior, was moved from outside to the post to replace Mike Dinehart, another 6-4 junior who has been sidelined with Osgood's-Schlatter's "disease," a growth defect resulting in weakness in the bone shaft of the leg, Tam coach Bernie Schneider said.

Tam will play Balboa of San Francisco today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Redwood (2-3) shot 56 per cent from the field (40 of 71), with guard Kilmer hitting 10 of 13 in relief of Katsumi Johnson, who is missing the tournament with a hand injury requiring 10 stitches. "A good performance for a sophomore," grinned Giant coach Dick Hart.

Redwood set a dubious school record by missing 18 of 22 free throws, but got 10 points and 17 rebounds from Darrell Elder en route to victory. The Giants meet Berkeley today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Also going for a consolation championship is Marin Catholic, which was to meet Oakland High at 3:30 p.m. today in the St. Elizabeth tournament in Oakland.

Tomales Five Tops Lick; First Win Of Season

Tomales High School got its first basketball victory of the season in San Francisco last night with a 50-42 non-league win over Lick Wilmerding. The Braves are now 1-2 on the year.

"We did a lot better," Tomales coach James Clahan commented. "We took in a lot of rebounds, but our shooting is still off." The Braves hit a poor 29 per cent of their shots from the field.

Russ Sartori and John Ball were the scoring and rebounding leaders for Tomales with 15 and 13 points, and 12 and 11 rebounds.

Warriors Snoozing; Bucks Flying High

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Golden State was snoozing while the Milwaukee Bucks were grooving to a 23-point halftime lead Friday night. At the final sneaker squeak, Milwaukee found itself on top 124-91 without hardly working up a sweat to end a short two-game losing string.

There was no denying the Bucks who shot 62 per cent from the floor to pull to a 65-42 halftime advantage. Meanwhile, the Warriors managed only 40 per cent from the field.

Warriors coach Al Attles could tell it would be one of those nights when the Warriors turned the ball over five times in the first five minutes.

Milwaukee extended its 23-point halftime advantage to 32 points at the end of the third period.

Seven Bucks hit in double figures, topped by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 19. He saw only limited action.

Rick Barry of the Warriors led all scorers with 26 points but nobody else on his team could manage over 13. Center Nate Thurmond had 13 and guard Jeff Mullins 12.

Golden State plays Sunday night against the Cavaliers in Cleveland.

NBA ROUNDUP

Petrie, Wicks Star, Sans Cast

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If pro basketball's rules were altered and National Basketball Association clubs were allowed to start only two players, the lowly Portland Trail Blazers would likely become a contender.

Portland's Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks are first-rate start playing with a poor supporting cast. Such was in evidence last night as Portland fell to Houston, 114-108.

Houston survived a second-half scoring spree by Portland's Petrie and Wicks to beat the Trail Blazers. Petrie led all scorers with 34. Wicks had 29 and Jimmy Walker topped Houston with 24.

Elsewhere, Boston downed Cleveland 96-87, Buffalo edged New York 91-89, Atlanta drubbed Baltimore 134-115 and moved past the Bullets atop the Central Division, Los Angeles crushed Seattle 119-100, Detroit beat Kansas City-Omaha 113-100, Chicago whipped Philadelphia 118-102 and Milwaukee slaughtered, Golden State, 124-91.

In the American Basketball Association, it was New York 126, Virginia 124; Carolina 107, Denver 104; Kentucky 121, Indiana 114; Memphis 109, Dallas 108 and Utah 128, San Diego 95.

Bob Love came off Chicago's bench in the second period, hit seven straight shots and finished with 30 points to lead the Bulls past the hapless 76ers, whose Fred Carter took scoring honors with 31.

Dave Cowen's 25 points and 18 rebounds helped Boston turn back Cleveland and take a one-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division. Boston's Jo Jo White and Cleveland's Austin Carr each scored 22 points.

Buffalo, which has lost all six starts against the Knicks in New York over the years, beat them for the fourth time in six home meetings.

Dick Garrett was the Braves' high scorer with 21 points while the Smith boys, Elmore and Randy, tallied 18 apiece and Elmore also pulled down 22 rebounds. Walt Frazier was high for New York with 26 points.

Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson combined for 71 points as Atlanta walloped Baltimore and sneaked past the Bullets by one-half game. Pistol Pete gunned in 34 points while Hudson had 31.

Los Angeles used a balanced attack — Happy Hairston's 28 points, Gail Goodrich's 22, Keith Erickson's 21 and Jim McMillian's 18— to rip Seattle and run their perfect home record against the not-so-Super-Sonics to 17-0.

Detroit tied a club record with its sixth consecutive home triumph as Bob Lanier and Dave Bing led a fourth-period surge that turned back KC-Omaha. Lanier finished with 37 points and 21 rebounds while Bing had 27 points and 13 assists.

Baccei's 759 Series Is Top Score Of Week

This carpenter can apparently hammer pins as well as nails.

San Rafael carpenter Ron Baccei demonstrated excellent skill in hammering pins Wednesday night when he bowled an outstanding 759 series at Greenbrae Lanes. Bowling in the Merry Mixers League, he notched games of 248, 267 and 244.

His efforts easily capped the week's bowling output in Marin County.

COUNTRY CLUB BOWL in San Rafael reported that Jerry Cohl converted the difficult 7-10 split in TGIF League competition last Friday night. Country Club Bowl desk gal Barbara Henderson claimed it was the first such conversion there that she could recall.

JUNIORS Perry Litchfield and Ken Aeschlimann showed fine potential with good achievements this week at Country Club Bowl. Pitchfield rolled a 660 series last Saturday in the juniors league, while Aeschlimann turned in his first 600. Ken broke that barrier with a 613 Wednesday night in the Adult Juniors League.

SIBLING RIVALRY. Brothers Jerry and Larry Walker of Larkspur put on quite a show last Saturday at Greenbrae Lanes. Larry had a 635 and Jerry a 632 in the Greenbrae Juniors League last Saturday morning. Larry is 15 and Jerry is 17.

SOME 50 ENTRANTS have been penciled in for the "200" Classic Tournament at Nave Lanes Sunday, 11 a.m. with a few more late entries expected.

The tourney is open to Nave league bowlers who rolled games of 200 or better between September and Dec. 8, this year. Signups will be taken at Nave Lanes until Sunday, 10:30 a.m. Participants will bowl three games, total pins plus handicap determining the winner.

"It's down to simple mathematics, so we know what we have to do," he added. "Now, the point is-can we do the job?"

Nolan, to hardly no one's surprise, has picked Spurrier, now 4-2-1 since taking over for the injured John Brodie, to start at quarterback against the Falcons.

There had been speculation that Brodie might get the start since he has recovered from an ankle injury and has looked sharp in practice drills.

"Spurrier is my man," Nolan said of the quarterback situation, and then added that he wouldn't hesitate to replace him with Brodie if Steve fails to move the club.

SPURRIER

Against the Rams, Spurrier threw the ball 46 times and completed 27 passes. His two touchdown tosses tied him with Joe Namath of the New York Jets for the most this year in the NFL — 18. Namath accomplished his total, thought, while playing in 12 games — five more than Spurrier.

Kickoff for Sunday's game is 1 p.m. with the usual Candlestick Park sellout of 61,000 anticipated. The game will be televised back to the Falcons' home territory.

West German Gal Wins Big Ski Cup Race

VAL D' ISERE France (UPI) — Sixteen-year-old Pamela Behr of West Germany more than matched her father's expectations today by winning a World Cup special slalom ski race in front of the elite of the international circuits.

Her father, Sepp Behr, used to be the German national ski team coach.

Pamela with her victory shared an early lead in World Cup standings with famed Annemarie Proell of Austria, two times cup-winner and winner of the first race this season, Thursday's downhill fighting against a blizzard.

Pamela was joined in top placings by two young French girls in their first World Cup year Odile Chalvin, who finished second and Patricia Emonet, 16 who was third.

Miss Emonet, in fact, had the fastest time in the first of the two runs but was two seconds slower than Miss Behr in the second. The blizzard and poor visibility seemed to worry the new young stars less than the 'veterans' of 20 years old or so. Many of the favorites fell or missed gates.

With four placings in the top 10, the French girls took part revenge over their Austrian rivals who completely dominated the downhill with seven in the first nine.

Today's heavy snow after such warm weather Friday that the snow began to disappear — disrupted preparations for Sundays mens downhill, last of the "Criterium of the First Snow" ski meet here.

The non-stop had to be cancelled in the morning and officials said the race may have to be held Monday.

Annemarie Proell fell in the second run while her big French rival, Jacqueline Rouvier, could manage no better than 19th place.

Britt Lafforgue, the French favorite, finished 12th.

Danielle Debernard, another French hope this year, finished fourth while Monika Kaserer saved Austria's honor with a fifth place. But she was the only Austrian girl in the top ten.

Other leaders were: 6. Judy Crawford, Canada. 7. Toril Forland Norway 8. Hanni Wenzel, Liechtenstein. 9. Christine Rolland, France. 10. Christa Zechmeister, West Germany.

SEALS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, who managed to both blow a game and save it in their last outing, will have to be at their best this weekend.

They move into Montreal tonight and Boston Sunday. Montreal needs a win to stay ahead of Boston, and Boston needs a win to stay near Montreal.

California saw a 3-1 lead vanish late in the going against Pittsburgh Wednesday to fall behind 4-3. But then newcomer Darryl Maggs had a last-gasp goal and the Seals settled for a 4-4 tie.

BUNNY AND THE CHAMP

Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier compared his rope skipping techniques with those of a Playboy Club bunny during a training camp lull in McAfee, N.J. Thursday. Frazier was training at the Playboy Club for his Jan. 22 title defense against challenger George Foreman of Hayward in Kingston, Jamaica. In explaining his preference for this training camp locale, Frazier said: "The girls make it comfortable for me here." (UPI Telephoto)

Kuhn's Rebuff For Miller's Accusations

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn denied Friday that he had acted in bad faith during the recent baseball meetings in Hawaii by disclosing the owners' side of the current negotiations between the clubs and the Players Association. Marvin Miller, executive director of the association, accused the commissioner on Thursday of breaking a "gentleman's agreement" not to disclose information on the progress of the talks.

Kuhn said, "I have been assured by Joe Cronin, American League president, Chub Feeney, president of the National League and John Gaherin, the clubs' negotiator, that there was no such agreement or understanding.

"In announcing the clubs' proposal at the Hawaiian meetings on Nov. 29, I commended the players and clubs for their diligent efforts to find a solution and stated that it was clear that the attitude on both sides was constructive," continued Kuhn. "I stated that I was and I continued to be hopeful that a solution would be found.

"Mister Miller expressed himself as anxious to resume negotiations and I urge the association and the clubs to meet promptly and to continue in a determined effort to conclude an agreement at the earliest possible time."

CINCINNATI — Doctors said that Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was to enter Christ Hospital today and undergo surgery Monday to remove a spot from his lung.

Team physician Dr. George Ballou said additional tests on the National League's Most Valuable Player were completed Friday and "no new additional diagnosis has been made."

Ballou said that after consultation with Dr. Luis Gonzalez, the local surgeon who will perform the operation, it was decided to put Bench in the hospital today to prepare for surgery.

Gonzalez had indicated earlier in the week that the spot could be either a benign lesion or possibly a fungus, but no malignancy was indicated in the diagnosis.

the Trojans got 31 free throws. They made just 14, but Novato was only 4 of 9, missing four straight clutch shots near the end.

San Rafael (3-2) unveiled a suffocating defense which held Napa (0-5) to nine field goals. Forward Guy Perry played an outstanding game for the Bulldogs, scoring 16 points, capturing 17 rebounds and holding Napa star Drew Aguilar to seven points. The game was not as close as the final score makes it seem — San Rafael led after three quarters, 50-29.

San Marin (4-1) got 19 points from Larry Butti and 16 from Fred Doar, but needed a bucket from Hoza Wright with 1:49 left to finally take the lead in its see-saw game with Terra Linda (3-3). Mark Lowey scored 16 and Nick Mattos 15 for the Trojans.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Long Beach Wins; Cable Car Title Game Tonight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Long Beach State 49ers go panning for prize daffodils tonight, but a bunch of pesky loggers want to jump their claim.

Long Beach's nationally sixth-rated cagers flattened Portland State 102-66 Friday night in the first round of the Daffodil Classic at Tacoma, but tonight's finals won't be so easy.

They'll have to contend with the Puget Sound Loggers, who are trying for number one in the small college ranks just as the 49ers are in the big time. The Loggers, playing on their home turf, showed they were ready with a 67-44 crushing of Montana.

The University of Washington finds itself in a similar situation. The Huskies looked like the Pacific Seven's best (UCLA is in a league by itself) with a 68-56 win over Seattle.

The Huskies, 4-0, have to battle unbeaten Seattle Pacific, another small college terror, tonight.

In other tourney action, USF survived a furious LaSalle comeback to win 72-71 behind Phil Smith's 20 points. The Dons will battle Duke in the finals tonight of the Cable Car Classic at Oakland. Duke edged Santa Clara in a mild 69-65 upset.

California got 23 points and a dozen rebounds from its fine forward, John Coughran, to take Nebraska 75-50 at the Mountaineer Classic at Morgantown, W.Va. The Bears battle host West Virginia tonight.

Washington State finally won under new coach George Raveling with a 74-65 triumph over San Jose State.

Three Far Western Conference teams had surprisingly good nights, considering that the conference in the past has not made much of a splash in the cage swim.

Sacramento State took the 77-65 verdict at Idaho behind a 25-point burst by Bruce Green. Chico State meanwhile roared 114-67 at Oregon Tech and Marvin Buckley's 27 points led Nevada Reno to an 84-80 win at Fresno State.

There were record and near record performances elsewhere. Pinky Smith's school record 40 points led San Diego University past Southern California College 93-56. Raymond Lewis tied a 22-year-old record by scoring 28 points in the first half and his game total of 40 led Los Angeles State past San Francisco State 101-79. Other scores: Westmont 78

Hayward State 62, Pasadena 69 Redlands 59, Azusa 74 Pomona-Pitzer 63, Cal Baptist 87 Claremont 66, Western Washington 78 Eastern Montana 72, Hawaii 87 Pacific Lutheran 62, Cal State Sonoma 76 Eastern Oregon 69, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 99 Cal Lutheran 84, Dixie (Utah) 81 Imperial Valley 68.

Sonoma Ties 2-Year Total For Victories

California State College, Sonoma, equalled its basketball victory output of the past two years last night in San Luis Obispo with a 76-69 win over Eastern Oregon College in the opening game of the Cal Poly Tournament.

Tonight the Cossacks, who are now 3-0 for the year, will meet the winner of last night's game between Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, and Cal Lutheran for the championship.

"We should have won by 30 points," according to Joel Spear, Sonoma sports information director. "We just got sloppy. We're not pleased with the game, but it's win number three, and that's what counts."

The Cossacks had built up a 19-point lead with less than eight minutes left to play when Eastern Oregon rallied to cut the lead to five points with two minutes left in the game; but baskets by Steve Tiedeman and Dan Heien put the Cossacks comfortably ahead.

Tiedeman and Heien were the scoring leaders for the game with 28 and 16 points. Overall it was a fair shooting performance for Sonoma as it hit 44 per cent of its field goal attempts and 75 per cent from the line.

Cal State, Sonoma 38 41 — 79
Eastern Oregon 31 38 — 69

Cal State, Sonoma — Heien 8-0-16, Mason 1-0-4, Tiedeman 14-0-28, Belander 4-1-9, Schandelmier 4-1-9, Johnson 3-7-13. Totals: 35-9-79.

Eastern Oregon — Isbell 6-0-12, Archer 4-0-8, Line 1-0-2, Nutt 0-1-1, Fryback 1-0-2, McGladry 3-0-6, McKay 3-0-6, Townsend 6-1-13, Easter 5-0-10, McClary 4-1-9. Totals: 33-3-69.

Rancho Cotate Tops Petaluma In Wrestling

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park yesterday beat Petaluma High's wrestling team for the second time this week 52-7.

The results:

Fan Loses Ticket Suit Versus NFL

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. District Court judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. yesterday granted a summary judgment in favor of the National Football League and Commissioner Pete Rozelle in a class action suit involving ticket sales to professional football games.

The suit, similar to 22 others against eight professional sports teams, was brought by Leo T. Pfieffer, naming the New England Patriots as well as the NFL and Rozelle.

Pfieffer asked triple damages totalling $15 million from the three parties.

The Patriots won a summary judgment in their case from Garrity November 6.

In the suit, Pfieffer argued against the package sale of tickets to Patriot football games. He said tickets should be sold on a game-by-game basis.

The Patriots, like most professional football teams, sell tickets in packages which include preseason exhibition games.

Similar suits are pending against the Buffalo Bills, Minnesota Vikings, Detroit Lions, Dallas Cowboys, New Orleans Saints and San Francisco 49ers of the NFL; the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association.

Steelers May Lose 'Nice Guy' Image

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 39 seasons the Pittsburgh Steelers have been sort of like the "nice guys" of the National Football League. Not that they've always finished last. But they've never finished first.

Tomorrow — and with a little bit of help from Cincinnati today — the Steelers can finally achieve that goal, a championship, mainly the American Football Conference Central Division crown. Pittsburgh has to beat Houston and the Bengals have to defeat Cleveland to make the Steeler dream come true.

Then there's Green Bay, hardly a stranger to championships but a preseason pick this year to be a bystander to the National Football Conference Central brawl between Minnesota and Detroit.

The Packers, at 8-4, hold a one-game lead over the Vikings and Lions. But, unlike the Steelers and Falcons, Green Bay needs no help to clinch its division. A victory over Minnesota will wrap it up. Even if the Packers and Lions finish tied for the lead at the end of the season, Green Bay would get the title by virtue of its two victories over Detroit.

In today's other game, the Dallas Cowboys, needing a victory to lock up the NFC "wild card" berth, host the Washington Redskins.

Sunday's other games have Miami against the Giants in New York, Detroit at Buffalo, Chicago at Philadelphia, San Diego at Denver, Baltimore at Kansas City and New England at New Orleans. And on Monday night, the New York Jets face the Raiders in Oakland.

Cleveland is still in the AFC Central championship race but even a loss wouldn't be fatal, since they'd still have a shot at the conference wild card slot.

Miami, by winning, would not only knock the Giants out of playoff contention but would become the fifth team in NFL history to win 13 games in a season.

What it all comes down to is that, going into this next-to-last week of regular-season play, 15 of the league's 26 teams are still in the chase for Super Bowl VII. Washington, Miami and Oakland have wrapped up divisional championships, but for the remaining 12, it's still a scramble for the remaining five playoff berths.

NBA ROUNDUP

Petrie, Wicks Star, Sans Cast

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If pro basketball's rules were altered and National Basketball Association clubs were allowed to start only two players, the lowly Portland Trail Blazers would likely become a contender.

Portland's Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks are first-rate start playing with a poor supporting cast. Such was in evidence last night as Portland fell to Houston, 114-108.

Houston survived a second-half scoring spree by Portland's Petrie and Wicks to beat the Trail Blazers. Petrie led all scorers with 34. Wicks had 29 and Jimmy Walker topped Houston with 24.

Elsewhere, Boston downed Cleveland 96-87, Buffalo edged New York 91-89, Atlanta drubbed Baltimore 134-115 and moved past the Bullets atop the Central Division, Los Angeles crushed Seattle 119-100, Detroit beat Kansas City-Omaha 113-100, Chicago whipped Philadelphia 118-102 and Milwaukee slaughtered, Golden State, 124-91.

In the American Basketball Association, it was New York 126, Virginia 124; Carolina 107, Denver 104; Kentucky 121, Indiana 114; Memphis 109, Dallas 108 and Utah 128, San Diego 95.

Bob Love came off Chicago's bench in the second period, hit seven straight shots and finished with 30 points to lead the Bulls past the hapless 76ers, whose Fred Carter took scoring honors with 31.

Dave Cowen's 25 points and 18 rebounds helped Boston turn back Cleveland and take a one-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division. Boston's Jo Jo White and Cleveland's Austin Carr each scored 22 points.

Buffalo, which has lost all six starts against the Knicks in New York over the years, beat them for the fourth time in six home meetings.

Dick Garrett was the Braves' high scorer with 21 points while the Smith boys, Elmore and Randy, tallied 18 apiece and Elmore also pulled down 22 rebounds. Walt Frazier was high for New York with 26 points.

Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson combined for 71 points as Atlanta walloped Baltimore and sneaked past the Bullets by one-half game. Pistol Pete gunned in 34 points while Hudson had 31.

Los Angeles used a balanced attack — Happy Hairston's 28 points, Gail Goodrich's 22, Keith Erickson's 21 and Jim McMillian's 18— to rip Seattle and run their perfect home record against the not-so-Super-Sonics to 17-0.

Detroit tied a club record with its sixth consecutive home triumph as Bob Lanier and Dave Bing led a fourth-period surge that turned back KC-Omaha. Lanier finished with 37 points and 21 rebounds while Bing had 27 points and 13 assists.

MARIN BOWLING

Baccei's 759 Series Is Top Score Of Week

This carpenter can apparently hammer pins as well as nails.

San Rafael carpenter Ron Baccei demonstrated excellent skill in hammering pins Wednesday night when he bowled an outstanding 759 series at Greenbrae Lanes. Bowling in the Merry Mixers League, he notched games of 248, 267 and 244.

His efforts easily capped the week's bowling output in Marin County.

COUNTRY CLUB BOWL in San Rafael reported that Jerry Cohl converted the difficult 7-10 split in TGIF League competition last Friday night. Country Club Bowl desk gal Barbara Henderson claimed it was the first such conversion there that she could recall.

JUNIORS Perry Litchfield and Ken Aeschlimann showed fine potential with good achievements this week at Country Club Bowl. Pitchfield rolled a 660 series last Saturday in the juniors league, while Aeschlimann turned in his first 600. Ken broke that barrier with a 613 Wednesday night in the Adult Juniors League.

SIBLING RIVALRY. Brothers Jerry and Larry Walker of Larkspur put on quite a show last Saturday at Greenbrae Lanes. Larry had a 635 and Jerry a 632 in the Greenbrae Juniors League last Saturday morning. Larry is 15 and Jerry is 17.

SOME 50 ENTRANTS have been penciled in for the "200" Classic Tournament at Nave Lanes Sunday, 11 a.m. with a few more late entries expected.

The tourney is open to Nave league bowlers who rolled games of 200 or better between September and Dec. 8, this year. Signups will be taken at Nave Lanes until Sunday, 10:30 a.m. Participants will bowl three games, total pins plus handicap determining the winner.

dropped six passes they should have held onto — says simply "we have to beat Atlanta and then Minnesota next week and hope someone knocks off the Rams."

"It's down to simple mathematics, so we know what we have to do," he added. "Now, the point is—can we do the job?"

Nolan, to hardly no one's surprise, has picked Spurrier, now 4-2-1 since taking over for the injured John Brodie, to start at quarterback against the Falcons.

There had been speculation that Brodie might get the start since he has recovered from an ankle injury and has looked sharp in practice drills.

"Spurrier is my man," Nolan said of the quarterback situation, and then added that he wouldn't hesitate to replace him with Brodie if Steve fails to move the club.

SPURRIER

Against the Rams, Spurrier threw the ball 46 times and completed 27 passes. His two touchdown tosses tied him with Joe Namath of the New York Jets for the most this year in the NFL — 18. Namath accomplished his total, thought, while playing in 12 games — five more than Spurrier.

Kickoff for Sunday's game is 1 p.m. with the usual Candlestick Park sellout of 61,000 anticipated. The game will be televised back to the Falcons' home territory.

Redwood and Terra Linda high schools split a pair of non-league basketball games yesterday, with the Trojan junior varsity (6-0) beating the Giants, 48-41, behind a 12-point effort by Doug Carlisle, and the Giant freshmen (3-0) swamping the Trojans, 44-24, as Bill Peters scored 11.

West German Gal Wins Big Ski Cup Race

VAL D' ISERE France (UPI) — Sixteen-year-old Pamela Behr of West Germany more than matched her father's expectations today by winning a World Cup special slalom ski race in front of the elite of the international circuits.

Her father, Sepp Behr, used to be the German national ski team coach.

Pamela with her victory shared an early lead in World Cup standings with famed Annemarie Proell of Austria, two times cup-winner and winner of the first race this season, Thursday's downhill fighting against a blizzard.

Pamela was joined in top placings by two young French girls in their first World Cup year Odile Chalvin, who finished second and Patricia Emonet, 16 who was third.

Miss Emonet, in fact, had the fastest time in the first of the two runs but was two seconds slower than Miss Behr in the second. The blizzard and poor visibility seemed to worry the new young stars less than the 'veterans' of 20 years old or so. Many of the favorites fell or missed gates.

With four placings in the top 10, the French girls took part revenge over their Austrian rivals who completely dominated the downhill with seven in the first nine.

Today's heavy snow after such warm weather Friday that the snow began to disappear — disrupted preparations for Sundays mens downhill, last of the "Criterium of the First Snow" ski meet here.

The non-stop had to be cancelled in the morning and officials said the race may have to be held Monday.

Annemarie Proell fell in the second run while her big French rival, Jacqueline Rouvier, could manage no better than 19th place.

Britt Lafforgue, the French favorite, finished 12th.

Danielle Debernard, another French hope this year, finished fourth while Monika Kaserer saved Austria's honor with a fifth place. But she was the only Austrian girl in the top ten.

Other leaders were: 6. Judy Crawford, Canada. 7. Toril Forland Norway 8. Hanni Wenzel, Liechtenstein. 9. Christine Rolland, France. 10. Christa Zechmeister, West Germany.

SEALS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, who managed to both blow a game and save it in their last outing, will have to be at their best this weekend.

They move into Montreal tonight and Boston Sunday. Montreal needs a win to stay ahead of Boston, and Boston needs a win to stay near Montreal.

California saw a 3-1 lead vanish late in the going against Pittsburgh Wednesday to fall behind 4-3. But then newcomer Darryl Maggs had a last-gasp goal and the Seals settled for a 4-4 tie.

BUNNY AND THE CHAMP

Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier compared his rope skipping techniques with those of a Playboy Club bunny during a training camp lull in McAfee, N.J. Thursday. Frazier was training at the Playboy Club for his Jan. 22 title defense against challenger George Foreman of Hayward in Kingston, Jamaica. In explaining his preference for this training camp locale, Frazier said: "The girls make it comfortable for me here." (UPI Telephoto)

Kuhn's Rebuff For Miller's Accusations

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn denied Friday that he had acted in bad faith during the recent baseball meetings in Hawaii by disclosing the owners' side of the current negotiations between the clubs and the Players Association. Marvin Miller, executive director of the association, accused the commissioner on Thursday of breaking a "gentleman's agreement" not to disclose information on the progress of the talks.

Kuhn said, "I have been assured by Joe Cronin, American League president, Chub Feeney, president of the National League and John Gaherin, the clubs' negotiator, that there was no such agreement or understanding.

"In announcing the clubs' proposal at the Hawaiian meetings on Nov. 29, I commended the players and clubs for their diligent efforts to find a solution and stated that it was clear that the attitude on both sides was constructive," continued Kuhn. "I stated that I was and I continued to be hopeful that a solution would be found.

"Mister Miller expressed himself as anxious to resume negotiations and I urge the association and the clubs to meet promptly and to continue in a determined effort to conclude an agreement at the earliest possible time."

CINCINNATI — Doctors said that Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was to enter Christ Hospital today and undergo surgery Monday to remove a spot from his lung.

Team physician Dr. George Ballou said additional tests on the National League's Most Valuable Player were completed Friday and "no new additional diagnosis has been made."

Ballou said that after consultation with Dr. Luis Gonzalez, the local surgeon who will perform the operation, it was decided to put Bench in the hospital today to prepare for surgery.

Gonzalez had indicated earlier in the week that the spot could be either a benign lesion or possibly a fungus, but no malignancy was indicated in the diagnosis.

PEBBLE BEACH — Defending champion Barbara Handley of nearby Carmel Valley defeated Debbie Meisterlin, 19-year-old college co-ed, 8 and 6, and Linda Maurer of Turlock ousted 17-year-old Laura Baugh of Long Beach, 1 up, Friday in the semi-finals of the California State Women's Amateur Golf championship.

the Trojans got 31 free throws. They made just 14, but Novato was only 4 of 9, missing four straight clutch shots near the end.

San Rafael (3-2) unveiled a suffocating defense which held Napa (0-5) to nine field goals. Forward Guy Perry played an outstanding game for the Bulldogs, scoring 16 points, capturing 17 rebounds and holding Napa star Drew Aguilar to seven points. The game was not as close as the final score makes it seem — San Rafael led after three quarters, 50-29.

San Marin (4-1) got 19 points from Larry Butti and 16 from Fred Doar, but needed a bucket from Hoza Wright with 1:49 left to finally take the lead in its see-saw game with Terra Linda (3-3). Mark Lowey scored 16 and Nick Mattos 15 for the Trojans.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Long Beach Wins; Cable Car Title Game Tonight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Long Beach State 49ers go panning for prize daffodils tonight, but a bunch of pesky loggers want to jump their claim.

Long Beach's nationally sixth-rated cagers flattened Portland State 102-66 Friday night in the first round of the Daffodil Classic at Tacoma, but tonight's finals won't be so easy.

They'll have to contend with the Puget Sound Loggers, who are trying for number one in the small college ranks just as the 49ers are in the big time. The Loggers, playing on their home turf, showed they were ready with a 67-44 crushing of Montana.

The University of Washington finds itself in a similar situation. The Huskies looked like the Pacific Seven's best (UCLA is in a league by itself) with a 68-56 win over Seattle.

The Huskies, 4-0, have to battle unbeaten Seattle Pacific, another small college terror, tonight.

In other tourney action, USF survived a furious LaSalle comeback to win 72-71 behind Phil Smith's 20 points. The Dons will battle Duke in the finals tonight of the Cable Car Classic at Oakland. Duke edged Santa Clara in a mild 69-65 upset.

California got 23 points and a dozen rebounds from its fine forward, John Coughran, to take Nebraska 75-50 at the Mountaineer Classic at Morgantown, W.Va. The Bears battle host West Virginia tonight.

Washington State finally won under new coach George Raveling with a 74-65 triumph over San Jose State.

Three Far Western Conference teams had surprisingly good nights, considering that the conference in the past has not made much of a splash in the cage swim.

Sacramento State took the 77-65 verdict at Idaho behind a 25-point burst by Bruce Green. Chico State meanwhile roared 114-67 at Oregon Tech and Marvin Buckley's 27 points led Nevada Reno to an 84-80 win at Fresno State.

There were record and near record performances elsewhere. Pinky Smith's school record 40 points led San Diego University past Southern California College 93-56. Raymond Lewis tied a 22-year-old record by scoring 28 points in the first half and his game total of 40 led Los Angeles State past San Francisco State 101-79. Other scores: Westmont 78

Hayward State 62, Pasadena 69 Redlands 59, Azusa 74 Pomona-Pitzer 63, Cal Baptist 87 Claremont 66, Western Washington 78 Eastern Montana 72, Hawaii 87 Pacific Lutheran 62, Cal State Sonoma 76 Eastern Oregon 69, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 99 Cal Lutheran 84, Dixie (Utah) 81 Imperial Valley 68.

Sonoma Ties 2-Year Total For Victories

California State College, Sonoma, equalled its basketball victory output of the past two years last night in San Luis Obispo with a 76-69 win over Eastern Oregon College in the opening game of the Cal Poly Tournament.

Tonight the Cossacks, who are now 3-0 for the year, will meet the winner of last night's game between Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, and Cal Lutheran for the championship.

"We should have won by 30 points," according to Joel Spear, Sonoma sports information director. "We just got sloppy. We're not pleased with the game, but it's win number three, and that's what counts."

The Cossacks had built up a 19-point lead with less than eight minutes left to play when Eastern Oregon rallied to cut the lead to five points with two minutes left in the game; but baskets by Steve Tiedeman and Dan Heien put the Cossacks comfortably ahead.

Tiedeman and Heien were the scoring leaders for the game with 28 and 16 points. Overall it was a fair shooting performance for Sonoma as it hit 44 per cent of its field goal attempts and 75 per cent from the line.

Cal State, Sonoma 38 41 — 79
Eastern Oregon 31 38 — 69

Cal State, Sonoma — Heien 8-0-16, Mason 1-0-4, Tiedeman 14-0-28, Belander 4-1-9, Schandelmier 4-1-9, Johnson 3-7-13. Totals: 35-9-79.

Eastern Oregon — Isbell 6-0-12, Archer 4-0-8, Line 1-0-2, Nutt 0-1-1, Fryback 1-0-2, McGladry 3-0-6, McKay 3-0-6, Townsend 6-1-13, Easter 5-0-10, McClary 4-1-9. Totals: 33-3-69.

Rancho Cotate Tops Petaluma In Wrestling

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park yesterday beat Petaluma High's wrestling team for the second time this week 52-7.

Fan Loses Ticket Suit Versus NFL

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. District Court judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. yesterday granted a summary judgment in favor of the National Football League and Commissioner Pete Rozelle in a class action suit involving ticket sales to professional football games.

The suit, similar to 22 others against eight professional sports teams, was brought by Leo T. Pfieffer, naming the New England Patriots as well as the NFL and Rozelle.

Pfieffer asked triple damages totalling $15 million from the three parties.

The Patriots won a summary judgment in their case from Garrity November 6.

In the suit, Pfieffer argued against the package sale of tickets to Patriot football games. He said tickets should be sold on a game-by-game basis.

The Patriots, like most professional football teams, sell tickets in packages which include preseason exhibition games.

Similar suits are pending against the Buffalo Bills, Minnesota Vikings, Detroit Lions, Dallas Cowboys, New Orleans Saints and San Francisco 49ers of the NFL; the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association.

Steelers May Lose 'Nice Guy' Image

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 39 seasons the Pittsburgh Steelers have been sort of like the "nice guys" of the National Football League. Not that they've always finished last. But they've never finished first.

Tomorrow — and with a little bit of help from Cincinnati today — the Steelers can finally achieve that goal, a championship, mainly the American Football Conference Central Division crown. Pittsburgh has to beat Houston and the Bengals have to defeat Cleveland to make the Steeler dream come true.

Then there's Green Bay, hardly a stranger to championships but a preseason pick this year to be a bystander to the National Football Conference Central brawl between Minnesota and Detroit.

The Packers, at 8-4, hold a one-game lead over the Vikings and Lions. But, unlike the Steelers and Falcons, Green Bay needs no help to clinch its division. A victory over Minnesota will wrap it up. Even if the Packers and Lions finish tied for the lead at the end of the season, Green Bay would get the title by virtue of its two victories over Detroit.

In today's other game, the Dallas Cowboys, needing a victory to lock up the NFC "wild card" berth, host the Washington Redskins.

Sunday's other games have Miami against the Giants in New York, Detroit at Buffalo, Chicago at Philadelphia, San Diego at Denver, Baltimore at Kansas City and New England at New Orleans. And on Monday night, the New York Jets face the Raiders in Oakland.

Cleveland is still in the AFC Central championship race but even a loss wouldn't be fatal, since they'd still have a shot at the conference wild card slot.

Miami, by winning, would not only knock the Giants out of playoff contention but would become the fifth team in NFL history to win 13 games in a season.

What it all comes down to is that, going into this next-to-last week of regular-season play, 15 of the league's 26 teams are still in the chase for Super Bowl VII. Washington, Miami and Oakland have wrapped up divisional championships, but for the remaining 12, it's still a scramble for the remaining five playoff berths.

ART REVIEW

Cuban-Born Artist Has Style

By ADA GARFINKEL

It is only rarely that an artist is born with the mature, natural drawing talent of Eduardo Arderi, whose one-man show of 38 drawings and prints are currently on view at the Aragorn Gallery in Larkspur.

The 28-year-old Cuban-born artist started to draw fluently at age 5. He drew consistently for two years, greatly influenced by the strong Afro-Cuban and South American Indian cultures, and the lush vegetation of his environment.

Then came a 20-year hiatus during which Arderi did no drawing at all. This was due in part to the political upheaval, and because his parents wanted him to become a physician — and in Cuban families one does what the parents want.

However, in the hectic period of 1964, straining at the lack of personal expression, young Arderi left college in Havana and departed for Jamaica. Here he applied for and received a visa to stay with some Cuban countrymen in New Jersey, where he got a job in a handbag factory and studied English in the evenings in a nearby high school. In return, he had to serve two years in the American Army, from which he came out a sergeant.

Although still at sea about himself and his own directions, he was by this time more fluent in his adopted language and for the first time he met American friends — artists and writers. Suddenly, in 1968, he seems to have found himself. He began to draw again with an incredible production and soon had his first one-man show.

The drawings were all in black and white. The financial success of the show enabled Arderi to come to California to savor the warmer climate he desired. Landing in Marin was pure chance — a friend of a friend lived in Corte Madera. Arderi had no idea how fertile Marin is, either artistically or naturally. And it is only since his arrival in this area that color has come into his work.

Arderi's early Afro-Cuban and Indian influences are still very strong in his work. He uses only fine-line pens with which he constructs his sinuously flowing arabesques, stylized foliage, sea-shells and underwater life, philosophical concepts, and visual memorabilia.

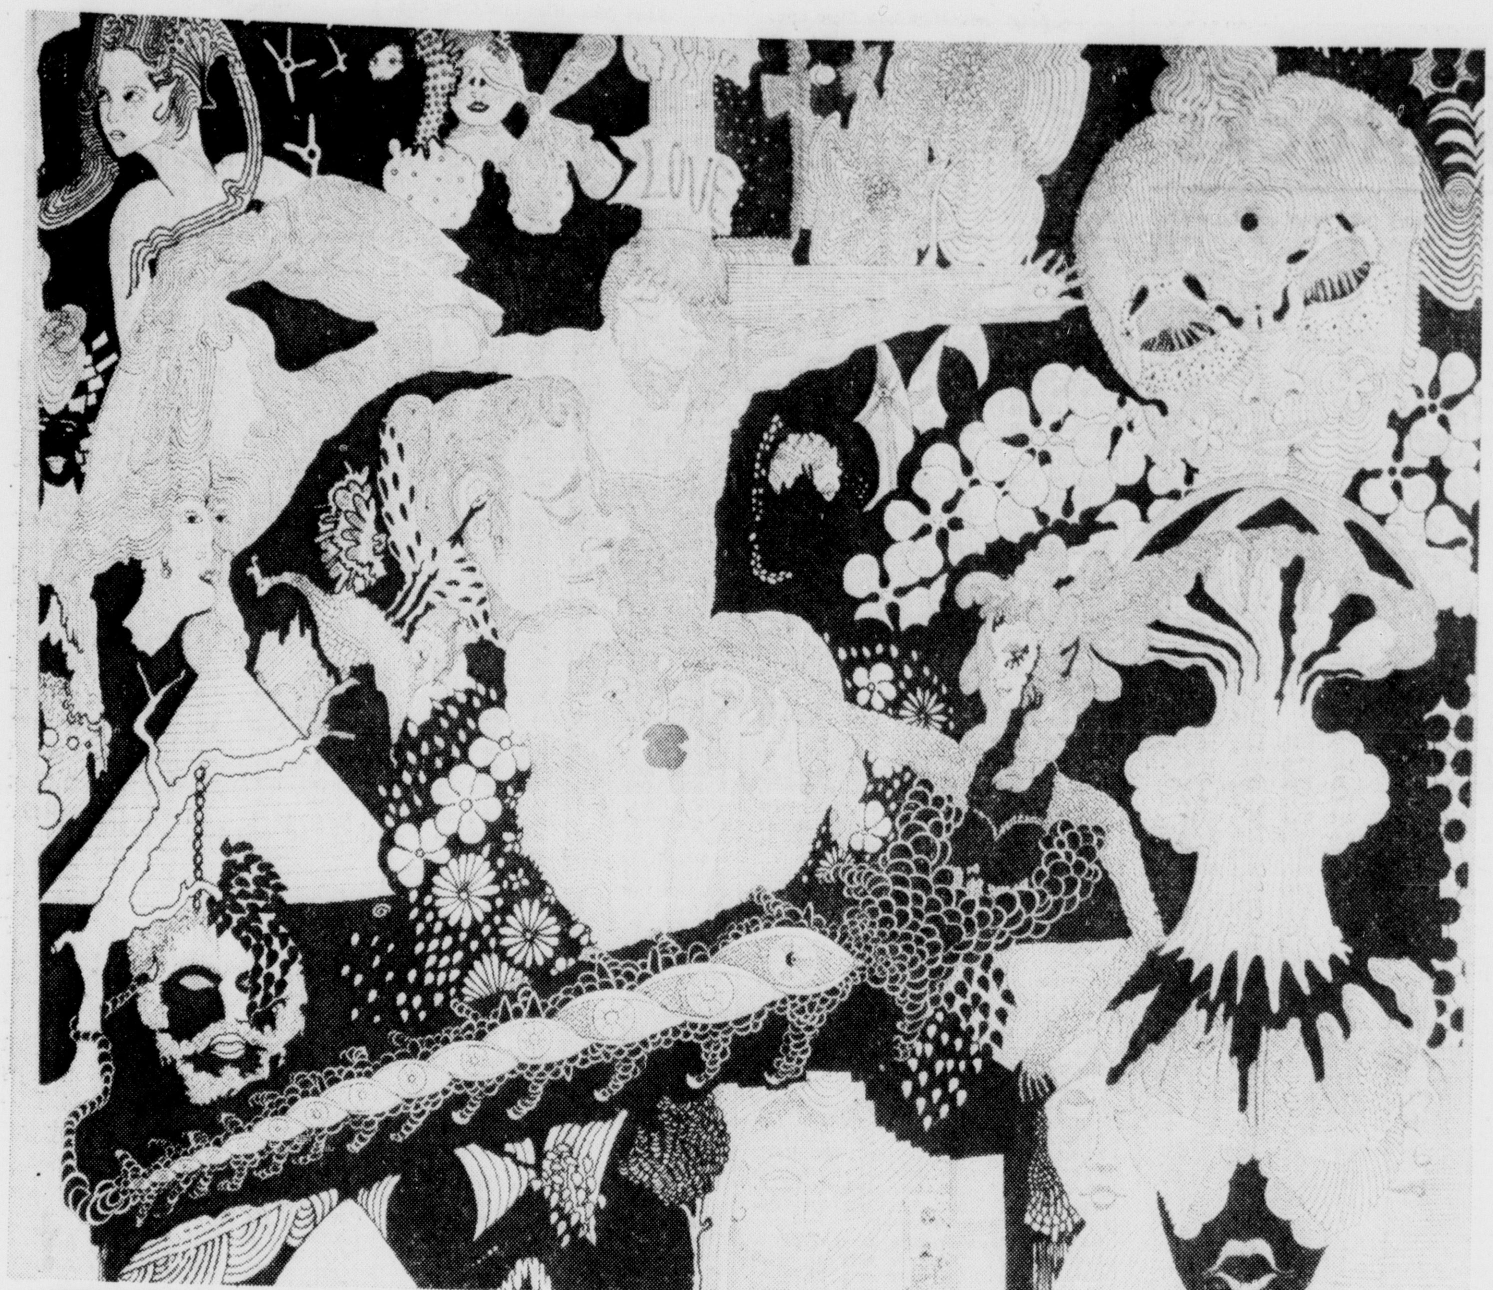
The artist's delight in being able freely to vent his personal feelings are expressed in works with such lengthy titles as: "Lament for a Dead Love/or the Autobiography of the Artist in Limbo."

At times he over-all, tatoo-like designs with which he covers the entire anatomy of his figures are almost compulsive, but so perfectly controlled as to be hypnotic. Yet there is kindness and compassion, sensitivity and perception in everything he does. Humor supports his fantastic imagination in the anthropomorphized "The Contemplation of the Queen Bee", and his social concerns are expressed in several Third World drawings.

And despite his lengthy, flowery titles and ornate drawing, Arderi is also of a mechanistic turn of mind with clocks and wheels and various mechanical elements nestling as continuous design units in his stream-of-conscious works of art.

Interspersed with his religious and natural imagery, astrological symbols, erotica, fantasy and real events and places, Arderi's world is about everything that has ever happened to him — and sometimes to everyone else — throughout all of time.

The exhibit may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, through December. The Aragorn Gallery is at 260 Magnolia Street, Larkspur.



CHILDHOOD MEMORANDA — Recollections of social, political, and religious influences and change dating back to Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, are portrayed in this panorama of impressions by Eduardo Arderi. It is one of 38 drawings and prints in his exhibit at the Aragorn Gallery in Larkspur through December. (Independent-Journal photo)

Reagan Will Light Tree Wednesday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The holiday season will be officially opened next week at the Capitol when Gov. Ronald Reagan lights a Christmas tree outside the golden-domed building.

The governor's office announced yesterday that Reagan will speak Wednesday at a Christmas carol program in the Capitol rotunda and then will preside at a lighting ceremony at a tree near the north steps of the building.

Later Wednesday afternoon, Reagan's staff will have a Christmas party in the governor's council room. Reagan's office said members of the Capitol press corps were invited to the party.

On Monday, Reagan will make a speech before the American Federation Convention in Los Angeles. He will address the Sacramento Rotary Club Thursday.

Mill Valley Hires Attorney For Advice On Shelter Ridge

In an attempt to avoid a conflict of interest, the City of Mill Valley has hired Tiburon's deputy city attorney, Richard H. Breiner, to offer legal advice on the controversial Shelter Ridge development.

Breiner will substitute for City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, who is employed by the developers of the project.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham announced yesterday that Breiner, 37, would be paid by the hour, rather than by a flat retainer fee.

The city council unanimously agreed Monday night to hire another city attorney in Marin County to pinch hit for Jordan, who currently represents developers Warner Odenthal and Eugene Harter in litigation over the Madera Del Presidio development in Corte Madera.

Breiner, a partner in the San Rafael law firm of Conn, Breiner, Birkie and Pagghianti, has served as deputy city attorney in Tiburon since 1965.

The city council recently was asked to revoke permits issued to the developers of Shelter Ridge to grade 83 home sites and an extension of Seaver Drive.

Breiner will be asked to advise the council on the legality of revoking those permits, in light of recent action by the state Legislature affecting the requirements for environmental impact statements.

Sausalito Man Admits Arson

A Sausalito man has admitted in Marin Superior Court that he set fire to his former home in Bolinas.

The admission by 28-year-old Charles K. Post was part of a plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, who promised to give him no more than six months in jail on the felony arson count. Sentencing was set for Wednesday.

Post, a former Bolinas volunteer fireman, was arrested Sept. 16 in Petaluma after a chase at 80 miles an hour. Two hours earlier he set fire to the 19th century Victorian home, which suffered $25,000 damage before firemen could douse the blaze.

Tokyo Land Sale Sets Price Mark

TOKYO (UPI) — A parcel of land in downtown Tokyo is changing hands at a price of $1,090 per square foot, believed to be the highest ever paid for land in Tokyo.

Mitsubishi Real Estate Co. Friday outbid 14 competitors to buy the 34-year-old building housing the Japan Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) near the Imperial Hotel.

ART REVIEW

Cuban-Born Artist Has Style

By ADA GARFINKEL

It is only rarely that an artist is born with the mature, natural drawing talent of Eduardo Arderi, whose one-man show of 38 drawings and prints are currently on view at the Aragorn Gallery in Larkspur.

The 28-year-old Cuban-born artist started to draw fluently at age 5. He drew consistently for two years, greatly influenced by the strong Afro-Cuban and South American Indian cultures, and the lush vegetation of his environment.

Then came a 20-year hiatus during which Arderi did no drawing at all. This was due in part to the political upheaval, and because his parents wanted him to become a physician — and in Cuban families one does what the parents want.

However, in the hectic period of 1964, straining at the lack of personal expression, young Arderi left college in Havana and departed for Jamaica. Here he applied for and received a visa to stay with some Cuban countrymen in New Jersey, where he got a job in a handbag factory and studied English in the evenings in a nearby high school. In return, he had to serve two years in the American Army, from which he came out a sergeant.

Although still at sea about himself and his own directions, he was by this time more fluent in his adopted language and for the first time he met American friends — artists and writers. Suddenly, in 1968, he seems to have found himself. He began to draw again with an incredible production and soon had his first one-man show.

The drawings were all in black and white. The financial success of the show enabled Arderi to come to California to savor the warmer climate he desired. Landing in Marin was pure chance — a friend of a friend lived in Corte Madera. Arderi had no idea how fertile Marin is, either artistically or naturally. And it is only since his arrival in this area that color has come into his work.

Arderi's early Afro-Cuban and Indian influences are still very strong in his work. He uses only fine-line pens with which he constructs his sinuously flowing arabesques, stylized foliage, sea-shells and underwater life, philosophical concepts, and visual memorabilia.

The artist's delight in being able freely to vent his personal feelings are expressed in works with such lengthy titles as: "Lament for a Dead Love/or the Autobiography of the Artist in Limbo."

At times he over-all, tatoo-like designs with which he covers the entire anatomy of his figures are almost compulsive, but so perfectly controlled as to be hypnotic. Yet there is kindness and compassion, sensitivity and perception in everything he does. Humor supports his fantastic imagination in the anthropomorphized "The Contemplation of the Queen Bee", and his social concerns are expressed in several Third World drawings.

And despite his lengthy, flowery titles and ornate drawing, Arderi is also of a mechanistic turn of mind with clocks and wheels and various mechanical elements nestling as continuous design units in his stream-of-conscious works of art.

Interspersed with his religious and natural imagery, astrological symbols, erotica, fantasy and real events and places, Arderi's world is about everything that has ever happened to him — and sometimes to everyone else — throughout all of time.

The exhibit may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, through December. The Aragorn Gallery is at 260 Magnolia Street, Larkspur.

COLLEGE CONCERT IN IGNACIO

Marilyn Thompson, pianist, and Neal LaMonaco, cellist, prepare for their appearance tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Church in Ignacio, in a concert sponsored by Indian Valley Colleges. Both musicians have studied and performed in Europe and this country extensively. The concert will include works by Beethoven, Handel, Schumann, Debussy and Brahms.

Concert To Spotlight Yule Music

The second annual "Thinking Man's" pops concert will be presented in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m.

The College Philharmonic and Chorus will use a Christmas theme for the performance. David Sloss of San Rafael will direct.

Music will include Vivaldi's "Gloria," Beethoven's "Eggmont Overture" and Tchaikovsky's Christmas perennial "Nutcracker Suite."

Children in the audience will be invited to improvise dances to the "Nutcracker." Hot mulled cider, coffee and cookies will be served during intermission.

Musicians at intermission will also demonstrate musical instruments for children.

Reservations may be made by contacting the Office of Continuing Education and Instructional Services.

AT THE RAFAEL

A suspense thriller doublebill is currently playing at the Rafael Theater in San Rafael. Patty Duke and Richard Thomas are shown in a scene from "You'll Like My Mother." The companion feature is "Groundstar Conspiracy" with George Peppard.

Reagan Will Light Tree Wednesday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The holiday season will be officially opened next week at the Capitol when Gov. Ronald Reagan lights a Christmas tree outside the golden-domed building.

The governor's office announced yesterday that Reagan will speak Wednesday at a Christmas carol program in the Capitol rotunda and then will preside at a lighting ceremony at a tree near the north steps of the building.

Later Wednesday afternoon, Reagan's staff will have a Christmas party in the governor's council room. Reagan's office said members of the Capitol press corps were invited to the party.

On Monday, Reagan will make a speech before the American Federation Convention in Los Angeles. He will address the Sacramento Rotary Club Thursday.

Mill Valley Hires Attorney For Advice On Shelter Ridge

In an attempt to avoid a conflict of interest, the City of Mill Valley has hired Tiburon's deputy city attorney, Richard H. Breiner, to offer legal advice on the controversial Shelter Ridge development.

Breiner will substitute for City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, who is employed by the developers of the project.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham announced yesterday that Breiner, 37, would be paid by the hour, rather than by a flat retainer fee.

The city council unanimously agreed Monday night to hire another city attorney in Marin County to pinch hit for Jordan, who currently represents developers Warner Odenthal and Eugene Harter in litigation over the Madera Del Presidio development in Corte Madera.

Breiner, a partner in the San Rafael law firm of Conn, Breiner, Birkie and Pagghianti, has served as deputy city attorney in Tiburon since 1965.

The city council recently was asked to revoke permits issued to the developers of Shelter Ridge to grade 83 home sites and an extension of Seaver Drive.

Breiner will be asked to advise the council on the legality of revoking those permits, in light of recent action by the state Legislature affecting the requirements for environmental impact statements.

Sausalito Man Admits Arson

A Sausalito man has admitted in Marin Superior Court that he set fire to his former home in Bolinas.

The admission by 28-year-old Charles K. Post was part of a plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, who promised to give him no more than six months in jail on the felony arson count. Sentencing was set for Wednesday.

Post, a former Bolinas volunteer fireman, was arrested Sept. 16 in Petaluma after a chase at 80 miles an hour. Two hours earlier he set fire to the 19th century Victorian home, which suffered $25,000 damage before firemen could douse the blaze.

Tokyo Land Sale Sets Price Mark

TOKYO (UPI) — A parcel of land in downtown Tokyo is changing hands at a price of $1,090 per square foot, believed to be the highest ever paid for land in Tokyo.

Mitsubishi Real Estate Co. Friday outbid 14 competitors to buy the 34-year-old building housing the Japan Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) near the Imperial Hotel.

Brownout Threatens That 'Better Life'

IT MUST BE 20 years since PG & E electric power customers suffered through the great post-war brownout.

It started insidiously. Electric clocks were discovered to be running slower than wind-ups. As it turned out electric clocks lost one minute per hour. Electric alarm clocks went off late. Many people were late to work. Some didn't know it, because the clocks at the shop ere electric, too.

Electric ovens took longer to reach desired temperatures. Homemakers found it taking longer to get dinner ready, mysteriously.

When the mystery was unveiled, it was simple. Consumption of electirc power had increased faster than PG & E's ability to produce it. During the war consumption had not risen greatly. Wartime controls limited PG & E's ability to expand its generating capacity. The post-war surge in consumption threatened to outstrip the supply of electrical energy.

PG & E engineers calculated that dropping from 60 cycle to 59 or 58 cycle alternating current, generating capacity could be stretched. And so it was.

But electric clocks ran slower, ovens took longer to bake, and electric heaters just didn't put out as much heat.

Before PG & E could catch up with demand, it was necessary to institute controls. Electric signs were among the items affected. Shopping areas were dark and dismal at night.

In short, the quality of life declined, until PG & E could expand its generating facilities and meet the demand once more.

LAST WEEK Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, told the press of California that one way to limit growth in the state is to put a lid on the expansion of electric power generating capacity.

We should, he said, be less dependent on electric lighting and air conditioning. He advocated building office buildings with more windows to take advantage of natural light. But he criticized the use of too much glass in new office buildings because over-glassed buildings require excessive amounts of energy for heating and cooling.

If you find this contradictory, so did many of his listeners at the annual conference of the California Press Association in San Francisco.

If you just reduce the growth rate of PG & E generating capacity, he said, somehow the rate of growth in power consumption will adjust to the supply of electric power.

McCloskey must either be too young or too recent an immigrant to California to remember what actually happened during the great post-war brownout.

No thanks, we don't want to go through that mess again.

AT THE SAME California Press Association meeting, J.P. Vukasin Jr., immediate past chairman of the California Public Utilities Commission, predicted, in effect, that we will go through it again — in the mid 1970s.

The mid-point of the 1970s, remember, is only about two years away.

What Vukasin said was this. The demand for both electrical and fossil fuel energy is rising steadily. As we expand industrial and agricultural production, to provide more jobs, energy needs increase. As we provide more and better housing, energy needs increase.

At the same time, the controls on PG & E expansion become more restrictive.

It is inevitable that California will face an "energy crunch" in the next couple of years, Vukasin believes.

His recitation of the factors involved lead one to conclude his prediction is probably corrent.

WE GOT A foretaste of it earlier this week during the abnormally cold weather.

On cold mornings and cold evenings, the residential use of PG & E gas for heating raised consumption levels beyond PG & E's supply. PG & E simply exercised its right to cut off the supply of some industrial customers. They had to use alternate sources of energy or close down till the cold spell was over.

Vukasin advised the press last week that the California Public Utilities Commission is sufficiently concerned about the threat of energy shortage to have begun steps toward dealing with it when it happens.

The commissioners have directed their staff to study how the feared "crunch" will be dealt with. In short, they will try to determine whose power is shut off first when there isn't enough to go around.

If the goal of the great contemporary conservation-ecology movement is genuinely to improve the quality of life, the movement needs to take care lest it brings us to cold showers, cold breakfasts, and evening reading by candlelight.

Sunshine-Sequined County

Have you noticed how shiny and sparkling the Marin countryside seems when the sun comes out after a rain? Not only is the dust settled and the air washed, little beads of water hang on trees and bushes and catch and reflect the light like a million sequins. Marin is at its best in the post-rain sunshine.

Bouquet And Brickbats

BRICKBAT to the Marin County Board of Supervisors nor using the threat to withhold state and federal road funds as a means of blackmailing cities planning redevelopment programs.

BOUQUET to the Novato Chamber of Commerce for its Christmas window painting contest for junior and senior high school students.

BRICKBAT to the California Department of Motor Vehicles for its delays in delivering new and replacement driver licenses. The claim that the delay is caused by changing to colored photos and plastic license encasements just doesn't wash.

If the San Rafael City Council doesn't fill its vacancy without having to go to a special election, we'll have to give it a brickbat too.

Anti-Fluoridationist Disturbed By Result

Recently a well intentioned, but apparently misinformed, person compared taking fluoride tablets with "pill popping." Nothing could be farther from the truth.

The fluoride pills and fluoride drops that sincere parents give their children are on prescription, and only a careless thinker would fail to understand the difference between using a physician's prescription and illegal drug abuse.

I think it is a serious moral compromise for us to give our children a recognized prescription drug via the public drinking water. Putting the prescription drug, fluoride, in the public water supply is drug abuse on a grand scale.

Without a physician's supervision, the known side effects of fluorides at 1 ppm could take a long time to identify and lots of money could be spent on physicians trying to track down the cause of a fluoride-induced illness.

Educational Leader Needed Better Room

Brickbats to Mary Leydecker and her article published Nov. 21 regarding the furnishing of Dr. Sheppard's office at Tam. Her article and the accompanying picture gave the impression of a spacious room which had been refurnished. This is not true. The room contained two long tables and several chairs, hardly the kind of furniture for a functioning office.

The room is a narrow rectangle, 9 by 24 feet, with a 9-foot ceiling. . . When a few people meet in the room and close the door for privacy, the atmosphere quickly becomes stuffy and unpleasant, not conducive to productive work. I'm sure you would never accept that sort of working conditions. Hence the need for some kind of air circulating mechanism, which was overshadowed by the snide reference to "cool Mill Valley" by Mrs. Leydecker.

And brickbats to you, Mr. Editor, for tossing the brickbat at Dr. Sheppard for having the "arrogance" to request furnishings. Furniture had to be obtained and there was none available in the district which could have been considered as correct for the office of a top official at the school. The furniture which was installed has made the narrow room usable by groups of people in a manner not possible with conventional desks and chairs. . . Also, Dr. Sheppard has invited any member of the Tam staff to use his office for meetings whenever he is not using it.

Perhaps you could earn a bouquet if you directed your reporters to draw a true picture of the need for new buildings to replace "decaying Tamalpais High School" (Mrs. Leydecker's words) instead of criticizing an effort to make what there is more efficient. The Tam staff should receive large bouquets for working and teaching in conditions which are barely adequate and certainly inefficient.

Isn't that just like a man! President Nixon's idea of housekeeping was to put off cleaning house until the four-year lease at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue got renewed.

They say a new broom sweeps clean, but Dick is determined to demonstrate what an old rake can do.

Among those who don't approve of rearranging the cabinet are the ones who might be put on the shelf.

Instead of throwing out all the old crocks, Dick will just shift most of 'em from one corner to another.

It's A New Pack Of Trouble Packing Carry-On Flight Bag

WASHINGTON — Most of the airlines are now searching carry-on luggage in order to thwart hijackings. This is a very commendable practice, but it leads to some embarrassing situations.

In the past you never had to give much thought to what you packed in your hand suitcase. But now that strangers can plow through your personal effects, you have to change your whole style of traveling.

Some people don't care what an airline employe or federal marshal thinks when he zips open your luggage. But I'm not one of them. I get nervous as soon as my flight is announced.

FOR ONE THING, I get terribly embarrassed about anyone seeing dirty laundry in my bag. I'll stay over at a hotel an extra day and have my laundry done just so I won't be humiliated at the check-in gate.

While this takes up a lot of extra time, several federal marshals have complimented me on the whiteness of my shirts and the neatness of my underwear.

I spent a lot of time thinking about what books to carry in my bags in the past. Before the new anti-hijacking rules went into effect, I would always buy a Mickey Spillane paperback with a sexy cover at the airport. And I was never without a copy of Playboy.

But now I have to think about what books and maggzines the marshals would approve of.

I live in deathly fear that some federal marshal is going to find a copy of "Candy" in my personal effects and yell out, "Hey, Harry, we got a poyvert on this flight!"

So now I limit all the reading matter in my baggage to the Spech of George Romney and old copies of the Reader's Digest.

I AM EVEN NERVOUS about my toilet articles, particulgrly if a woman is inspecting my baggage. I never know if I'm using the right deohorant or carrying the right after-shave lotion.

Recently I offered a lady marshal who looked like Arlene Francis an antacid tablet and she scornfully produced one of her own which was half as large but contained twice the number of ingredients.

It's amazing how innocent pople feel guilty when someone goes through their luggage. This is particularly true of women who have to open up their handbags. I takes my wife two hours to get her handbag just right when she's going on an airplane trip. Then afterward she's never sure if it contained the right things.

IF I HAVE ANY objection to being searched at the airport, it is the impersonal way it's being done.

Usually the marshalls search your bag and then wave you through. I think it would add much more zest and fun to it if they would each carry a piece of chalk and grade you on the outside of your bag on your packing. Those who got "A" would be given the first choice of seats. Those who received an "F" would hav to repack and take the next plane.

It really galls me when I spend so much time on my hand luggage to get the same treatment as someone who just threw his dirty clothes into the bag as if he didn't give a damn.

New York May Be Bankrupt, But Treasures Fill Its Stores

NEW YORK — 'Tis the season to be joyful, in the words of one of those all-too-frequent carols. If spending money as though it were about to go out of style is any sign, this is the joyfulest place in the world. What promises to be one of the biggest Christmas Shopping sprees in many a year is off to a late start.

In this city, which is the greatest bazaar ever, the shoppers are crowding into the store in such droves as to overwhelm harassed sales people. Customers stand two or three deep to be waited on in Tiffany's, so that this stronghold of elegance on Fifth avenue looks like Macy's basement. As for Macy's basement, well, it's Macy's basement only doubled and redoubled in the Christmas spree.

THE RANGE of what you can buy in the bazaar is measured only by money. Tiffany's has a lovely ring with an emerald-cut diamond at $259,000, and for bargain hunters there is a marquie diamond at $145,000. Way down the scale Tiffany's offers a silver gadget to fasten on your belt to hold your golf tees at $6.50 (engraving $1.50 additional).

Across the avenue is Vancleef and Arpels, where the atmosphere is hushed and the prices of those emeralds and cabochon rubies are discreetly murmured as though it were slightly vulgar to speak of price. Nearby is Harry Winston, diamonds, looking as chaste in a little three-story temple all its own as though it were the Morgan Guaranty Bank.

New York, it has often been said, is a city for the very rich and the very poor. One out of every six individuals is on relief despite strenuous efforts of the city to cut down the burden. You would never know this in the glittering center with Christmas decorations festooned on every store front.

It is all here in this bazaar of bazaars for anyone with the wherewithal and the discriminating taste for the rare and the exotic.

You can buy pre-columbian artifacts, tomb figures, gold ornaments, the precious objects of civilizations long extinct. Further back in history are Greek and Roman fragments or, for that matter, figures virtually intact dug out of the dust of the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome. In the art galleries on 57th street is a range from old masters to the latest far-out contemporary.

At La Vieille Russie are Malachite treasures from the palaces of the grand dukes, the legend has it, in St. Petersburg, or for the really discriminating there is the silver service from the czar's yacht.

THE MAGNET is money. It attracts this fabulous variety of precious objects to a city that seems often on the point of bankruptcy and breakdown. The transcendence of America's economic power is still focused on this troubled city which has just seen the completion of Twin Trade Towers, the tallest in the world, at the tip of lower Manhattan.

For all the crime so shockingly evident, the plague of heroin, for all the scorn heaped by Washington on effete intellectual snobs, New York is the most exciting city in America. The museums, the concert halls, even what is left of the theater and, in particular, off Broadway, offer unparalleled fare.

Down in Wall Street the stock market goes right on up. That mythical thousand-mark barrier in the Dow-Jones average was crossed without a quiver and the climb goes on.

It is the beginning of the Nixon boom, the first fruit of the landslide that set the country on the course of free enterprise hampered as little as possible by government intervention. With the election over, the motor manufacturers got their price increases. So for this joyous season, all is well.

Government-To-Industry Job Switches Draw Skepticism

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The head of the President's reelection campaign, Clark MacGregor, takes a job with an aircraft engine firm fighting an anti-trust suit.

The general counsel of the Food and Drug Administration, William Goodrich, leaves to join a food industry firm and is replaced by Deter Hutt, a personal friend who has been representing industry clients bfore the FDA and now must regulate them.

Clarence Palmby, an assistant Agriculture Secretary, discusses a big wheat deal with Russia only a few days after using as credit references officials of a firm which he eventually joins, and which benefits from the wheat deal.

EVERY YEAR ABOUT 200,000 persons connected with the government quit to go back into private business. Most of the switches occur with little or no notice. But critics charge that what sometimes happens is that an industrial concern simply buys a former government official's influence.

Anyone who has a pipeline to the White House or a key government agency by virtue of his government job can be a valuable asset for a corporation doing business with the government.

Ralph Nader says bluntly that when a former government official takes a job, for example, as a Washington representative for a corporation, he simply is accepting a bribe.

As Nader sees it, government officials eyeing lucrative private jobs can increase their worth to a corporation by the way they influence the policy of an agency, through special treatment they give to some problem involving the corporation.

In some cases, he says, government employes maneuver themselves into certain jobs for the sole purpose of increasing their contacts within the bureaucracy, for use when they return to private industry.

THOSE WHO SEE nothing wrong with the government-industry job switching argue that it is indefensible to assume wrongdoing simply because an influential government official takes a job with an industry which was involved with the government.

According to this argument, the government profits much more than industry might by tapping industry's talent pool to help run the government — that means officials serve for years in government posts at salaries far below what they could command in private industry.

The Justice Department has prosecuted less than a dozen conflict of interest cases in the past five years. But the criminal code is specific about former government employes using their influence.

Former members of the executive branch, for example, cannot appear on behalf of their new boss in any governmental hearing on an issue in which they personally were involved while they were working for the government. There also is a time limit of one year against personal appearances if the issue was under a former official's broad jurisdiction.

But the critics argue that the law is evaded. According to them, the former government official exercises his influence in more subtle ways, such as advising his new firm on the strategy to use to counteract plans he may have devised for a government agency.

Brownout Threatens That 'Better Life'

IT MUST BE 20 years since PG & E electric power customers suffered through the great post-war brownout.

It started insidiously. Electric clocks were discovered to be running slower than wind-ups. As it turned out electric clocks lost one minute per hour. Electric alarm clocks went off late. Many people were late to work. Some didn't know it, because the clocks at the shop ere electric, too.

Electric ovens took longer to reach desired temperatures. Homemakers found it taking longer to get dinner ready, mysteriously.

When the mystery was unveiled, it was simple. Consumption of electirc power had increased faster than PG & E's ability to produce it. During the war consumption had not risen greatly. Wartime controls limited PG & E's ability to expand its generating capacity. The post-war surge in consumption threatened to outstrip the supply of electrical energy.

PG & E engineers calculated that dropping from 60 cycle to 59 or 58 cycle alternating current, generating capacity could be stretched. And so it was.

But electric clocks ran slower, ovens took longer to bake, and electric heaters just didn't put out as much heat.

Before PG & E could catch up with demand, it was necessary to institute controls. Electric signs were among the items affected. Shopping areas were dark and dismal at night.

In short, the quality of life declined, until PG & E could expand its generating facilities and meet the demand once more.

LAST WEEK Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, told the press of California that one way to limit growth in the state is to put a lid on the expansion of electric power generating capacity.

We should, he said, be less dependent on electric lighting and air conditioning. He advocated building office buildings with more windows to take advantage of natural light. The general counsel of the Food and Drug Administration, William Goodrich, leaves to join a food industry firm and is replaced by Deter Hutt, a personal friend who has been representing industry clients bfore the FDA and now must regulate them.

Clarence Palmby, an assistant Agriculture Secretary, discusses a big wheat deal with Russia only a few days after using as credit references officials of a firm which he eventually joins, and which benefits from the wheat deal.

EVERY YEAR ABOUT 200,000 persons connected with the government quit to go back into private business. Most of the switches occur with little or no notice. But critics charge that what sometimes happens is that an industrial concern simply buys a former government official's influence.

Anyone who has a pipeline to the White House or a key government agency by virtue of his government job can be a valuable asset for a corporation doing business with the government.

Ralph Nader says bluntly that when a former government official takes a job, for example, as a Washington representative for a corporation, he simply is accepting a bribe.

As Nader sees it, government officials eyeing lucrative private jobs can increase their worth to a corporation by the way they influence the policy of an agency, through special treatment they give to some problem involving the corporation.

In some cases, he says, government employes maneuver themselves into certain jobs for the sole purpose of increasing their contacts within the bureaucracy, for use when they return to private industry.

THOSE WHO SEE nothing wrong with the government-industry job switching argue that it is indefensible to assume wrongdoing simply because an influential government official takes a job with an industry which was involved with the government.

According to this argument, the government profits much more than industry might by tapping industry's talent pool to help run the government — that means officials serve for years in government posts at salaries far below what they could command in private industry.

The Justice Department has prosecuted less than a dozen conflict of interest cases in the past five years. But the criminal code is specific about former government employes using their influence.

Former members of the executive branch, for example, cannot appear on behalf of their new boss in any governmental hearing on an issue in which they personally were involved while they were working for the government. There also is a time limit of one year against personal appearances if the issue was under a former official's broad jurisdiction.

But the critics argue that the law is evaded. According to them, the former government official exercises his influence in more subtle ways, such as advising his new firm on the strategy to use to counteract plans he may have devised for a government agency.

U.S. Consumer Boss Offers Solution To Marketing Woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — A modern supermarket may have as many as nine different brands of pancake mix in 16 sizes with 23 prices. How do you find the best buy?

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, the president's consumer affairs adviser, thinks she's found an answer—shop like a professional who buys in quantity.

She outlined her views in a series of articles distributed to food editors. They're based on talks with food experts, officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, food editors, writers and housewives.

She recommends comparison shopping, using unit pricing if available, or figuring the prices per market unit yourself if the store hasn't posted them.

Mrs. Knauer said a study by a New York bank showed that a shopper who compared prices on 36 basic food items saved more than $11 over the shopper who bought the same items without first comparing prices.

Not everyone has time to comparison shop at two or more stores, but some volunteer organizations and consumer groups are starting to do so for their members, she added.

She warned against using unit pricing alone as a measure of economy. Some products with low unit prices are inferior in quality or quantity to higher priced ones.

For instance, the cost per can of fruits and vegetables is not always a good guide to the cost per serving, because some packers use more water or syrup than others. Mrs. Knauer suggests buying several different brands of a product at one time to compare contents before establishing a buying pattern.

Questioning shoppers in supermarkets, Mrs. Knauer found one woman paying $1.55 per pound for presliced pizza in an aluminum pan when she could have bought an unsliced one without the pan for 75 cents to $1.04 per pound. She found another shopper who saved money by adding sausage to plain pizza instead of buying the ready-made sausage variety.

Some convenience foods are inexpensive time savers and some are not, she said. If a casserole calls for cream of mushroom soup, it's cheaper to open a 15 cent can than it is to spend time and money making the soup from scratch.

But premixed cinnamon sugar costs about five times as much as the homemade variety that can be made in a minute or two from less than three cents worth of bulk sugar and a few cents more of cinnamon.

Some convenience foods don't even save time, she said. One brand of boil-in-bag corn with butter sauce that sells for 53 cents a pound takes 11-15 minutes to cook. Plain frozen corn at less than 40 cents a pound cooks in 2-4 minutes, and a comparable sauce of butter, salt, starch, sugar, cheese and seasonings wouldn't take 15 minutes to prepare.

Her meat buying suggestions included:

Choose on a basis of cost per serving, not cost per pound.

"A relatively high-priced meat with little or no waste may be more economical per serving than a low-priced cut with a great deal of bone, gristle or fat."

Do some of your own meat cutting. A whole round steak bought as a special can be cut along its three natural sections to yield top round for broiling or roasting, bottom round for pot roast and eye of round for pan broiling. It's cheaper than paying three different prices for each cut bought separately.

Remember in buying a beef carcass that cutting loss can add up to 20 to 30 per cent or more. Carcass beef generally yields 25 per cent each of waste, ground beef and stew meat, steaks and roasts.

Poultry is one of the least expensive meats if it's bought whole. But boneless chicken breasts are high-ticket items and even cut-up chickens usually cost more than whole ones.

Mrs. Knauer also recommended buying seasonal specials among fruits and vegetables if you have time to process them for freezing and plenty of home freezer space for storage.

For canned and frozen produce, save money by choosing the style—whole, cut, sliced, diced or pieces—best suited to the way you plan to serve it. Fruit for topping or show calls for the best grades for appearance. But a less expensive cut style is just as good for puddings or other desert mixtures.

New Problem: Hike In Saigon Army Desertions

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND

SAIGON — Desertions from the South Vietnamese army have risen steadily over the past four months, according to well-informed sources.

The sources said the desertions passed the 20,000-per-month mark in August. During the months of July and August, there were more losses through desertions than there were officially announced battle casualties.

For a regular army of some 500,000 men, the desertions have been a heavy drain. The recent "net loss" has been the highest in at least two years.

Some analysts note that in the past there has been an upsurge in desertions following a period of heavy fighting, such as was the case this year. But the analysts had expected that the desertions would drop off in September and October. Instead, they have stayed at a high level.

One explanation provided by South Vietnamese officers is that all the talk of an impending cease-fire has encouraged men to drop out of the army. No one wants to be the last man killed just before a cease-fire, officers say.

Another factor, they say, has been the "upgrading" of regional force troops to replace losses in regular army units.

Many of these "upgraded" troops joined the regional forces in order to stay close to home. But once they are taken into the regular army, they can be sent far from home. For some, this has been enough of a reason to leave the army.

During the high point of the North Vietnamese offensive, the government also opened the jails and put some chronic draft evaders and other "undesirables" into the army in order to replace losses. It's thought that quite a few of these men, who numbered in the thousands, deserted. But this would hardly be enough of a factor to account for the steady rise in desertions over a period of several months.

American advisers seem to be at a loss to explain the rise. They say that they can only speculate on the causes.

For the moment few South Vietnamese officers appear to be greatly alarmed. Desertions have always been a problem in the South Vietnamese army, officers say. They point out that new recruiting and roundups of draft dodgers have replaced many of the losses suffered during the North Vietnamese offensive.

Few of the deserters become defectors. That is, few of them join the Communist side. If past experience is any indicator, a significant number leave the regular army so that they can return to their homes, where they often end up joining locally based popular and regional force units.

This correspondent met a popular forces soldier in the Mekong Delta who had served, over a period of only two years, in three different kinds of units, including the paratroops and regional forces.

The soldier explained that he didn't like the regional forces company he was with because its commander was constantly beating him. He didn't like the paratroops because they took him too far from home. In the end, he decided that he was better off in his home village.

The "deserter" was given a warm welcome when he returned to his old popular forces platoon.

Despite what strikes some Americans as an almost casual attitude on the part of many South Vietnamese officers, there have been some signs of concern at the top of the Saigon command. The command has sent out a number of communiques concerning desertions recently.

A military committee dealing with the desertion problem had been attended primarily by low-ranking South Vietnamese officers. But at the last meeting of the committee, perhaps thanks to American prodding, top-ranking officers attended.

Although the number of desertions for the month of October was high, the "net loss" figure dropped, apparently because of renewed efforts by the command to round up deserters.

Some South Vietnamese officers are worried that great numbers of soldiers might try to desert just before and after a cease-fire. They are particularly concerned about the Communists' proselyting efforts, which seem to have stepped up lately.

The Liberation Front radio has increased the number of programs directed at officers and men of the army and police, apparently in anticipation of a cease-fire. The main point of many of these programs is that the Communist side will forgive and accept those who were "forced" to fight for the government but who now are willing to lay down their arms.

Whether any significant number among the recent desertions can be attributed to Communist proselyting is not clear at this point.

Opposition Is Seen In Plan To Overhaul Housing Subsidy

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK — Any major effort to overhaul the troubled United States housing subsidy program is likely to face stiff opposition from the home-building and financing industries in the coming months.

In the budget it will submit to Congress in January, the Nixon administration is expected to cut back many domestic social programs, including housing subsidies for lower-income families. Widespread criticism of the rapidly escalating costs of long-term mortgage subsidy payments, high foreclosure rates, and administrative abuses have made these programs prime targets for the budget cutter's axe.

A recent report on the nation's housing goals, submitted to Congress by President Nixon three months ago, stated that interest subsidy programs "are expensive" and do not reach the lowest-income families. Federal outlays for directly subsidized housing, which accounted for more than one million housing starts in the past three years, are estimated to cost $2 billion in the current fiscal year and according to some experts could easily triple over the next five years.

Most of the funds go to help reduce mortgage interest costs to low and middle-income home buyers, as well as to builders who put up low-rent multifamily units.

In a recent speech to a mortage banking group, outgoing HUD Secretary George Romney called for a basic review of the federal role in housing subsidies and suggested that a system of housing allowances might be preferable to the present method of using federal aid mainly to lower the carrying charges on newly built housing.

Although home builders aren't opposed to housing allowances in principle, the industry has serious misgivings about the potential impact of direct cash payments on local housing markets. Permitting families to select their own dwelling with a government check in their hands, a new study commissioned by the National Association of Home-builders argues, would chiefly serve to drive up the price of older units.

Without doing much to expand the available housing allowances, the report says, Washington should make some improvements in the existing subsidy programs, which it calls "basically sound and effective."

Specifically endorsed were the two biggest interest-rate subsidy programs under the 1968 Housing Act, the Section 235 home ownership program and Section 236 rental plan. Apart from public housing, these two programs have been responsible for about half the subsidized housing produced since the 1968 law was passed.

The controversial study, prepared by Real Estate Research Corporation of Chicago, an independent consulting firm, said that the major inadequacies of existing housing programs stemmed mainly from either "poor administration" by the Department of Housing and Urban Development or from the "inherently high risks" of investing capital in housing in blighted neighborhoods.

Responding to critics' charges that subsidy programs cost far more than they should, the 106-page study points out that federal housing programs are compelled to bear a "large excess burden" growing out of serious intercity problems such as drug addiction, crime, and poverty.

This destroys the shelter-oriented effectiveness of such subsidies, the report adds, not because of any inherent deficiencies but "because of society's failure to cope with social problems in more direct ways."

Underscoring what many tax reform advocates have repeatedly stated, the report points out the middle-income Americans receive the biggest handout of all — the federal income tax deduction allowed for mortgage interest payments. In 1966 it left homeowners with $7 billion more than if they had been treated like property owners who do not get the interest benefit.

The report projects the annual budgetary cost of direct housing subsidies at $5 to $8 billion by 1978, but argues that the nation can afford to spend that amount to provide housing for lower-income groups.

The study emphasized that the widely publicized housing foreclosures and and scandals in Detroit, New York City and Philadelphia earlier this year grew out of older, nonsubsidy programs that involved mainly Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance.

This is the position taken by the home-building industry, which feels it has been unfairly implicated in the massive foreclosures. Industry leaders maintain that it was not legitimate home-builders but "quick-buck contractors" who failed to make promised repairs on dilapidated housing that subsequently had to be taken over by the government.

Yet the entire home-building industry has been affected by the fallout from scandals. The Department of Housing and Urban Development has tightened up its processing and scrutiny on all housing programs, placed an emphasis on quality above quantity, and reduced the number of subsidized housing starts by more than 100,000 units this year.

New Defense Chief-Designate Is A Man Of Many Activities

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
The Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON — Elliot Lee Richardson, 52, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), whom President Nixon has nominated as Secretary of Defense, is a Boston Brahmin who swims in his heated open-air swimming pool before breakfast every day of the year and who runs up the five flights to his (HEW) office taking the stairs two at a time.

In this spirit he has raced through a crowded career to the heights of the United States government's two most difficult managerial jobs:

First, as head of HEW, combining seven intractable agencies with 108,000 employees and a budget of $79 billion.

Now, as head of the Defense Department, combining a Pentagon bureaucracy of 25,000 and four jealous armed services, Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, with a total manpower of 2,360,000, and a budget of $75 billion.

The highlights of Elliott Richardson's rapid progress from law to state government to diplomacy to welfare to the military are these:

After graduating from Harvard and Harvard Law School with cum laude degrees he served as law clerk to two of this country's most distinguished judges: Learned Hand and Felix Frankfurter. Later, in another stage of apprenticeship he worked as an assistant to Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

A stint as HEW assistant secretary for legislation preceded his election in 1964 as lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts. In 1966 he was named United States attorney for Massachusetts.

He joined the State Department as undersecretary in the service of Dean Rusk until President Nixon asked him, in June 1970, to take on Health, Education and Welfare.

In between government jobs he worked for and became a partner in the Boston law firm of Roper, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg.

Richardson's father was chief surgeon of Massachusetts General Hospital, and his grandfather held the same post. His two brothers are physicians.

Since his mother died soon after he was born, and his father while he was still a boy, Richardson's maternal uncle, Henry Shattuck, had great influence on young Elliot. Shattuck was for many years sponsor of an industrial school in the north end of Boston. From this the adult Richardson may have derived a sense for the needs of the common man.

ELLIOT RICHARDSON
A crowded career

From his earliest days he was a sportsman: sailing off Cape Cod, scuba diving, fishing.

Although always employed in the most engrossing of tasks, he finds time for everything. In Chicago a few months ago on business he took time to go to an art exhibition. In San Diego he had a moment for the zoo. In Washington he goes to the theater. Last year he managed to take his sons on a vacation with pack mules into the mountains of British Columbia.

He smokes a pipe and an occasional cigar, dresses well but conservatively, in dark business clothes.

Some have found him haughty and reserved in public, but among those he knows well, he is warm and humorous.

Once when he had become attorney general after serving as lieutenant-governor his friends wondered what to call him, given the fact that people usually use the highest title in their past careers.

"How about lieutenent general," he suggested, "or governor general."

On the night he was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts some of his staff were gathered at the Somerset Hotel in Boston. About 6:30 p.m. the results shifted to indicate that he would win a narrow victory of about 30,000 votes. At that moment he stood up on an overstuffed chair and announced: "I am not standing to make a victory announcement," he said coolly, "but rather to inform you that the hotel is one fire. We will all carefully, quietly and quickly march to the exit and go downstairs."

At the department of Health, Education and Welfare Richardson found a dispirited quarrelling bureaucracy. He brought in management experts from government and industry and instituted what he called "management by objectives." He called himself a "results man" and held regular managerial conferences with his highly disparate agency heads, holding each responsible for achieving the objectives he had set.

He said he was not interested in organizational lines, but in "getting the job done". The vast HEW bureaucracy responded, and thousands there are sorry to see him go.

At HEW, Richardson "made the unmanageable manageable." He will face the same sort of challenge at the Pentagon.

There he will need all the qualities that derive from his personal and professional backgrounds. Among the top tasks will be, once again, a problem in organization. Melvin R. Laird, his predecessor, instituted many of the reforms recommended by a blue ribbon panel on reorganization, but ducked the toughest ones, which would have cut down the power of the joint chiefs of staff.

Richardson will find racial problems near the top of his list, especially in the Navy.

The all-volunteer Army will be his to manage and develop, if it can be done. Disarmament and NATO will take him back into internal affairs.

At HEW he played the role of conservative harnessing a team of intractable liberals; at the Pentagon he now probably will appear in the role of liberal among intractable conservatives.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Apollo 17 streaked smoothly through space this week toward it rendezvous with the moon— but not before a heart-stopping "hold" only 30 seconds before the rocket with its three astronauts was scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy.

With an estimated half-million persons watching from vantage points as far as hundreds away of miles from the cape, and 80 million more viewing the scene on television, the countdown proceeded faultlessly.

Past the one minute mark tension began to mount as spectators braced themselves for the visual and emotional impact of the blastoff.

Then just at 30 seconds before the planned liftoff the unscheduled "hold" went into effect, triggered by an automatic countdown sequence computer, which had detected a faulty electronic circuit.

While spectators watched and wondered, space technicians tackled the problem. Two hours and 40 minutes later Apollo 17 was on the 11th and last of the $25 billion Apollo series that put man on the moon in 1969.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison Schmitt, never in danger atop the Saturn 5 rocket because of the delay, whooped it up as they sped off toward the moon.

"Hey! there she goes," shouted Cernan. "We've seen it all."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Former President Harry S Truman, battling a serious illness that has weakened his heart and impaired his breathing, was in critical condition at Research Hospital and Medical Center in Kansas City. The 33rd President of the United states rallied somewhat toward the end of the week after the administration of antibiotics but doctors continued to describe his condition as critical.

PARIS — Henry Kissinger met five times with Hanoi diplomats in this week in what may have been the most intense bargaining to end the Vietnam war since the private negotiations began more than three years ago. Optimism flowed from French news media and diplomatic sources that the two sides would announce a ceasefire, but by week's end the fighting raged on in South Vietnam, U.S. aircraft were still bombing in the North and there was no word on a peace pact.

SAIGON — The heaviest fighting in nearly a month raged the length of South Vietnam but bad weather forced a steep cut-back toward the end of the week in U.S. air raids against North Vietnam.

BELFAST — Extra police and army patrols searched the streets of Belfast for religious fanatics believed responsible for more than 100 murders this year. Others sought clues to the whereabouts of the Soviet antitank rockets that have wounded more than 20 soldiers in a week.

MANILA — A knife-wielding would-be assassin attacked the wife of President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, inflicting her with severe stab wounds before being shot dead by security men. The attack took place before a nationwide television audience.

It's thought that quite a few of these men, who numbered in the thousands, deserted. But this would hardly be enough of a factor to account for the steady rise in desertions over a period of several months.

American advisers seem to be at a loss to explain the rise. They say that they can only speculate on the causes.

For the moment few South Vietnamese officers appear to be greatly alarmed. Desertions have always been a problem in the South Vietnamese army, officers say. They point out that new recruiting and roundups of draft dodgers have replaced many of the losses suffered during the North Vietnamese offensive.

Few of the deserters become defectors. That is, few of them join the Communist side. If past experience is any indicator, a significant number leave the regular army so that they can return to their homes, where they often end up joining locally based popular and regional force units.

This correspondent met a popular forces soldier in the Mekong Delta who had served, over a period of only two years, in three different kinds of units, including the paratroops and regional forces.

The soldier explained that he didn't like the regional forces company he was with because its commander was constantly beating him. He didn't like the paratroops because they took him too far from home. In the end, he decided that he was better off in his home village.

The "deserter" was given a warm welcome when he returned to his old popular forces platoon.

Despite what strikes some Americans as an almost casual attitude on the part of many South Vietnamese officers, there have been some signs of concern at the top of the Saigon command. The command has sent out a number of communiques concerning desertions recently.

A military committee dealing with the desertion problem had been attended primarily by low-ranking South Vietnamese officers. But at the last meeting of the committee, perhaps thanks to American prodding, top-ranking officers attended.

Although the number of desertions for the month of October was high, the "net loss" figure dropped, apparently because of renewed efforts by the command to round up deserters.

Some South Vietnamese officers are worried that great numbers of soldiers might try to desert just before and after a cease-fire. They are particularly concerned about the Communists' proselyting efforts, which seem to have stepped up lately.

The Liberation Front radio has increased the number of programs directed at officers and men of the army and police, apparently in anticipation of a cease-fire. The main point of many of these programs is that the Communist side will forgive and accept those who were "forced" to fight for the government but who now are willing to lay down their arms.

Whether any significant number among the recent desertions can be attributed to Communist proselyting is not clear at this point.

ELLIOT RICHARDSON
A crowded career

WASHINGTON — Elliot Lee Richardson, 52, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), whom President Nixon has nominated as Secretary of Defense, is a Boston Brahmin who swims in his heated open-air swimming pool before breakfast every day of the year and who runs up the five flights to his (HEW) office taking the stairs two at a time.

In this spirit he has raced through a crowded career to the heights of the United States government's two most difficult managerial jobs:

First, as head of HEW, combining seven intractable agencies with 108,000 employees and a budget of $79 billion.

Now, as head of the Defense Department, combining a Pentagon bureaucracy of 25,000 and four jealous armed services, Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, with a total manpower of 2,360,000, and a budget of $75 billion.

The highlights of Elliott Richardson's rapid progress from law to state government to diplomacy to welfare to the military are these:

After graduating from Harvard and Harvard Law School with cum laude degrees he served as law clerk to two of this country's most distinguished judges: Learned Hand and Felix Frankfurter. Later, in another stage of apprenticeship he worked as an assistant to Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

A stint as HEW assistant secretary for legislation preceded his election in 1964 as lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts. In 1966 he was named United States attorney for Massachusetts.

He joined the State Department as undersecretary in the service of Dean Rusk until President Nixon asked him, in June 1970, to take on Health, Education and Welfare.

In between government jobs he worked for and became a partner in the Boston law firm of Roper, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg.

Richardson's father was chief surgeon of Massachusetts General Hospital, and his grandfather held the same post. His two brothers are physicians.

Since his mother died soon after he was born, and his father while he was still a boy, Richardson's maternal uncle, Henry Shattuck, had great influence on young Elliot. Shattuck was for many years sponsor of an industrial school in the north end of Boston. From this the adult Richardson may have derived a sense for the needs of the common man.

From his earliest days he was a sportsman: sailing off Cape Cod, scuba diving, fishing.

Although always employed in the most engrossing of tasks, he finds time for everything. In Chicago a few months ago on business he took time to go to an art exhibition. In San Diego he had a moment for the zoo. In Washington he goes to the theater. Last year he managed to take his sons on a vacation with pack mules into the mountains of British Columbia.

He smokes a pipe and an occasional cigar, dresses well but conservatively, in dark business clothes.

Some have found him haughty and reserved in public, but among those he knows well, he is warm and humorous.

Once when he had become attorney general after serving as lieutenant-governor his friends wondered what to call him, given the fact that people usually use the highest title in their past careers.

"How about lieutenent general," he suggested, "or governor general."

On the night he was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts some of his staff were gathered at the Somerset Hotel in Boston. About 6:30 p.m. the results shifted to indicate that he would win a narrow victory of about 30,000 votes. At that moment he stood up on an overstuffed chair and announced: "I am not standing to make a victory announcement," he said coolly, "but rather to inform you that the hotel is one fire. We will all carefully, quietly and quickly march to the exit and go downstairs."

At the department of Health, Education and Welfare Richardson found a dispirited quarrelling bureaucracy. He brought in management experts from government and industry and instituted what he called "management by objectives." He called himself a "results man" and held regular managerial conferences with his highly disparate agency heads, holding each responsible for achieving the objectives he had set.

He said he was not interested in organizational lines, but in "getting the job done". The vast HEW bureaucracy responded, and thousands there are sorry to see him go.

At HEW, Richardson "made the unmanageable manageable." He will face the same sort of challenge at the Pentagon.

There he will need all the qualities that derive from his personal and professional backgrounds. Among the top tasks will be, once again, a problem in organization. Melvin R. Laird, his predecessor, instituted many of the reforms recommended by a blue ribbon panel on reorganization, but ducked the toughest ones, which would have cut down the power of the joint chiefs of staff.

Richardson will find racial problems near the top of his list, especially in the Navy.

The all-volunteer Army will be his to manage and develop, if it can be done. Disarmament and NATO will take him back into internal affairs.

At HEW he played the role of conservative harnessing a team of intractable liberals; at the Pentagon he now probably will appear in the role of liberal among intractable conservatives.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Apollo 17 streaked smoothly through space this week toward it rendezvous with the moon— but not before a heart-stopping "hold" only 30 seconds before the rocket with its three astronauts was scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy.

With an estimated half-million persons watching from vantage points as far as hundreds away of miles from the cape, and 80 million more viewing the scene on television, the countdown proceeded faultlessly.

Past the one minute mark tension began to mount as spectators braced themselves for the visual and emotional impact of the blastoff.

Then just at 30 seconds before the planned liftoff the unscheduled "hold" went into effect, triggered by an automatic countdown sequence computer, which had detected a faulty electronic circuit.

While spectators watched and wondered, space technicians tackled the problem. Two hours and 40 minutes later Apollo 17 was on the 11th and last of the $25 billion Apollo series that put man on the moon in 1969.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison Schmitt, never in danger atop the Saturn 5 rocket because of the delay, whooped it up as they sped off toward the moon.

"Hey! there she goes," shouted Cernan. "We've seen it all."

Around The World, Around The Clock

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Former President Harry S Truman, battling a serious illness that has weakened his heart and impaired his breathing, was in critical condition at Research Hospital and Medical Center in Kansas City. The 33rd President of the United states rallied somewhat toward the end of the week after the administration of antibiotics but doctors continued to describe his condition as critical.

PARIS — Henry Kissinger met five times with Hanoi diplomats in this week in what may have been the most intense bargaining to end the Vietnam war since the private negotiations began more than three years ago. Optimism flowed from French news media and diplomatic sources that the two sides would announce a ceasefire, but by week's end the fighting raged on in South Vietnam, U.S. aircraft were still bombing in the North and there was no word on a peace pact.

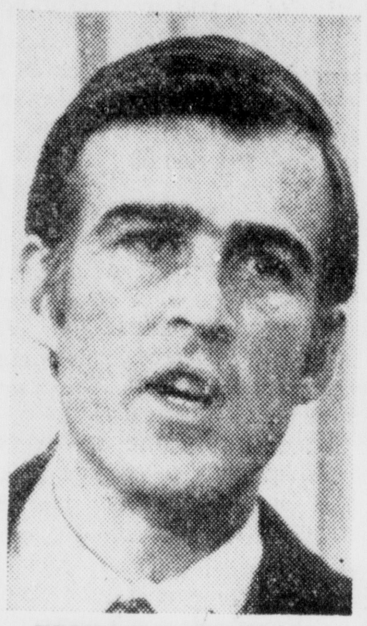
SAIGON — The heaviest fighting in nearly a month raged the length of South Vietnam but bad weather forced a steep cut-back toward the end of the week in U.S. air raids against North Vietnam.

BELFAST — Extra police and army patrols searched the streets of Belfast for religious fanatics believed responsible for more than 100 murders this year. Others sought clues to the whereabouts of the Soviet antitank rockets that have wounded more than 20 soldiers in a week.

MANILA — A knife-wielding would-be assassin attacked the wife of President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, inflicting her with severe stab wounds before being shot dead by security men. The attack took place before a nationwide television audience.

Brown Assails Election Spending

By NELS JOHNSON



EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
Urges new laws

Declaring that modern-day political campaigns have degenerated into little more than massive spending sprees, California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday urged new laws to minimize the impact of money on the political process.

Brown, the state's chief elections officer and a longtime critic of campaign spending practices, said in San Rafael that the average candidate spends half of his time seeking money. "The main activity of politics is fund-raising. . . there is little discussion of the issues," he declared.

Brown later acknowledged to his audience that he had spent $240,000 in winning his state post.

The 34-year-old son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, mentioned as a possible 1974 gubernatorial candidate, spoke on "Money and Politics" before a crowd of about 60 businessmen, civic leaders and educators at the second in a series of seminars at Dominican College called, "Stop the World. I Want to Get On."

Brown decried what he called the degeneration of campaign practices and called for complete disclosure of political fund-raising and expenses.

The first step is complete disclosure. We have to set forth all the facts to see who is giving what money to who," he said.

He said the state disclosure law regarding campaign spending was deficient because it did not require an audit, urged that the amount of a campaign contribution a candidate is required to report be reduced from $500 to $100 and called for a reduction in the use of the committee system of campaign fund-raising.

Brown told the Independent-Journal after his talk he will urge introduction of a bill within several months providing for an audit of campaign expenses.

Brown, noting that about $400 million was spent on political campaigns nationwide in 1970 and that up to $10 million was spent on California ballot measures in last month's election, said campaign efforts should center on precinct work and press conferences. He said that candidates now pay thousands of dollars for 30-second television spots that tell the voter "next to nothing about the candidate or the issues."

The major political parties should raise the bulk of campaign expenses, voters should be given tax credits of up to $10 to be given to the party of their choice and a fair campaign practices commission should be established to evaluate campaign deceptions, he said.

Brown also said the .voters' information pamphlet on ballot measures should be rewritten in "simple English without legal jargon so everyone can understand it."

He also suggested that the number of candidates in a race be limited by requiring all to obtain a certain percentage of signatures before filing for office. "A lot of candidates running for the same office makes it hard for the media to cover the campaign and stifles rational dialogue," he said. "Now anyone can annoint himself, pay a fee and get on the ballot."

He endorsed limiting the number of ballot initiatives by prohibiting payment of petition circulators.

Brown noted that well-bankrolled campaigns aren't necessarily successful. Four initiatives backed by million-dollar war chests in California's recent election were defeated, he said, attributing it to the "growing sophistication of the people."

Brown, elected to his state post in 1970, told a questioner he spent $240,000 during his campaign against a $80,000 expense by his opponent. "It's not cheap to run for office," he said.

Brown said expenses for a serious candidate in a gubernatorial race in California are at least $1.5 million and might run as high as $3 million. He declined comment, however, on whether or not he will be a candidate in 1974.

Charge Of Theft Denied In Court

An 18-year-old Inverness resident has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of taking a sleeping bag, two lanterns and a hammer from a house in Point Reyes Station.

Preliminary hearing for Jule Brand Bogart on the felony burglary count was set for Dec. 19. Bogart is also known as Pettis and Oehlschlager.

Sheriff's deputies arrested him and a 17-year-old from Novato on Monday about four hours after receiving a theft report from Nancy Dougan, who was fixing up the house on the Grossi ranch.

Deputies said they followed tire tracks to a tin shack nearby and found the missing items, valued at $65, and the two teenagers.

The juvenile, whose name was withheld, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

BART Study Panel Picked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate committee yesterday named an independent panel of three electronics experts to study the reliability of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's automatic train control system.

The appointments were announced by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, chairman of the Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, which recently completed lengthy hearings on the computerized system.

Appointed to the panel were William M. Brobeck of Berkeley, director and president of William M. Brobeck Associates; Clarence A. Lovell of Fairfax, Va., a former Bell Telephone engineer; and Dr. Bernard M. Oliver, of Palo Alto, a vice president of research and development at Hewlett-Packard Co.

Suspect In Mistaken Death Holdups Found

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth has been charged with a string of holdups that a 15-year-old high school football star was mistakenly suspected of when he was shot to death by police earlier this week.

Police said Raymond William Smith was booked Friday on eight counts of robbery and two of attempted murder in connection with a series of robberies in which a gang of bandits carrying sawed-off shotguns hit cocktail lounges and beer bars.

Last Sunday night, Raymond E. Brewer was killed by police who mistakenly suspected he and his two fleeing comrades were members of the holdup gang.

Police said Brewer and his companions, all Negroes, ignored an order to halt. The youths were carrying broom handles that the officers thought were sawed-off shotguns, a police spokesman said.

Lt. Hal Taylor said Smith, a Negro, was arrested last week on a traffic warrant and "had been a prime suspect for two weeks" in the series of robberies which occurred in a predominantly black area of north Sacramento.

Taylor said investigators were seeking "four or five" more suspects in the robberies. Two women were shot and injured in the holdups.

The district attorney's office is investigating the shooting death of Brewer, who was a sophomore at Del Norte High School where he was voted "most valuable player".

OF GOD AND MAN

'Collegiality' Still A Just Word

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Five years ago, the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, assembled in global conclave at the Vatican Council, approved overwhelmingly "the principle of collegiality."

Translated from ecclesiastical jargon, this principle means that all bishops of the church have a right to share in its government and the making of doctrinal decisions. And they have this right, not by sufferance of the Pope, but by the direct authorization of the church's founder, Jesus Christ.

Many expected in that fall of 1967 the principle of collegiality would be the most basic and far-reaching reform accomplished by the Vatican Council. Had it been implemented, it would have led to a great redistribution of power and a much-needed decentralization of authority that for centuries has been tightly held by the Pope — or more accurately, by the papal bureaucracy known as the Curia —in Rome.

But it has not happened.

"Collegiality" remains only a word to which lip service is paid —not a dynamic principle of church government.

Pope Paul pored the basic idea of shared authority when he promulgated his famous decree on contraception without even consulting his fellow bishops. Many of them were shocked —and told him so in private.

Later, the Pope seemed to be carrying out the council's plan for a "senate" of bishops, composed of elected representatives from all national hierarchies, to advise and consult with him on major problems.

The Pope set up such a senate —although he preferred to call it a "synod" —to meet at the Vatican every two years. But it became obvious at the first two synod meetings that Paul VI had no intention of giving power to this body. He balked even at letting the synod choose its own agenda, specifically refusing to permit discussion of certain hot issues such as priestly celibacy.

Whatever credibility might have remained to the "principle of collegiality" is now being deolished. Vatican sources say Paul VI has quietly shelved a plan under which representation bishops chosen by national hierarchies would have joined the College of Cardinals in electing new popes. Cardinal Leo Suenens of Belgium had urged this plan on Paul VI as the best way to give concrete expression to the concept of collegiality.

This latest rebuff to the bishops may give powerful impetus to a movement already underway in some parts of the church to go ahead and make decisions at the diocesan level without asking Rome for permission.

Because it always is done quietly and discreetly, no one knows just how much of this is taking place. But it may be far more widespread than Rome realizes. And if the trend continues, it could lead to a kind of de facto collegiality. Apparently no one, not even a pope, can hold back forever an idea whose time has come.

PROJECT IN BRAZIL

Pentecostal Revival Taking Shape In A Catholic Nation

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A Pentecostal revival is taking hold in the world's largest Roman Catholic country.

Signs of the Protestant denomination's growth range from storefront-type meeting halls reminiscent of some U.S. urban areas to huge million-dollar "Brazil for Christ" temple going up in Sao Paulo's Pompeia district.

By completion in 1975, it will accommodate 25,000 Pentecostal faithful in what the founder claims will be "the world's largest evangelical church."

"Amen, Jesus!" and "Hallelujah!" punctuate services of "Brazil for Christ," the largest of three main Pentecostal groups here. Its leader is 43-year-old Manuel de Mello.

"Now let's sing that song that's taking hold of Brazil," Mello exhorts from his pulpit.

"We're looking for revival, the power of the Father, the power of the Son, the power of the Holy Ghost!"

The lively Pentecostal services of Brazil for Christ, the Assemblies of God and the Brazil Christian Congregation are filled with hand-clapping and use of musical instruments considered unconventional by more conservative Protestant groups.

Its growth has been so spectacular that Brazil's National Conference of Bishops has undertaken a study to assess the movement's prospects in this vast Catholic nation.

From the poor sugar capitol of Recife in the northeast to this booming industrialized metropolis of 6.5 million inhabitants in the south, the characteristics of the movement remain the same: extreme devotion to "divine will," a belief in God-inspired miraculous cures, the "receiving" of the Holy Spirit and the ability to "speak in tongues" after receiving "the gift of the spirit."

A ridig moral code is common to all.

"One of the main causes of the wide growth of Pentecostal sects in Brazil could be the innate and somewhat primitive religiosity of the Brazilian," says Amaury Castanho, a Catholic priest who edits the Sao Paulo archdiocese newspaper.

"That, combined with the great African influence in his cultural formation, condition his religious behavior and explain the spreading not only of Pentecostalism but of spiritualism and Macumba as well."

In Brazil religion is often diluted with voodoo-like rites of African origin. There is widespread belief in religions brought here by African slaves and known as Macumba, Umbanda and Candomble.

The "Holy Rollers," as they are sometimes called in the United States, began missionary activity 62 years ago in Brazil.

In 1932 — two decades after the first Pentecostal Church opened — a mere 9.5 per cent of all Brazilian Protestants were Pentecostal.

Today an estimated 2 million Brazilian Pentecostals make up 60 per cent of the country's Protestant population.

Concert Of Yule Music At Cathedral

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The 40-voice choir of men and boys of Grace Cathedral will present its annual Christmas concert at 4 p.m. Dec. 17, featuring medieval and traditional carols.

The concert will open with the choir singing from the cathedral's gallery. Included in that music will be the 15th Century "Coventry Carol", "Greensleeves" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

From the chancel of the Cathedral the choir will sing the 12th Century "Verbum Patris Humanatur", "God Rest You Merry" as arranged by the English director David Willcocks and Leo Sowerby's arrangement of the "Gevaert Carol."

At the offertory during the concert the Handel "Concerto VII in B Flat Major" will be performed with John Fenstermaker, choir director, conducting, and Richard Ditewig at the organ.

The concert is open to the public.

An Appeal Program Is Under Way

Seventh-day Adventist members in Marin have launched the church's 69th World Service Appeal.

Harold M. Keehnel, Marin pastor, said "The purpose of the project is to give local people an opportunity to get acquainted with the worldwide ministry of the church and to contribute toward its support."

During the next three weeks church members will be calling house-to-house to distribute free copies of These Times magazines, which has been especially prepared for the event.

"This will not be a drive for church membership," Keehnel said, "but an effort to help people become better acquainted with us."

In describing some of his church's activities, he said some 165 Adventist college students spent last summer as foreign missionaries on a volunteer basis, assisting in hospitals, youth camps and in construction of schools and churches.

A New Form Of Lessons Is Endorsed

DES PLAINES, Ill. — (LC) — A new lectionary for Lutherans in North America, based on the series of scripture readings used by the Roman Catholic church has been approved by the Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship.

The lectionary — lessons for each Sunday and festival day of the church year — already has the approval of two church bodies participating in the ILCW. The three-year cycle of scripture lessons is scheduled to begin in Advent (December) of next year.

Eight readings from the Apocrypha, a series of books not generally included in Protestant Bibles, were recommended by the ILCW Liturgical Texts committee as alternates for the Old Testament lessons on certain Sundays. However, the ILCW meeting here voted to eliminate the recommended alternate lessons from the apocryphal book.

Instead, the inter-Lutheran commission declared that the apocryphal alternates would be "recorded in the minutes (of the ILCW) and made availabe to those who wish to use them." Lutheran lectionaries have generally not included readings from the books of the Apocrypha; and the Rev. Stanley Schneider of Columbus, Ohio, secretary of the Liturgical Texts committee, said that the recommended alternates were included because "they supported the gospel text for the day."

The ILCW used the Roman Catholic lectionary as a "base" for its deliberations, according to Mr. Schneider, secretary of the ILCW lectionary committee. Newly-revised lectionaries of the Episcopal Church and the Presbyterian churches were also consulted. The new series of lessons is "overwhelmingly" in agreement with the Roman Catholic lectionary, the ILCW was told.

Dr. Eugene Brand, head of the Commission on Worship of the Lutheran Church in America and a member of the ILCW, said that he sees a number of "preaching opportunities" in the new format.

Special Advent Rite At Church

Several guest musicians will join the choir of St. John's Church in Ross for an Advent service of Evensong and choral concert at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

R. Jay Williamson, St. John's organist and choirmaster, will conduct the group in Handel's Chandos Anthem No. 4, "O Sing Unto the Lord," and a Christmas cantata, "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," by J. S. Bach.

The anthem is one of 12 written by Handel for an English nobleman, James of Chandos, between 1717 and 1720 which is little known today.

Sunday's anthem, rescored for four parts, will be performed by the choir, with soloists Kay Collette of San Rafael, Eleanor Prugh of San Anselmo and David Logan of San Francisco.

The more familiar Bach cantata will feature soloists Claudia Siefer of San Rafael, Henry Allnutt of Tiburon and Jeffrey Davis of San Francisco.

A chamber orchestra and organ will accompany the singers.

Musicians will be Carol Phode and Steven Golden, violinists; Pamela Crookston, cellist; Joan Johnson, organist, and Shelley Masinow, oboist.

Choir Will Be Feted Tomorrow

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin will mark "choir day" tomorrow with members being honored at a brunch at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

According to Rev. James T. Adams, pastor, the choir is a capella with its music based on the traditional hymns and chants of the Bysantine era.

The(;choir's first public performance was the Crecian Festival in May. The choir was organized by Jerome Caran of San Rafael.

Concern To Women's Liberation In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of Mormon women, whose pioneer forebears threw themselves wholeheartedly into the struggle that early in this century won women the right to vote, says the modern extension of that movement sometimes goes too far.

"Anything that gets out of control becomes a hazard, whether it's fire, flood or women's lib," says Belle S. Spafford, president of the worldwide women's auxiliary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"But if properly controlled, these things mean power for us. We've reached the point in women's liberation where we need to look at ourselves objectively and see what we can do that's reasonable. We need a steadying hand."

Asked if it wasn't somewhat paradoxical for the leader of a heritag that took such a vigorous part in the women's suffrage movement to have misgivings about its present-day counterpart, the Salt Lake City resident said in an interview:

"Any good movement can become distorted. You can abuse any privilege and freedom can become license. That's not good."

Mrs. Spafford, a warmly good-humored, silver-haired woman of 77, said she sees dangers in some aspects of women's lib, such as tendencies in it to blur sexual identity and reject distinctive endowments of women and men.

"We want to preserve the nobility, dignity and femininity of women," she said. "There's a danger of some of that being lost. But I think we have too many common-sense women for that to happen."

The 450,000-member body of church women that Mrs. Spafford has headed for 27 years is formally titled the Relief Societies of the Church. It carries on extensive education programs in home-management, child-rearing and cultural development, as well as larg-scale service in nursing care and home teaching visits.

It has taken a "long pull" for women to gain their just status, Mrs. Spafford said, adding that much of the continued effort for women's rights is good, including the insistence on equal pay for equal work.

She said women also shoulh have equal opportunities for top positions in government, industry and education if they are qualified and they're free from other responsibilities.

"But the primary role of women is in the home and family," she added, a conditional note she cited often.

"Men still need wives to welcome them home at the end of the day. Children still need a good mother to come to with their little troubles."

BAPTIST SEMINARY

Students Raise Funds For Chair

Two student-led pledge days for a proposed Chair of Evangelism at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary brought in almost $6,000 in pledge funds from students, faculty and staff at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary.

Soliciting of funds for the Chair of Evangelism was announced at the seminary earlier this year, but the students' campaign and help was their idea, said Stanton H. Nash, assistant to the president at Golden Gate.

R. Eugene Kishen, master of divinity student from Fresno, is leading a Student Council-appointed committee in helping to raise the funds, for which the students' goal is $10,000. In two recent days, pledges and gifts amounted to $5,885, Kishen said. He added that many other students had indicated to him their intent to pledge in the near future.

Realizing it would be difficult to raise $10,000 among the student body, Kishen, who is pastor of First Baptist Church, Gustine, Merced County, and the student Committee for the Endowment of the Chair of Evangelism enlisted the aid of fellow students in sending out more than 400 personal letters to friends, relatives and anyone who might be willing to help.

"I believe with the response we've had in the number of letters sent out and the pledges made, we'll go over our goal of $10,000," Kishen said.

The initial idea for the student-led drive came from Kishen, who took his suggestion to the Golden Gate Student Association Council. He was immediately put in charge of a committee which Nash said produced some amazing results.

"Kishen told me if the evangelism chair wasn't established before he and his classmates were graduated, he would feel cheated," Nash said.

The students actually began their drive on Nov. 16, 1972, with a memo mailed to all students at the Golden Gate campus. The drive for funds was titled Student Involvement Now. On Nov. 22, committee members spoke in classrooms where they stressed the need for a Chair of Evangelism at the Seminarh.

Kishen said the students' goal is to be met over a three-year period. Many of those contributing have done so on a basis of contributing on a periodic basis, such as monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually, he said.

"Golden Gate is our school, and we should all be willing to support it," Kishen said. An augmented evangelism curriculum and training program is vital to growth and success of God's work among Southern Baptists in California and the West, he added.

Kishen said pledges may be sent to the Public Relations Office, Golden Gate Seminary, Mill Valley, Ca. 94941.

'Collegiality' Still A Just Word

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Five years ago, the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, assembled in global conclave at the Vatican Council, approved overwhelmingly "the principle of collegiality."

Translated from ecclesiastical jargon, this principle means that all bishops of the church have a right to share in its government and the making of doctrinal decisions. And they have this right, not by sufferance of the Pope, but by the direct authorization of the church's founder, Jesus Christ.

Many expected in that fall of 1967 the principle of collegiality would be the most basic and far-reaching reform accomplished by the Vatican Council. Had it been implemented, it would have led to a great redistribution of power and a much-needed decentralization of authority that for centuries has been tightly held by the Pope — or more accurately, by the papal bureaucracy known as the Curia —in Rome.

But it has not happened.

"Collegiality" remains only a word to which lip service is paid —not a dynamic principle of church government.

Pope Paul pored the basic idea of shared authority when he promulgated his famous decree on contraception without even consulting his fellow bishops. Many of them were shocked —and told him so in private.

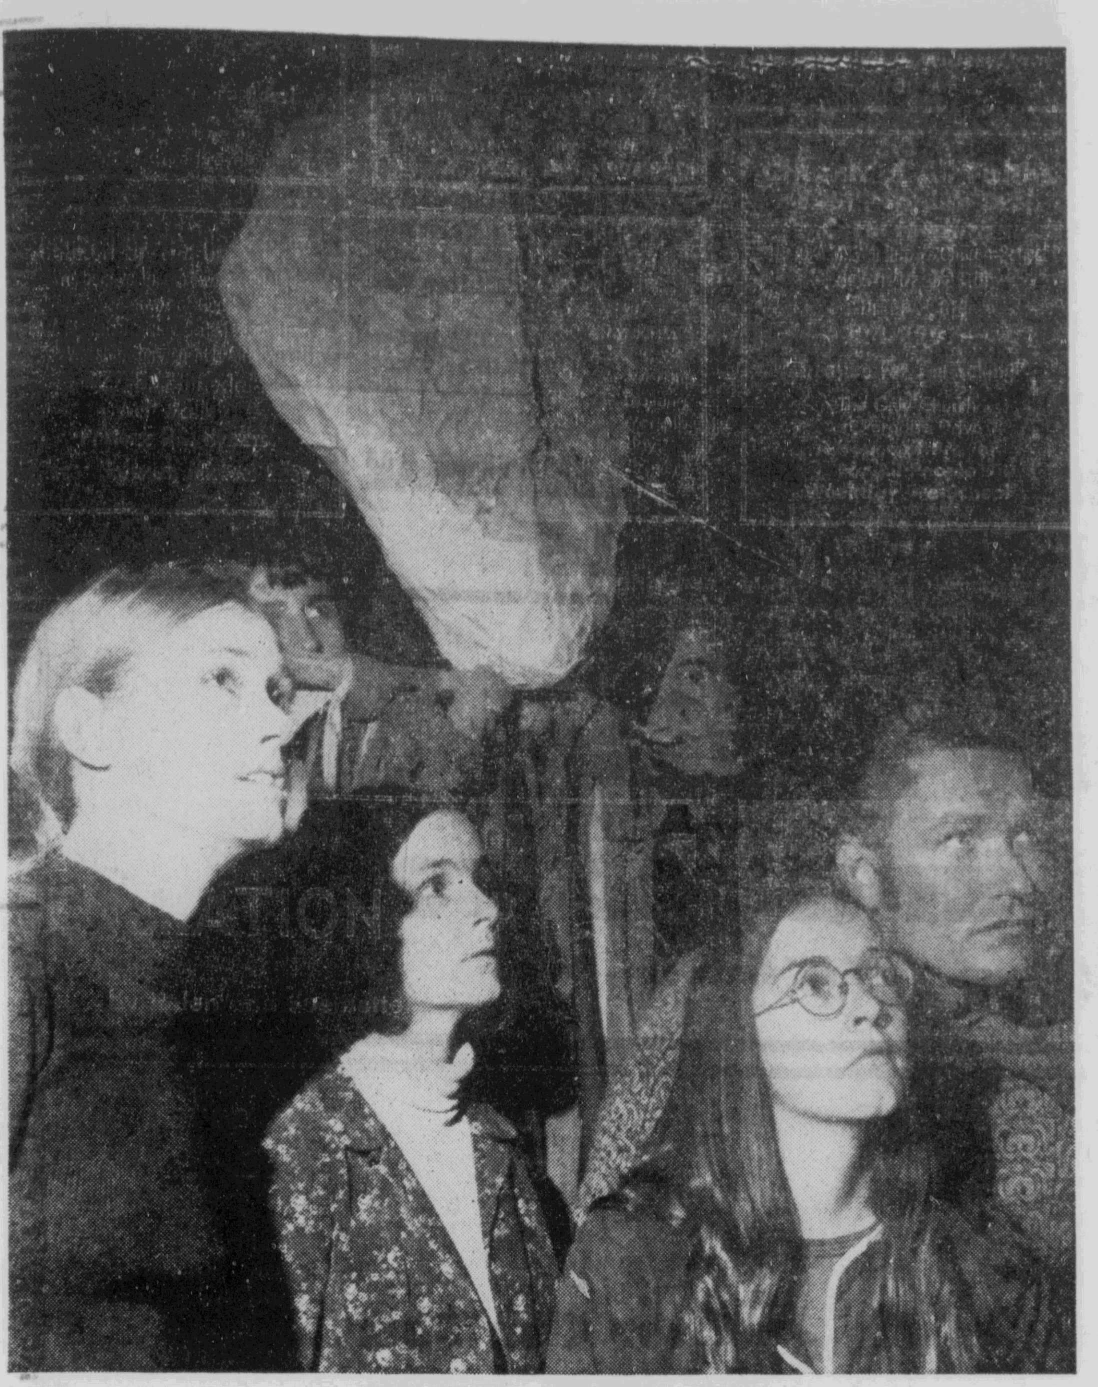
Later, the Pope seemed to be carrying out the council's plan for a "senate" of bishops, composed of elected representatives from all national hierarchies, to advise and consult with him on major problems.

The Pope set up such a senate —although he preferred to call it a "synod" —to meet at the Vatican every two years. But it became obvious at the first two synod meetings that Paul VI had no intention of giving power to this body. He balked even at letting the synod choose its own agenda, specifically refusing to permit discussion of certain hot issues such as priestly celibacy.

Whatever credibility might have remained to the "principle of collegiality" is now being deolished. Vatican sources say Paul VI has quietly shelved a plan under which representation bishops chosen by national hierarchies would have joined the College of Cardinals in electing new popes. Cardinal Leo Suenens of Belgium had urged this plan on Paul VI as the best way to give concrete expression to the concept of collegiality.

This latest rebuff to the bishops may give powerful impetus to a movement already underway in some parts of the church to go ahead and make decisions at the diocesan level without asking Rome for permission.

Because it always is done quietly and discreetly, no one knows just how much of this is taking place. But it may be far more widespread than Rome realizes. And if the trend continues, it could lead to a kind of de facto collegiality. Apparently no one, not even a pope, can hold back forever an idea whose time has come.



A DRAMA FROM JOB

Students from the drama department at San Francisco State University will present a dramatic interpretation of the Book of Job during tomorrow's 10 a.m. service at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon. The production, directed by Dr. Chris Hampton of the drama department, is another in a series of programs for the church created by Hampton and Intersection, a center for religion and the arts in San Francisco. The same program will be presented Dec. 17 at 10:15 a.m. at the First Congregational Church of San Rafael which is located at 8 North San Pedro Road.

A New Form Of Lessons Is Endorsed

DES PLAINES, Ill. — (LC) — A new lectionary for Lutherans in North America, based on the series of scripture readings used by the Roman Catholic church has been approved by the Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship.

The lectionary — lessons for each Sunday and festival day of the church year — already has the approval of two church bodies participating in the ILCW. The three-year cycle of scripture lessons is scheduled to begin in Advent (December) of next year.

Eight readings from the Apocrypha, a series of books not generally included in Protestant Bibles, were recommended by the ILCW Liturgical Texts committee as alternates for the Old Testament lessons on certain Sundays. However, the ILCW meeting here voted to eliminate the recommended alternate lessons from the apocryphal book.

Instead, the inter-Lutheran commission declared that the apocryphal alternates would be "recorded in the minutes (of the ILCW) and made availabe to those who wish to use them." Lutheran lectionaries have generally not included readings from the books of the Apocrypha; and the Rev. Stanley Schneider of Columbus, Ohio, secretary of the Liturgical Texts committee, said that the recommended alternates were included because "they supported the gospel text for the day."

The ILCW used the Roman Catholic lectionary as a "base" for its deliberations, according to Mr. Schneider, secretary of the ILCW lectionary committee. Newly-revised lectionaries of the Episcopal Church and the Presbyterian churches were also consulted. The new series of lessons is "overwhelmingly" in agreement with the Roman Catholic lectionary, the ILCW was told.

Dr. Eugene Brand, head of the Commission on Worship of the Lutheran Church in America and a member of the ILCW, said that he sees a number of "preaching opportunities" in the new format.

Special Advent Rite At Church

Several guest musicians will join the choir of St. John's Church in Ross for an Advent service of Evensong and choral concert at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

R. Jay Williamson, St. John's organist and choirmaster, will conduct the group in Handel's Chandos Anthem No. 4, "O Sing Unto the Lord," and a Christmas cantata, "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," by J. S. Bach.

The anthem is one of 12 written by Handel for an English nobleman, James of Chandos, between 1717 and 1720 which is little known today.

Sunday's anthem, rescored for four parts, will be performed by the choir, with soloists Kay Collette of San Rafael, Eleanor Prugh of San Anselmo and David Logan of San Francisco.

The more familiar Bach cantata will feature soloists Claudia Siefer of San Rafael, Henry Allnutt of Tiburon and Jeffrey Davis of San Francisco.

A chamber orchestra and organ will accompany the singers.

Musicians will be Carol Phode and Steven Golden, violinists; Pamela Crookston, cellist; Joan Johnson, organist, and Shelley Masinow, oboist.

PROJECT IN BRAZIL

Pentecostal Revival Taking Shape In A Catholic Nation

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A Pentecostal revival is taking hold in the world's largest Roman Catholic country.

Signs of the Protestant denomination's growth range from storefront-type meeting halls reminiscent of some U.S. urban areas to huge million-dollar "Brazil for Christ" temple going up in Sao Paulo's Pompeia district.

By completion in 1975, it will accommodate 25,000 Pentecostal faithful in what the founder claims will be "the world's largest evangelical church."

"Amen, Jesus!" and "Hallelujah!" punctuate services of "Brazil for Christ," the largest of three main Pentecostal groups here. Its leader is 43-year-old Manuel de Mello.

"Now let's sing that song that's taking hold of Brazil," Mello exhorts from his pulpit.

"We're looking for revival, the power of the Father, the power of the Son, the power of the Holy Ghost!"

The lively Pentecostal services of Brazil for Christ, the Assemblies of God and the Brazil Christian Congregation are filled with hand-clapping and use of musical instruments considered unconventional by more conservative Protestant groups.

Its growth has been so spectacular that Brazil's National Conference of Bishops has undertaken a study to assess the movement's prospects in this vast Catholic nation.

From the poor sugar capitol of Recife in the northeast to this booming industrialized metropolis of 6.5 million inhabitants in the south, the characteristics of the movement remain the same: extreme devotion to "divine will," a belief in God-inspired miraculous cures, the "receiving" of the Holy Spirit and the ability to "speak in tongues" after receiving "the gift of the spirit."

A ridig moral code is common to all.

"One of the main causes of the wide growth of Pentecostal sects in Brazil could be the innate and somewhat primitive religiosity of the Brazilian," says Amaury Castanho, a Catholic priest who edits the Sao Paulo archdiocese newspaper.

"That, combined with the great African influence in his cultural formation, condition his religious behavior and explain the spreading not only of Pentecostalism but of spiritualism and Macumba as well."

In Brazil religion is often diluted with voodoo-like rites of African origin. There is widespread belief in religions brought here by African slaves and known as Macumba, Umbanda and Candomble.

The "Holy Rollers," as they are sometimes called in the United States, began missionary activity 62 years ago in Brazil.

In 1932 — two decades after the first Pentecostal Church opened — a mere 9.5 per cent of all Brazilian Protestants were Pentecostal.

Today an estimated 2 million Brazilian Pentecostals make up 60 per cent of the country's Protestant population.

Concert Of Yule Music At Cathedral

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The 40-voice choir of men and boys of Grace Cathedral will present its annual Christmas concert at 4 p.m. Dec. 17, featuring medieval and traditional carols.

The concert will open with the choir singing from the cathedral's gallery. Included in that music will be the 15th Century "Coventry Carol", "Greensleeves" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

From the chancel of the Cathedral the choir will sing the 12th Century "Verbum Patris Humanatur", "God Rest You Merry" as arranged by the English director David Willcocks and Leo Sowerby's arrangement of the "Gevaert Carol."

At the offertory during the concert the Handel "Concerto VII in B Flat Major" will be performed with John Fenstermaker, choir director, conducting, and Richard Ditewig at the organ.

The concert is open to the public.

An Appeal Program Is Under Way

Seventh-day Adventist members in Marin have launched the church's 69th World Service Appeal.

Harold M. Keehnel, Marin pastor, said "The purpose of the project is to give local people an opportunity to get acquainted with the worldwide ministry of the church and to contribute toward its support."

During the next three weeks church members will be calling house-to-house to distribute free copies of These Times magazines, which has been especially prepared for the event.

"This will not be a drive for church membership," Keehnel said, "but an effort to help people become better acquainted with us."

In describing some of his church's activities, he said some 165 Adventist college students spent last summer as foreign missionaries on a volunteer basis, assisting in hospitals, youth camps and in construction of schools and churches.

Choir Will Be Feted Tomorrow

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin will mark "choir day" tomorrow with members being honored at a brunch at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

According to Rev. James T. Adams, pastor, the choir is a capella with its music based on the traditional hymns and chants of the Bysantine era.

The choir's first public performance was the Crecian Festival in May. The choir was organized by Jerome Caran of San Rafael.

Call For Work Now On Coastline Plan

BURLINGAME (AP) — The state's newly passed coastline initiative, Prop. 20, was described yesterday as "an idea whose time has come," at a joint workshop meeting of representatives of California's 15 coastal counties and 30 cities.

"We are all inhabitants of a fragile environment whether it be a physical one or a political one," Victor Calvo, chairman of the County Supervisors Association of California's Government Operations Committee, told the CSAC and League of California Cities representatives in opening remarks.

"We must either enjoy this complex environment or suffer from the damage we do to it," Calvo said. "Let us look at Prop. 20, let us examine it. It is here."

Calvo was followed by Richard "Bud" Carpenter, executive director and general counsel of the League, who made a technical presentation of the proposition's provisions.

He said that the coastal zone created by the proposition would encompass an area from Oregon to the Mexico border, extending seaward to the limits of California's jurisdiction and inland to the highest elevation of the nearest coastal mountain.

In Los Angeles, Orange, and San Diego counties, however, the boundaries would reach inland to the nearest mountain range or five miles from the mean high-tide line, whichever is closer, Carpenter said.

He said the proposition required creation of a California Coastal Zone Conservation Plan consistent with the following objectives:

The maintenance, restoration and enhancement of the overall quality of the coastline environment, including its aesthetics.

The continued existence of all species of living organisms.

The orderly and balanced utilization of coastal zone resources.

An avoidance of irreversible and irretrievable commitment of coastal resources.

Passed in November, Prop. 20 required creation of six regional commissions and a statewide "Coastal Zone Conservation Commission" to prepare a coastal plan and insure that any development occurring in the coastal zone be consistent with its objectives.

The proposition required that the plan be submitted to the state Legislature by Dec. 1, 1975.

The 12-member statewide commission will include one member from each six regional commissions and six representatives of the public.

The regional commission, varying in membership from 12 to 16 persons, represents 15 counties broken into north coast, north central coast, central coast, south central coast, south coast and San Diego.

Talk Of Gas Rationing To Check Smog

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gas rationing more stringent than that during World War II would cut gas consumption during high smog periods by 86 per cent in six Southern California counties under a federal air plan being considered here, governmental officials said yesterday.

The regional Environmental Protection Agency office said the plan, if approved, would begin in 1975 to seriously curtail motor vehicle transportation in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties from May 1 through Oct. 31 each year.

"We're not wild about gas rationing," said regional EPA spokesman Lou Jefferson. "But from our standpoint, this was the only way to cut hydrocarbons sufficiently to meet federal clean air standards."

Jefferson said the EPA has no plans to use rationing in other parts of California. He said that rationing is being considered in Houston, Tex., but has not been formally proposed there.

The mechanism for rationing has not been worked out, Jefferson added.

The road to approval is expected to be a long and perhaps bumpy one, which will include EPA review at the national level, public hearings and approval by several federal departments.

Although smog problems exist in the San Francisco Bay area and other parts of the state, Jefferson said the EPA found that "the Los Angeles area is a unique situation."

After some modifications, he said, a state clean air plan for most areas met the hydrocarbon standards set by the National Clean Air Act amendments of 1970.

However, the Southern California plan was found unsatisfactory, and it became federal responsibility, Jefferson said.

The federal government has ordered that hydrocarbons be limited .08 parts per million parts of air by 1977, with exceptions permitted only one day each year.

Los Angeles County exceeded the 1977 total on 220 days during 1971.

EPA staff members in San Francisco reportedly have been working 12-hour days to complete the preliminary plan which a U.S. District Court judge has ordered prepared by Jan. 15, at the request of Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The plan, which could be approved by next spring, is designed to prevent 520 tons of hydrocarbons from entering the Southern California atmosphere daily.

The EPA said it expects the rationing to eliminate 198 tons of hydrocarbons daily, since vehicles are responsible for 90 per cent of all smog in Southern California.

The Los Angeles Times reported the remaining 322 tons would be reduced by such means as controlling motor vehicle emissions, trapping industrial emissions and limiting use of certain polluting industrial compounds.

Innocent Plea In Morals Case

A Fairfax man charged with forcing a 9-year-old girl to copulate orally with him, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

Preliminary hearing for Frank Clifford Seewester, 22, is set for Dec. 26.

San Anselmo police arrested him Nov. 18 after linking him to the alleged sexual perversion through a license number supplied by a witness.

Police said that on Nov. 14 the girl on her way home from school was forced into a car at knifepoint and forced to commit the sex act.

Getty Buys Da La Tour For Museum

LONDON (UPI) — The Paul Getty Museum of California bought "the Beggars Brawl" by the 17th Century French artist Georges de la Tour yesterday for $930,600 in a sale at Christie's Auction rooms.

Burton Frederikson, chief curator of the museum, which was founded by U.S. oil millionaire John Paul Getty, said they would apply for an export license immediately. He expects the National Gallery in London to object to the painting leaving Britain.

Frederikson said he will be prepared to sell to the National Gallery, "if we have to," for the same price. He said there is a good chance that the National Gallery will be able to raise the money.

"The Beggars Bowl," measuring 37 by 55-½ inches was sold anonymously after its discovery in a private collection in England about a year ago. Until then it had been attributed to Caravaggio. The picture represents a group of itinerant musicians, two of whom are quarrelling.

It is one of about 34 works that have been identified as by de la Tour. There are only two other works by the artist in England.

Handbell Choirs Set Performance

The handbell choirs of St. Luke Presbyterian Church will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the chuuch sanctuary, 10 Bayview Drive, San Rafael.

Three choirs of young people will perform Christmas music on a set of 61 English handbells which were cast at the Whitechapel Foundry, London.

During the Christmas season the handbell choirs, directed by James Groves, will be performing for many churches, hospitals, rest homes and civic organizations throughout Marin County and the Bay Area.

The concert is open to the public.

New On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

"Pops" records on the busy A&M label:

MIMI FARINA and Tom Jans — "Take Heart" — A & M SP 4310:

Mimi, one of the Baez girls and widow of the ill-starred folkster and author Richard Farina, now has what seems a very satisfying partner both professionally and personally in folk singer Tom Jans.

The music, mostly their own originals, is a joy in its serenity, level-headedness and pleasant acoustic settings.

Of the 10 tunes, I liked "Letter to Jesus," of the country-religious genre, and "Reach Out," which is dedicated to the Committee's Christopher Ross. For smashing four-channel effect on your rear speakers (if you have them), try "Madman."

Speaking of setting, the cover portrait of the pair looks as though it was taken in Marin's ill-fated Marshall Hotel, where they appeared regularly before the disastrous fire.

ROGER KELLAWAY Cello Quartert — A & M SP 3034:

One of the loveliest musical experiences outside of the classical idiom that I've heard in a long time, but not four celli. Rather piano, cello and rhythm section with a small symphonic group.

Kellaway is a name frequently seen on the music credits of TV programs, and this is his Sunday cutting with fellow creative musicians, including percussionist Emil Richards, whose experiements in time-signatures have received some attention already. His work on the marimba is a vital part of this part-improvised and serene-sounding music, which is close in flavor to the "wide music" efforts of Paul Winter.

THE WINTER Consort — "Road" — A & M SP 4279:

Paul Winter's Consort has in its new LP, taped during live concerts at UCLA, combined an astonishing variety of musical styles and instrumental timbres into another heady mixture of superlative music.

Cello is an important voice in this group as well as Roger Kellaway's. Classical guitar, oboe, English horn, xylophone, and even a V-8 juice-shaker are featured along with Winter's saxophone.

Themes of Bach and Dufay are part of two of the tracks, but most of the album is the work of either cellist David Darling or guitarist Ralph Towner. "Africanus Brasileiras Americanus" is a gem with its musical idioms laid out clearly in its title.

SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '66 — "Stillness" A&M SP 4284; SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '77 — "Pais Tropical" A&M SP 4315:

Between these two LPs the Mendes group has updated their name by 11 years. A&M had a contest to allow fans to vote on the change, and I guess that approved it. They appear to have acquired an eighth member as well.

The '66 album features first-rate bass flute on the title tune, and some very nice orchestrations behind the group.

As you may know, Brasil '66/77 does not limit itself to Brazilian music — among the highlights of the first LP are "Sometimes in Winter" and "Chelsea Morning." The newer effort is packaged in a charming Rousseau-esque jungle, and seems to have more of an African influence. Gracinha and Karen, besides being fine to look upon, contribute occasional vocals. "After Midnight" is a fine close to the album.

PROCOL HARUM — "Home" A&M SP 4261:

Procol Harum has been one of the top-rated British rock groups ever since their "Whiter Shade of Pale" hit years ago.

A tight, musically responsible quartet revolving around the compositions, voice and keyboard work of talented Gary Brooker, PH has issued a series of fine albums. This one boasts nine cuts, with symbolic-absurdist lyrics that often make a lot of sense: "God's alive inside a movie! Watch the silver screen!" Keith Reid is the non-performing lyric writer. Lead guitarist Robin Trower also turns in two interesting compositions.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The 90-minute "Once Upon a Mattress" musical comedy special starring Carol Burnett on CBS Dec. 12 is the second time around for this one-time New York stage success. But this is a new production, this time in color, whereas the 1964 telecast was in black and white. Besides Miss Burnett, Jack Gilford and Jane White were in the original stage presentation and in the 1964 video special.

Shirley Jones, star of ABC's "The Partridge Family" series, has a Bell Records single, "Ain't Love Easy," on the market. The son was introduced on the Nov. 3 episode of the television series.

ABC will have an early 1973 airing of a special starring Marlo Thomas late of the successful "That Girl" series. The show is "How to Be a Woman" which has been written by the husband-wife team of Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, who wrote Broadway's "Lovers and Strangers" of two seasns ago.

New On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

"Pops" records on the busy A&M label:

MIMI FARINA and Tom Jans — "Take Heart" — A & M SP 4310:

Mimi, one of the Baez girls and widow of the ill-starred folkster and author Richard Farina, now has what seems a very satisfying partner both professionally and personally in folk singer Tom Jans.

The music, mostly their own originals, is a joy in its serenity, level-headedness and pleasant acoustic settings.

Of the 10 tunes, I liked "Letter to Jesus," of the country-religious genre, and "Reach Out," which is dedicated to the Committee's Christopher Ross. For smashing four-channel effect on your rear speakers (if you have them), try "Madman."

Speaking of setting, the cover portrait of the pair looks as though it was taken in Marin's ill-fated Marshall Hotel, where they appeared regularly before the disastrous fire.

ROGER KELLAWAY Cello Quartert — A & M SP 3034:

One of the loveliest musical experiences outside of the classical idiom that I've heard in a long time, but not four celli. Rather piano, cello and rhythm section with a small symphonic group.

Kellaway is a name frequently seen on the music credits of TV programs, and this is his Sunday cutting with fellow creative musicians, including percussionist Emil Richards, whose experiements in time-signatures have received some attention already. His work on the marimba is a vital part of this part-improvised and serene-sounding music, which is close in flavor to the "wide music" efforts of Paul Winter.

THE WINTER Consort — "Road" — A & M SP 4279:

Paul Winter's Consort has in its new LP, taped during live concerts at UCLA, combined an astonishing variety of musical styles and instrumental timbres into another heady mixture of superlative music.

Cello is an important voice in this group as well as Roger Kellaway's. Classical guitar, oboe, English horn, xylophone, and even a V-8 juice-shaker are featured along with Winter's saxophone.

Themes of Bach and Dufay are part of two of the tracks, but most of the album is the work of either cellist David Darling or guitarist Ralph Towner. "Africanus Brasileiras Americanus" is a gem with its musical idioms laid out clearly in its title.

SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '66 — "Stillness" A&M SP 4284; SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '77 — "Pais Tropical" A&M SP 4315:

Between these two LPs the Mendes group has updated their name by 11 years. A&M had a contest to allow fans to vote on the change, and I guess that approved it. They appear to have acquired an eighth member as well.

The '66 album features first-rate bass flute on the title tune, and some very nice orchestrations behind the group.

As you may know, Brasil '66/77 does not limit itself to Brazilian music — among the highlights of the first LP are "Sometimes in Winter" and "Chelsea Morning." The newer effort is packaged in a charming Rousseau-esque jungle, and seems to have more of an African influence. Gracinha and Karen, besides being fine to look upon, contribute occasional vocals. "After Midnight" is a fine close to the album.

PROCOL HARUM — "Home" A&M SP 4261:

Procol Harum has been one of the top-rated British rock groups ever since their "Whiter Shade of Pale" hit years ago.

A tight, musically responsible quartet revolving around the compositions, voice and keyboard work of talented Gary Brooker, PH has issued a series of fine albums. This one boasts nine cuts, with symbolic-absurdist lyrics that often make a lot of sense: "God's alive inside a movie! Watch the silver screen!" Keith Reid is the non-performing lyric writer. Lead guitarist Robin Trower also turns in two interesting compositions.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The 90-minute "Once Upon a Mattress" musical comedy special starring Carol Burnett on CBS Dec. 12 is the second time around for this one-time New York stage success. But this is a new production, this time in color, whereas the 1964 telecast was in black and white. Besides Miss Burnett, Jack Gilford and Jane White were in the original stage presentation and in the 1964 video special.

Shirley Jones, star of ABC's "The Partridge Family" series, has a Bell Records single, "Ain't Love Easy," on the market. The son was introduced on the Nov. 3 episode of the television series.

ABC will have an early 1973 airing of a special starring Marlo Thomas late of the successful "That Girl" series. The show is "How to Be a Woman" which has been written by the husband-wife team of Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, who wrote Broadway's "Lovers and Strangers" of two seasns ago.

Profile Of A Marinite

William E. Waste: From Boulder Dam To Giant Shipyard

By JEFF GREER

William E. Waste of Kentfield helped make Marin County a maritime power during World War II. In fact, he even changed geography a bit to make sure ships bearing Marin-related names sailed under Allied colors.

But, three decades later, he still considers himself "a member of the commuter club" to San Francisco's financial district, and claims, "I don't know Marin as well as I should."

His business and social associates through the years might dispute the claim as too modest. Waste came to Marin County in 1942 as vice president and general manager of Marinship Corp., subsidiary of W. A. Bechtel Co., a world-wide heavy construction firm.

Under Waste's guidance, Marinship built a 17-million-dollar shipyard on the bay shoreline north of Sausalito. It launched 93 Liberty ships and oil tankers, shattering numerous world shipbuilding records.

WHEN PEACE stilled the riveters' guns, Waste moved into Bechtel's main offices across the Golden Gate Bridge, but he continued to live in Kentfield. Among his dozens of organizational activities, he served as president of the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, from 1945 to 1956.

During his tenure, the Marin Council's headquarters was constructed on A Street in San Rafael —"we scrounged materials and help wherever we could, and Harry Albert gave us a substantial cash gift." Waste also served on the scouts'executive committee for the Bay Region.

"I was never a Boy Scout — it didn't come along in time for me. I'm 75," Waste said. "But both my sons are Eagle Scouts."

WASTE AND the Marinship workers had to resort to innocent subterfuge to get Marin names onto ships they were building.

"We wanted to name a ship the Mount Tamalpais," Waste recalled as he pointed out numerous ship models in his tenth-floor office in San Francisco's Industrial Indemnity Building. "But the Navy wouldn't let us. The ships we were building were supposed to be named after rivers or oil fields."

A search of the maps revealed "an unnamed creek running through Kent Woodlands" near Waste's home. He said Marinship officials persuaded geographers to name it Tamalpais Creek — and thus a ship was named for Marin's landmark mountain, more or less.

ANOTHER VESSEL, a tanker, was named the Marin Hills because Waste learned that historians recorded oil seepages near Point Reyes.

Waste's firm changed not only Marin maps, but the looks of Sausalito, too, almost overnight. The city was in the waning days of its importance as a rail center, when suddenly it became a shipyard town.

"Seventy-saven thousand people went through our hiring hall" during the war years, Waste recalled. "We started out with a work force of 20,000, but we streamlined the production line until we only needed 9,000 by the time we were through. It was quite a learning course."

NEARLY AS many women as men worked in the Marinship yards, as welders and laborers, "but not as heavy equipment operators," Waste said. The pride of the yard was the huge cranes that worked in pairs, lifting as much as 100 tons of prefabricated ships into place at a time.

Turning to a picture of Marinship in its heyday, Waste pointed out a shipbuilding innovation he pioneered — huge ramps that ran alongside the ship at deck level, greatly speeding outfitting the vessels. The workers were able to build a complete ship in a record 29 days, he said.

Waste still believes that Marin "missed a real opportunity" to become a major industrial center "if Sausalito had wanted to." But the dismantling of the shipyard was "badly planned and never thought through."

THE OLD MOLDING loft which was intended to be demolished but still is standing "will make a good fire some day," Waste warned.

The abandonment of Northwestern Pacific Railroad lines may be another costly example of "lack of foresight," Waste said.

Marin County's dependence on highways and the Golden Gate Bridge for transportation "has pretty well reached the saturation point," Waste added. "The sad part of it is, there's nothing being done" to really solve the commuter's problems, the industry executive declared.

"I'VE NEVER been a believer in the need for the Golden Gate Bridge District," Waste added. "They thought the ferryboats and the buses were going to divert the cars from downtown San Francisco, but it's bad as ever."

Waste said he believes "Marin County missed its golden opportunity — the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. Marin County had a free ride. The bridge could have had a mile of single track. The load with modern, lightweight rail cars would be peanuts compared to present commuter loads. But they blew it."

"Monkey business" led to the bridge board's decision against trains, Waste charged.

WILLIAM E. WASTE of Kentfield recalls most vividly the hectic days of World War II, when he headed Marinship shipyard and ship building operations that set new world records. At the age of 75, he still commutes daily to his San Francisco financial district office to work, surrounded by models of ships and photos of yards, as a consultant for Pacific Indemnity Co. and for other Bechtel Corp. interests.

"THE ENGINEERS said the bridge understory could support trains, but they had to answer a lot of loaded questions. The answers they gave were correct, but the questions were biased," he said.

Continued population growth in Marin will merely add to San Francisco congestion during business hours, even though many firms such as Bechtel are moving their office forces out of the city into suburbs, Waste opined. "Most of the big firms may want to put their working forces outside the city, but they want that financial district mailing address for the home office," he explained.

Waste journeys daily to his office, where he is a consultant for Pacific Indemnity and other Bechtel interests. He sees firsthand the problems of the commuter.

THE LONGTIME executive has close ties with the Bay Area. He was born in Berkeley in 1897, the son of the late chief justice of the California Supreme Court, William H. Waste.

He was studying law at the University of California in Berkeley when World War I began. Young Waste went to work in an Alameda shipyard as a rivet passer. He later joined the Army, earned sergeant's stripes and was in officer candidate school at Fort MacArthur near Waco, Tex. ("What a mudhole that was!" he exclaimed) when Armistice Day arrived.

Returning to Berkeley, he switched his studies to economics and business administration. After graduating, he joined a steamship line as office boy — and by 1931 was head of its ship operations and export lumber department.

THAT SAME year he joined the W. A. Bechtel Co. and — in the depths of the depression — was manager of purchasing for the gigantic Boulder Dam project for the Six Companies consortium that included Bechtel.

In 1934 he returned to the Bay Area to head construction of the piers at the Oakland end of the Bay Bridge. He has held an ever higher series of corporate offices, and after World War II was executive vice president of Bechtel Corp. and a director of Industrial Indemnity Co.

Representing Bechtel in the community, he became the first president of the Bay Area Council, which he described as "a sort of industrial Stanford Research Institute," gathering data and offering proposals on Bay Area growth.

HE IS NO longer active with the Bay Area Council, which, he said, "unfortunately has gotten tagged with a chamber of commerce approach."

And Waste has eased out of active directorship in the American Ordinance Assn. — he was its president — as well as the boards of California Taxpayers Assn., the Commonwealth Club, Pacific School of Religion, San Francisco Council of Churches, World Affairs Council, World Trade Club, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations.

He still keeps up his 49-year membership in the San Francisco Kiwanis Club, several Masonic organizations, the Franklin Hospital Foundation Board, the Menninger Foundation board and a score of other organizations.

HE IS AN avid railroad fan and stamp collector. His California Street office is filled with large photos and paintings of now-vanished railroad scenes.

As for hunting, fishing or other avocations, "I have too many interests and not enough time," Waste declared.

"But I do a lot of gardening, and I'm the 'do-it-yourself guy' around the home" at 44 Hill Drive, Kentfield.

From Boulder Dam to a giant shipyard to leaky faucets is quite a range — but William E. Waste has taken it all in stride.

New Life For Western Classics

Sausalito Firm Specializes In Our Regional History

By DON KEOWN

From an office building along Sausalito's Bridgeway a young couple from New England is pioneering with something new in book publishing.

From there, at 3030 Bridgeway, where Richard and Dori Gould and their Comstock Editions share space with a boat dealer, realtors, two other publishers and others, comes a steady stream of paperback books of regional interest to western America.

The Goulds are winning their gamble that important books of keen regional interest but not justifying national distribution can be reprinted profitably for local sales only.

Sharing the gamble with the Goulds is another husband-and-wife publishing team, Ian and Betty Ballantine of Ballantine Books Inc., one of the nation's busiest paperback houses and headquartered in New York City.

COMSTOCK Editions has functioned as the western subsidiary of Ballantine since operations began in Sausalito in August, 1970. Thus Ballantine is the only major publishing firm in America to have such a regional affiliate.

New Englanders Richard and Dori met while both were attending the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He began with a career as a doctor of medicine in mind, while she was studying journalism. After college, they worked together in research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston while she served as an editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

They were married in 1959. Richard went to work for a department store, setting up its book department "and getting my first really good idea of what the publishing world was like." He liked what he saw, and when New York publisher Dodd, Mead and Co. offered him a job, he accepted. The next two years were spent with various publishers.

"I HAD DECIDED that I really liked books," he says. "They were my thing."

Meanwhile Dori had settled down to the rearing of a family. The Goulds have two children, Timothy, now 9, and Gillian, now 7.

In the course of Richard's work, the Goulds became good friends of Ian and Betty Ballantine. And when the Goulds moved to California, the friendship was deepened rather than weakened by the distance between the two couples.

RICHARD GOULD was then working for Simon & Schuster Inc. and Ballantine was then affiliated with Simon & Schuster. But the Ballantine operation had become so large that it severed the affiliation and became an independent publishing house. And Gould decided to associate himself with Ballantine instead of Simon & Schuster — "it was really a case of choosing a person over a company."

Says Gould: "Over the years we had discussed with the Ballantines our own particular concept of regional publishing. While no major house had tried the idea, we felt that books could succeed without a national distribution if the regional interest was strong enough. And so we sat down, talked it over with the Ballantines, and we all decided to take the gamble."

Dori Gould, no longer a full-time housewife, was in on the discussions and planning from the start.

AND SO COMSTOCK Editions had its beginnings in Sausalito in August, 1970, with Richard Gould as publisher, Dori Gould as editor, and a part-time secretary completing the staff. And with Ballantine becoming the first parent publishing firm with a fledgling regional house as an offspring.

Why did the Goulds choose Sausalito as home base for their Comstock Editions?

The Goulds explained: "We had lived in Sausalito for a time after coming West and before moving to San Anselmo (where they still reside in Sleepy Hollow). And we liked Sausalito

THE CHOICE of the cover art can be all-important in the paperback book publishing business. Dori and Richard Gould of Comstock Editions, Sausalito, make their selections from photographs, sketches, watercolors and oil paintings, both old and newly commissioned, for the western American classic reprints and originals they publish. And thus daughter Gillian, 7, has an "art gallery" of western scenes that she can peruse and dream about the past of a colorful region.

"Monkey business" led to the bridge board's decision against trains, Waste charged.

"THE ENGINEERS said the bridge understory could support trains, but they had to answer a lot of loaded questions. The answers they gave were correct, but the questions were biased," he said.

Continued population growth in Marin will merely add to San Francisco congestion during business hours, even though many firms such as Bechtel are moving their office forces out of the city into suburbs, Waste opined. "Most of the big firms may want to put their working forces outside the city, but they want that financial district mailing address for the home office," he explained.

Waste journeys daily to his office, where he is a consultant for Pacific Indemnity and other Bechtel interests. He sees firsthand the problems of the commuter.

THE LONGTIME executive has close ties with the Bay Area. He was born in Berkeley in 1897, the son of the late chief justice of the California Supreme Court, William H. Waste.

He was studying law at the University of California in Berkeley when World War I began. Young Waste went to work in an Alameda shipyard as a rivet passer. He later joined the Army, earned sergeant's stripes and was in officer candidate school at Fort MacArthur near Waco, Tex. ("What a mudhole that was!" he exclaimed) when Armistice Day arrived.

Returning to Berkeley, he switched his studies to economics and business administration. After graduating, he joined a steamship line as office boy — and by 1931 was head of its ship operations and export lumber department.

THAT SAME year he joined the W. A. Bechtel Co. and — in the depths of the depression — was manager of purchasing for the gigantic Boulder Dam project for the Six Companies consortium that included Bechtel.

In 1934 he returned to the Bay Area to head construction of the piers at the Oakland end of the Bay Bridge. He has held an ever higher series of corporate offices, and after World War II was executive vice president of Bechtel Corp. and a director of Industrial Indemnity Co.

Representing Bechtel in the community, he became the first president of the Bay Area Council, which he described as "a sort of industrial Stanford Research Institute," gathering data and offering proposals on Bay Area growth.

HE IS NO longer active with the Bay Area Council, which, he said, "unfortunately has gotten tagged with a chamber of commerce approach."

And Waste has eased out of active directorship in the American Ordinance Assn. — he was its president — as well as the boards of California Taxpayers Assn., the Commonwealth Club, Pacific School of Religion, San Francisco Council of Churches, World Affairs Council, World Trade Club, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations.

He still keeps up his 49-year membership in the San Francisco Kiwanis Club, several Masonic organizations, the Franklin Hospital Foundation Board, the Menninger Foundation board and a score of other organizations.

HE IS AN avid railroad fan and stamp collector. His California Street office is filled with large photos and paintings of now-vanished railroad scenes.

As for hunting, fishing or other avocations, "I have too many interests and not enough time," Waste declared.

"But I do a lot of gardening, and I'm the 'do-it-yourself guy' around the home" at 44 Hill Drive, Kentfield.

From Boulder Dam to a giant shipyard to leaky faucets is quite a range — but William E. Waste has taken it all in stride.

very much. It is such a lovely place.

"And its central location gives us access to San Francisco and to other cities without confining us to a metropolis. Writers, too, find it an easy place to visit."

WHY, THEN, did they decide upon San Anselmo instead of Sausalito for their own residence?"Sausalito is a town for adults only."

Since they opened the doors of their Comstock Editions offices, the Goulds have published 87 books at the rate of about four a month.

"When you consider that more than 400 new paperbacks go onto the newsstands every month, our output isn't really so big," Richard says.

In keeping with their plan to emphasize western classics out of print and give them a new life, the Goulds began with reprints of George Stewart's "Committee of Vigilance" and Don Berry's "Moontrap," the latter an account of early-day life on the Oregon coast.

SINCE THEN the Goulds have included five "originals" receiving their first publication on their lists.

Good originals on western subjects are difficult to find, they say. Generally the idea for the subject for these books has originated with the Goulds, and then they have found an author to execute it. "But," they add, "almost invariably we find that the author has also been thinking about the same or a similar idea, on his own hook."

Maintains Dori Gould: "There is really no such thing as an original idea. They are always in the air, free for the grabbing. And almost always two people will pluck one of those ideas out of the air almost simultaneously, unaware of what the other is doing.

"That is the way it has been with us and the authors of our originals."

WHILE THE Goulds expect to increase the number of original books out of Comstock Editions, they also plan to step up their total production, so that the ratio between reprints and non-reprints will remain basically unchanged.

"We want to keep our commitment to the western classics," they say.

Isn't there the danger that the supply of worthwhile regional classics available for reprint will be exhausted?

"We were fearful of that at first," they reply. "But since we have got involved, it has become apparent that the supply is much larger than we had anticipated. At this time, it is nowhere near happening. We are finding more and more western books of value — and we haven't even started going into original western literature as yet. The few novels we have published have all been reprints."

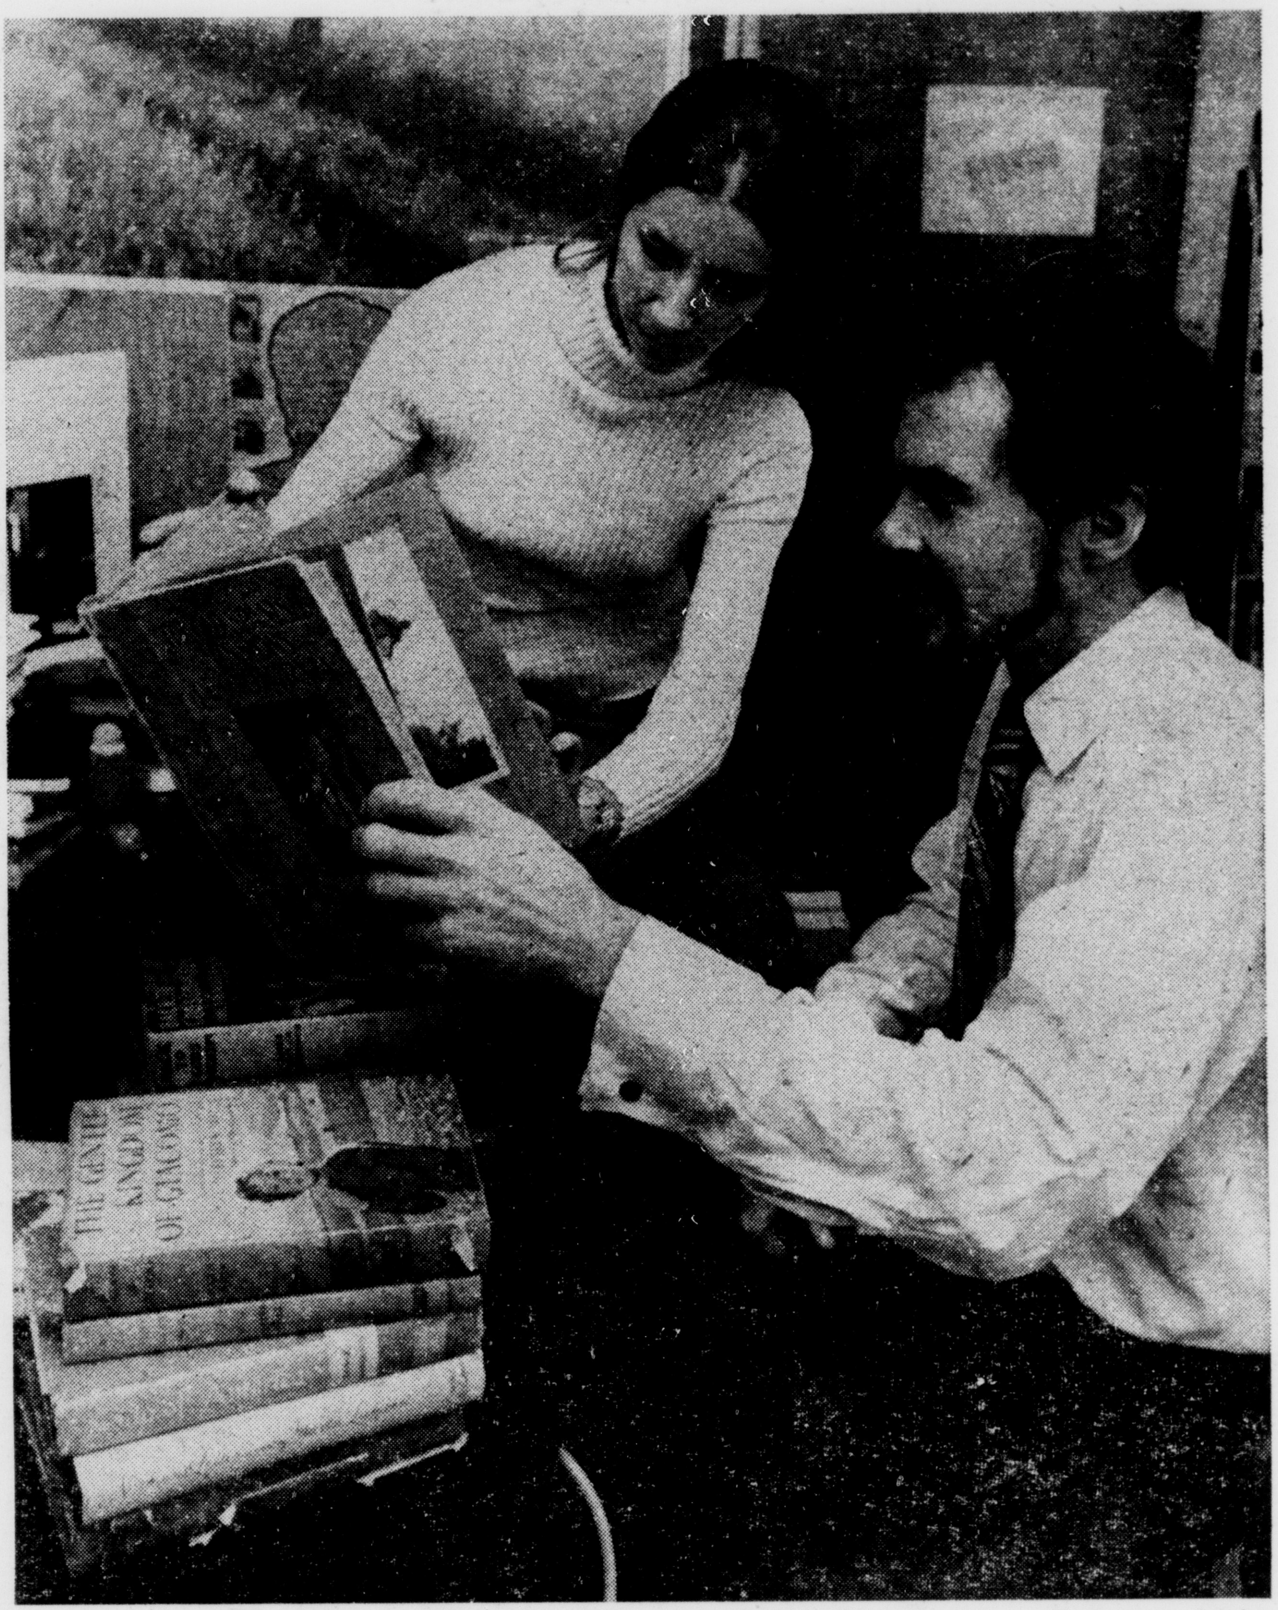
HOW DO THE Goulds find their books for reprinting?

Usually, they say, the first clue comes by word of mouth. "We will hear about a wonderful book, but often it works out that we can't find it anywhere. So we will stay after it, and eventually track it down, through the catalogs, antique shops, used book stores or some such place.

"Then we have to read the book to see if it is really as good as we have been told it was."

If it passes that test, the Goulds then proceed with its production, now reading the book for corrections and annotations.

"WE HAVE abridged only one of the books that we have reprinted. We did that only with the author's permission, and Dori was opposed to it, even then," says Richard. "And she was right. We will never again abridge a book."



PART OF THE JOBS of Richard and Dori Gould as publisher and editor of Comstock Editions, the Sausalito-based subsidiary of Ballantine Books, is to read through stacks of old and often rare books in search of work worthy of reprint, or of ideas for, Comstock originals.

Type for a Comstock Edition is set from the original book or from a Zerox copy of it. "Which means that we sometimes have to destroy a copy of the book, and remember that we are dealing with really rare books, in order to get our copies."

The books are printed offset by a Tennessee printer, W. F. Hall, who specializes in small paperbacks ("there is no one in the West who does") and who has had an extended association with Ballantine.

A MINIMUM printing of a Comstock Editions book is 25,000 copies. "If we can't sell that many, there is no sense in printing."

The covers for the Comstock books come from many sources — sometimes from old watercolors or oils or photographs (the photo used on the cover of Marinite Richard Dillon's "The Hatchet Men" was discovered in a San Francisco second-hand shop). Once a shadow box was used for a cover. Sometimes they are obtained through Ballantine's services in the East — "although we will first let them know exactly what they want, and then approve or have revised a preliminary sketch or painting before they proceed with the final work."

And sometimes the Goulds

New Life For Western Classics

Sausalito Firm Specializes In Our Regional History

By DON KEOWN

From an office building along Sausalito's Bridgeway a young couple from New England is pioneering with something new in book publishing.

From there, at 3030 Bridgeway, where Richard and Dori Gould and their Comstock Editions share space with a boat dealer, realtors, two other publishers and others, comes a steady stream of paperback books of regional interest to western America.

The Goulds are winning their gamble that important books of keen regional interest but not justifying national distribution can be reprinted profitably for local sales only.

Sharing the gamble with the Goulds is another husband-and-wife publishing team, Ian and Betty Ballantine of Ballantine Books Inc., one of the nation's busiest paperback houses and headquartered in New York City.

COMSTOCK Editions has functioned as the western subsidiary of Ballantine since operations began in Sausalito in August, 1970. Thus Ballantine is the only major publishing firm in America to have such a regional affiliate.

New Englanders Richard and Dori met while both were attending the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He began with a career as a doctor of medicine in mind, while she was studying journalism. After college, they worked together in research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston while she served as an editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

They were married in 1959. Richard went to work for a department store, setting up its book department "and getting my first really good idea of what the publishing world was like." He liked what he saw, and when New York publisher Dodd, Mead and Co. offered him a job, he accepted. The next two years were spent with various publishers.

"I HAD DECIDED that I really liked books," he says. "They were my thing."

Meanwhile Dori had settled down to the rearing of a family. The Goulds have two children, Timothy, now 9, and Gillian, now 7.

In the course of Richard's work, the Goulds became good friends of Ian and Betty Ballantine. And when the Goulds moved to California, the friendship was deepened rather than weakened by the distance between the two couples.

RICHARD GOULD was then working for Simon & Schuster Inc. and Ballantine was then affiliated with Simon & Schuster. But the Ballantine operation had become so large that it severed the affiliation and became an independent publishing house. And Gould decided to associate himself with Ballantine instead of Simon & Schuster — "it was really a case of choosing a person over a company."

Says Gould: "Over the years we had discussed with the Ballantines our own particular concept of regional publishing. While no major house had tried the idea, we felt that books could succeed without a national distribution if the regional interest was strong enough. And so we sat down, talked it over with the Ballantines, and we all decided to take the gamble."

Dori Gould, no longer a full-time housewife, was in on the discussions and planning from the start.

AND SO COMSTOCK Editions had its beginnings in Sausalito in August, 1970, with Richard Gould as publisher, Dori Gould as editor, and a part-time secretary completing the staff. And with Ballantine becoming the first parent publishing firm with a fledgling regional house as an offspring.

Why did the Goulds choose Sausalito as home base for their Comstock Editions?

The Goulds explained: "We had lived in Sausalito for a time after coming West and before moving to San Anselmo (where they still reside in Sleepy Hollow). And we liked Sausalito

THE CHOICE of the cover art can be all-important in the paperback book publishing business. Dori and Richard Gould of Comstock Editions, Sausalito, make their selections from photographs, sketches, watercolors and oil paintings, both old and newly commissioned, for the western American classic reprints and originals they publish. And thus daughter Gillian, 7, has an "art gallery" of western scenes that she can peruse and dream about the past of a colorful region.

Today, no room is complete without the carpet treatment and its popularity is well justified. It not only is a great decorating tool but carpet's contribution to the quiet of the home alone makes it deserving of the gold-star treatment.

Carpet provides safety in many areas throughout a home, particularly on stairways, in bathrooms, kitchens and in any area where a fall could lead to injuries.

The durability of carpeting as well as ease of care, gives it a special spot in the home where the action is. And why not? No more back breaking chores of scrubbing, waxing and buffing. It's certainly more comfortable to walk on and it's far less fatiguing.

With winter coming it also helps to insulate your home and eliminate those cold floors . . . Now it is the time to buy and install your carpet and at RAFAEL FLOORS our personnel are well qualified to help you choose the correct carpet. They can also help with any decorating problems you may have.

A Commitment To The Western Classics

will deal directly with the artist or photographer.

UNFORTUNATELY, the Goulds say, western American artists do not seem to be doing the kind of work suited to their covers. "They are more into abstract and impressionistic things than realism," they explain.

A good many of the beautiful paintings used by the Goulds for their bookcovers are coming from England where realism is still held in high esteem.

Although most of their books are reprints, the Goulds neverthe less work closely with the authors.

"THEY ARE delighted by the opportunity to again receive some remuneration from books they wrote years ago. Sometimes, too, they are pleased to have a chance to update their material, or to correct errors in the original editions that have long bothered them."

For the authors of their originals, the Goulds furnish all the usual editorial services expected of a publisher.

Comstock Editions paperbacks are priced from $1.25 to $1.95, with 90 per cent of the book at the $1.25 figure. "We find that the price does make a very big difference in our sales volumes."

SO FAR THE biggest Comstock seller has been "Skid Road," a history of Seattle by Murray Morgan, that was originally brought out in hardback in 1951 by Viking and then brought out again by that same house in 1959 in a revised edition.

At the Goulds' request, Morgan again revised his text for the Comstock paperback edition, working from a hospital bed while fighting off an attack of pneumonia. It has sold 65,000 copies for Comstock, and is still selling briskly.

For his favorite books among the 87 brought out to date under Comstock's imprint, Richard Gould selects "Back Packing Guide to the Northwest" and "Back Packing Guide to California," both by Tom Winnett of Berkeley, both originals "for which the ideas originated with us," and both doing well commercially.

DORI GOULD'S favorite iu a reprint, "The Sacrilegious Shore" by Wallace Thompson.

"It is a history of the Spanish invasion and the era of the conquistadores that was originally published in England and received magnificent reviews there, but for some reason just never was picked up and published in this country," she relates. "We feel very fortunate in having been able to do it." It is just out this fall.

Another newly published paperback for which the Goulds have especially high expectations is "Missions of California," a collection of pieces on the Franciscan missions taken from the pages of Westways magazine of the Automobile Club of Southern California and edited for the book by Davis Dutton. Westways is the copublisher with Comstock of this $1.50 original.

TWO MORE late additions to Comstock Editions are "Here They Dug the Gold," George F. Willison's classic story of the Leadville, Colo., gold rush — and especially of H. A. W. Tabor; and "Ark of Empire," Idwal Jones' history of San Francisco's Montgomery Block — and especially of Henry W. Halleck.

Other Comstock Editions range from William Saroyan's "Bicycle Rider in Beverly Hills" to Curt Gentry's "The Madams of San Francisco, from Isabella Bird's "Ladies' Life in the Rocky Mountains" to Harry Sinclair Drago's "Notorious Ladies of the West." Richard Dillon's "The Embarcadero" and "The Hatchet Men" are on the lists.

What sort of an audience do these kind of books appeal to? To begin with, very largely a regional one, although Comstock books, despite their restricted sales area, frequently find their way outside the western half of the USA.

AS FOR THE age range, the Goulds have discovered to their pleasure that interest in the Old West isn't confined to older history buffs. The Comstock Editions stall at the San Francisco Book Fair was crowded throughout the event "with some very hip kids making up the majority of our visitors. They love the outdoors. And they seem to have a yearning for adventure."

Don Berry is an especially

Marin Publishers Save Books From Extinction

popular writer with this age group, the Goulds say.

What are the Comstock plans for the future?

"WE HAVE thought about hardcover books," Richard admits, "but for a regional publishing house, that would be hard to do. For one thing, there are essentially two very different channels of distribution. Our paperbacks sell largely through the newsstands. For hardcover distribution, you have to shift to the bookstores.

"And make no mistake about it, distribution is the key to success in publishing. You must go where you reach the greatest number of people who might be interested in your product. And when you are limited in staff and time, it is probably best to concentrate upon one of those channels."

So what the Goulds foresee for the future is a stepped-up schedule of doing pretty much the same kind of thing they have been doing successfully so far, with some expansion of their field.

"FOR INSTANCE," they say, "we really haven't gone into original western literature as yet. All our novels have been reprints."

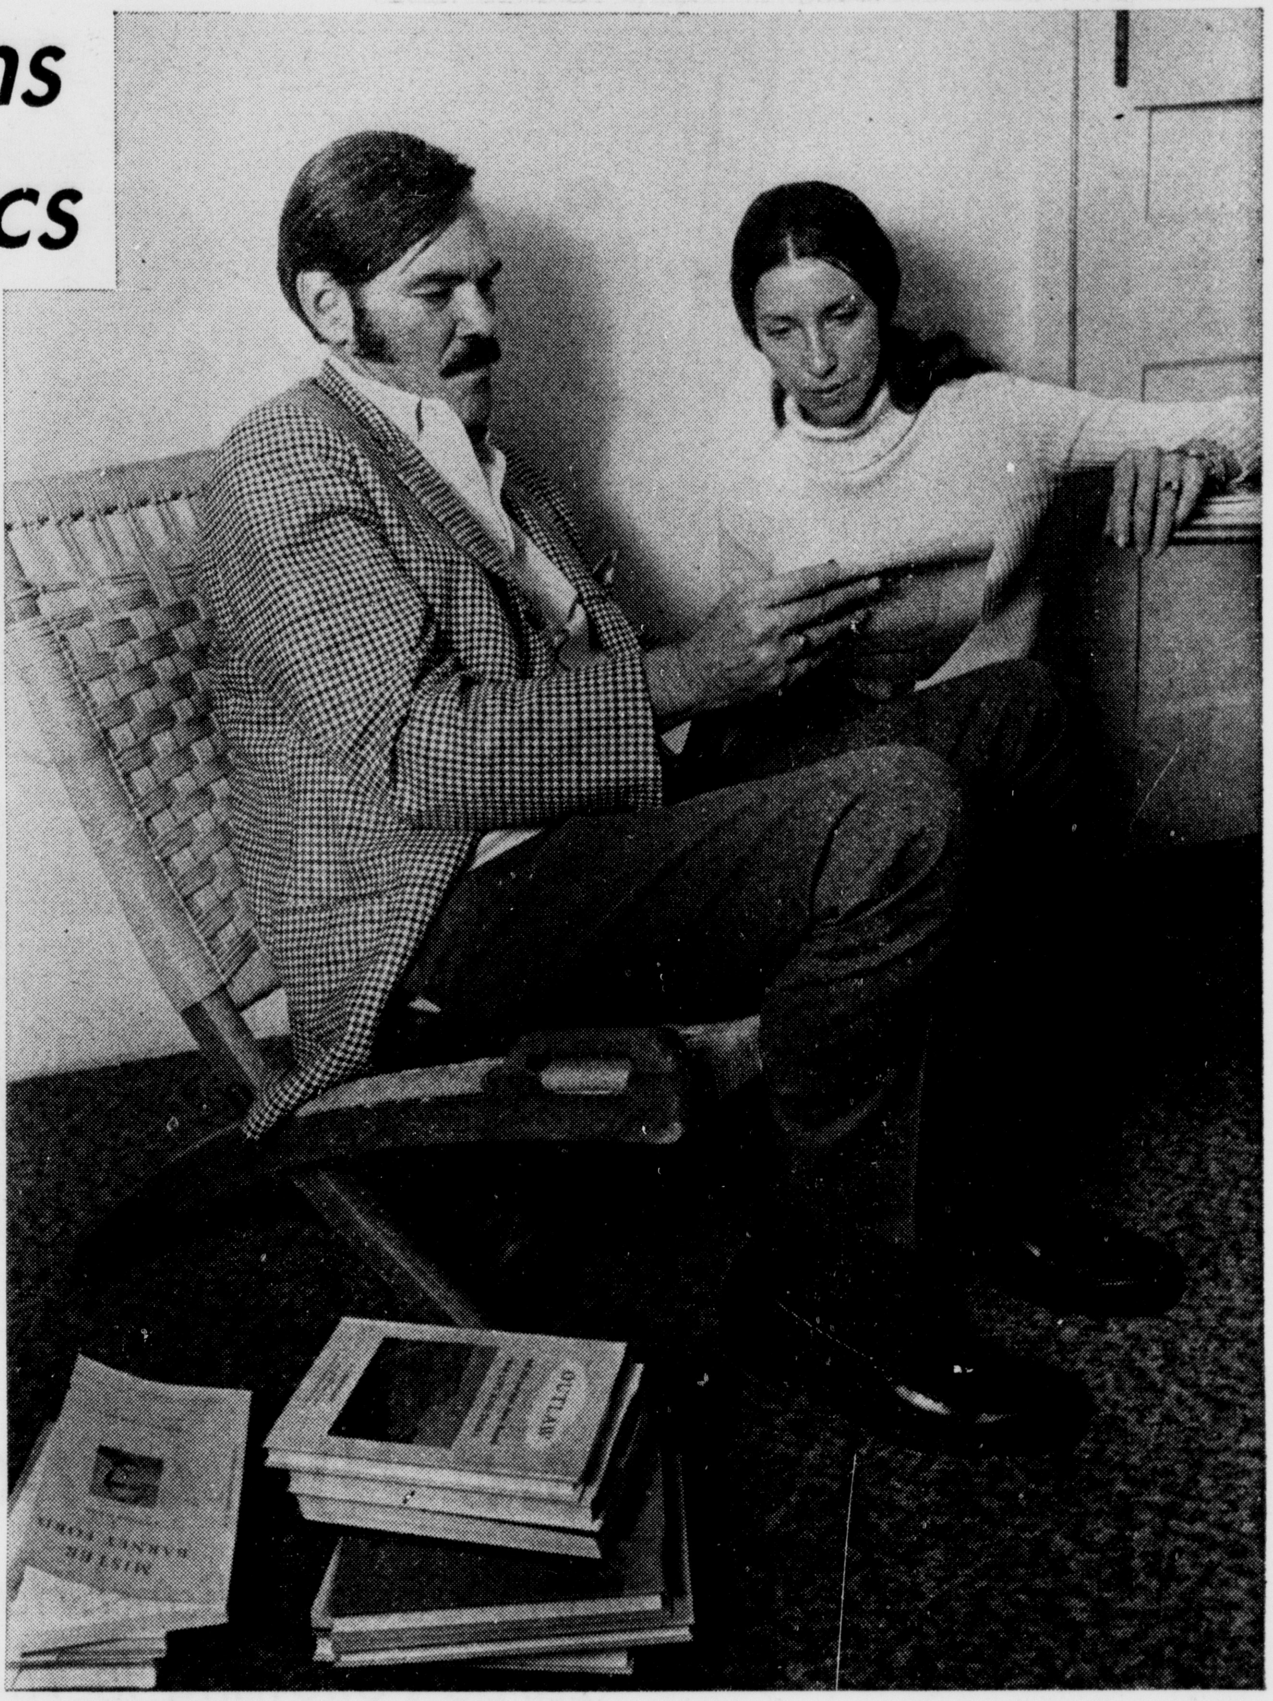
And while western novels, like novels of all genres, are not selling well at this time, the Goulds feel that "the public taste is bound to take a turn, and there will come a time when original western novels will again be in demand."

When that time comes, the Goulds will be ready to help meet the demand. Perhaps they will even move earlier, and attempt to generate the interest.

But in the meantime, they will concentrate upon rescuing our regional classics from oblivion, spicing up that list with occasional originals thought up by themselves or brought to them by creative authors, and always stressing the kind of quality in their selections, their editing and their presentations that have won them in just over two years recognition in the 1972 Ken Boyle Award from the Pacific Northwest Booksellers Assn.

"THAT WAS our first prize, and we are very proud of it," says Dori Gould.

And her husband adds: "But we expect to win other awards in the future. There is a lot more satisfaction in book publishing than just making money."



IN CONFERENCE are writer Ray Grosnevor and editor Dori Gould at the Comstock Editions offices in Sausalito on Bridgeway. They are studying galley proofs of the introduction Grosvenor has written for Stewart Edward White's "Arizona Night," being published this month by Comstock. Grosnevor, a professor at San Francisco State University, also serves as a consultant on western history to Comstock in its continuing effort to perpetuate the history and the literature of the American West.

Today, no room is complete without the carpet treatment and its popularity is well justified. It not only is a great decorating tool but carpet's contribution to the quiet of the home alone makes it deserving of the gold-star treatment.

Carpet provides safety in many areas throughout a home, particularly on stairways, in bathrooms, kitchens and in any area where a fall could lead to injuries.

The durability of carpeting as well as ease of care, gives it a special spot in the home where the action is. And why not? No more back breaking chores of scrubbing, waxing and buffing. It's certainly more comfortable to walk on and it's far less fatiguing.

With winter coming it also helps to insulate your home and eliminate those cold floors . . . Now it is the time to buy and install your carpet and at RAFAEL FLOORS our personnel are well qualified to help you choose the correct carpet. They can also help with any decorating problems you may have.

A Commitment To The Western Classics

will deal directly with the artist or photographer.

UNFORTUNATELY, the Goulds say, western American artists do not seem to be doing the kind of work suited to their covers. "They are more into abstract and impressionistic things than realism," they explain.

A good many of the beautiful paintings used by the Goulds for their bookcovers are coming from England where realism is still held in high esteem.

Although most of their books are reprints, the Goulds nevertheless work closely with the authors.

"THEY ARE delighted by the opportunity to again receive some remuneration from books they wrote years ago. Sometimes, too, they are pleased to have a chance to update their material, or to correct errors in the original editions that have long bothered them."

For the authors of their originals, the Goulds furnish all the usual editorial services expected of a publisher.

Comstock Editions paperbacks are priced from $1.25 to $1.95, with 90 per cent of the book at the $1.25 figure. "We find that the price does make a very big difference in our sales volumes."

SO FAR THE biggest Comstock seller has been "Skid Road," a history of Seattle by Murray Morgan, that was originally brought out in hardback in 1951 by Viking and then brought out again by that same house in 1959 in a revised edition.

At the Goulds' request, Morgan again revised his text for the Comstock paperback edition, working from a hospital bed while fighting off an attack of pneumonia. It has sold 65,000 copies for Comstock, and is still selling briskly.

For his favorite books among the 87 brought out to date under Comstock's imprint, Richard Gould selects "Back Packing Guide to the Northwest" and "Back Packing Guide to California," both by Tom Winnett of Berkeley, both originals "for which the ideas originated with us," and both doing well commercially.

DORI GOULD'S favorite iu a reprint, "The Sacrilegious Shore" by Wallace Thompson.

"It is a history of the Spanish invasion and the era of the conquistadores that was originally published in England and received magnificent reviews there, but for some reason just never was picked up and published in this country," she relates. "We feel very fortunate in having been able to do it." It is just out this fall.

Another newly published paperback for which the Goulds have especially high expectations is "Missions of California," a collection of pieces on the Franciscan missions taken from the pages of Westways magazine of the Automobile Club of Southern California and edited for the book by Davis Dutton. Westways is the copublisher with Comstock of this $1.50 original.

TWO MORE late additions to Comstock Editions are "Here They Dug the Gold," George F. Willison's classic story of the Leadville, Colo., gold rush — and especially of H. A. W. Tabor; and "Ark of Empire," Idwal Jones' history of San Francisco's Montgomery Block — and especially of Henry W. Halleck.

Other Comstock Editions range from William Saroyan's "Bicycle Rider in Beverly Hills" to Curt Gentry's "The Madams of San Francisco, from Isabella Bird's "Ladies' Life in the Rocky Mountains" to Harry Sinclair Drago's "Notorious Ladies of the West." Richard Dillon's "The Embarcadero" and "The Hatchet Men" are on the lists.

What sort of an audience do these kind of books appeal to? To begin with, very largely a regional one, although Comstock books, despite their restricted sales area, frequently find their way outside the western half of the USA.

AS FOR THE age range, the Goulds have discovered to their pleasure that interest in the Old West isn't confined to older history buffs. The Comstock Editions stall at the San Francisco Book Fair was crowded throughout the event "with some very hip kids making up the majority of our visitors. They love the outdoors. And they seem to have a yearning for adventure."

Fun And Music By Lone Star Ramblers

Marin Country Band Has Acquired Large Following In The County

By DON KEOWN

Barbara Paulsen was only 10 years old when the boy friend of an older sister left his banjo behind in the Paulsen home.

Now Mrs. Joe Faustine of San Rafael, Barbara says: "I picked it up, starting playing it, and liked it."

Soon her brother, Harold Paulsen, a guitarist, was teaching her the string instrument. And by the time Barbara was 12, she and her brother had formed the western music group, the Marin Mavericks.

"Mike Comiskey was our fiddle player, Tony Tartala the accordionist, and Johnny Lucas played the harmonica," she remembers. And the Mavericks played mainly for hospital patients and other shut-ins as part of a troupe organized by Gertrude Foley.

"BUT WE played for dances as well, particularly Rod and Gun Club dances," recalls Barbara Paulsen Faustine. "And we played at the 1939 world exposition on Treasure Island, and on radio amateur hour shows."

The country music of that time was the cowboy tune — songs like "Red River Valley," "Strawberry Roan" and "Home on the Range." It was, Mrs. Faustine notes, a considerably different kind of music from the country music of today.

The Marin Mavericks played together for five years, then broke up when World War II intruded and the boys in the band were called away.

"BUT DURING the war," Barbara says, "whenever the boys were home, we would get together and play. During the blackouts, we would play in the dark in our living rooms."

Barbara Faustine was not to play with another organized country music band until 1958.

It was then that she and husband Joe with oldest son Lee and daughter Joyce, plus Joyce's then husband, Jim Loftin, formed the Rhythm Ramblers.

The name was changed in 1964 to the Lone Star Ramblers, the name the group still carries today, "to give us more individuality, since there were so many other groups with names similar to Rhythm Ramblers, and in recognition of the fact that we had a genuine Texan, Jim Loftin, among our members."

WHEN THE Jim Loftins' marriage broke up, he left the Ramblers.

Today the members are Barbara Faustine, banjo and vocalist; Lee Faustine, now 24 and living in Petaluma, lead guitar and singer; younger son Johnny Faustine, 20, of San Rafael, drums, guitar, bass and vocals; Joyce Loftin of Novato, steel guitar and singer; daughter Lisa Faustine, 18, who lives with her parents in San Rafael and who sings and plays the tambourines.

Joe Faustine, who used to play the string bass, now concentrates upon the duties of manager of the ban.

OUTSIDE-THE-Faustine-family regulars are David Dell'Era of San Rafael, rhythm guitar and singer, and Mary Noel of San Rafael, vocalist and maracas. Miss Noel is Johnny Faustine's fiancee.

Appearing occasionally with the Ramblers are Sue Faustine, Lee's wife, and Barney Noel, Mary's brother. Sue Faustine sings with her husband, while Barney Noel plays harmonica and guitar, and vocalizes.

From time to time Gregg Wormald comes all the way from Los Angeles to play the big string bass, to sing, and to add his comedy touch to the performances.

OTHER MUSICIANS have come and gone with the group through the years.

Harold Paulsen was a member for a time. But he is a postman working out of the Civic Center branch postoffice and, his sister says, "he has to get up too early to do much music-playing any more."

Other former members include Wally Holmes, guitar; Betty Leach, bass; Wayne Jamison, bass; Sammi Mondino, vocalist; Tom Donaldson, rhythm guitar; and Richard Pfeiffer, bass. "And Richard was fantastic," says Mrs. Faustine.

FOR FOUR years the Ramblers played every Thursday night at the White Hat Club at the Alameda Naval Air Station, thus freeing them for local dances on the weekend dates.

Of the Alameda engagements, Mrs. Faustine says: "It was a most rewarding experience. The boys were coming home from overseas, just hungry for some country western music. And we gave it to them."

Now the Ramblers concentrate their performances upon the weekend nights — usually Saturdays.

"Everyone else holds down an outside job, except for myself, a housewife," Mrs. Faustine says, "and it is just too much of a grind to play during the week and then to have to get up in the morning and go to work."

HER HUSBAND Joe is superintendent of the motor vehicle division for the Marin Municipal Water District.

The dates he arranges for the Lone Star Ramblers include playing for such groups as the Elks Club, the Moose Lodge, the Odd Fellows, the Viking Ski Club ("once a year, for six years now"), the Independent Order of Foresters, the San Francisco Presidio, Fort Barry, Fort Baker, etc.

Particularly satisfying was a recent engagement for a benefit dance for the family of the late deputy sheriff Gerald Tanner, a drowning victim, because of the worthy cause, and because the site, the West Marin Communi-

popular writer with this age group, the Goulds say.

What are the Comstock plans for the future?

"WE HAVE thought about hardcover books," Richard admits, "but for a regional publishing house, that would be hard to do. For one thing, there are essentially two very different channels of distribution. Our paperbacks sell largely through the newsstands. For hardcover distribution, you have to shift to the bookstores.

"And make no mistake about it, distribution is the key to success in publishing. You must go where you reach the greatest number of people who might be interested in your product. And when you are limited in staff and time, it is probably best to concentrate upon one of those channels."

So what the Goulds foresee for the future is a stepped-up schedule of doing pretty much the same kind of thing they have been doing successfully so far, with some expansion of their field.

"FOR INSTANCE," they say, "we really haven't gone into original western literature as yet. All our novels have been reprints."

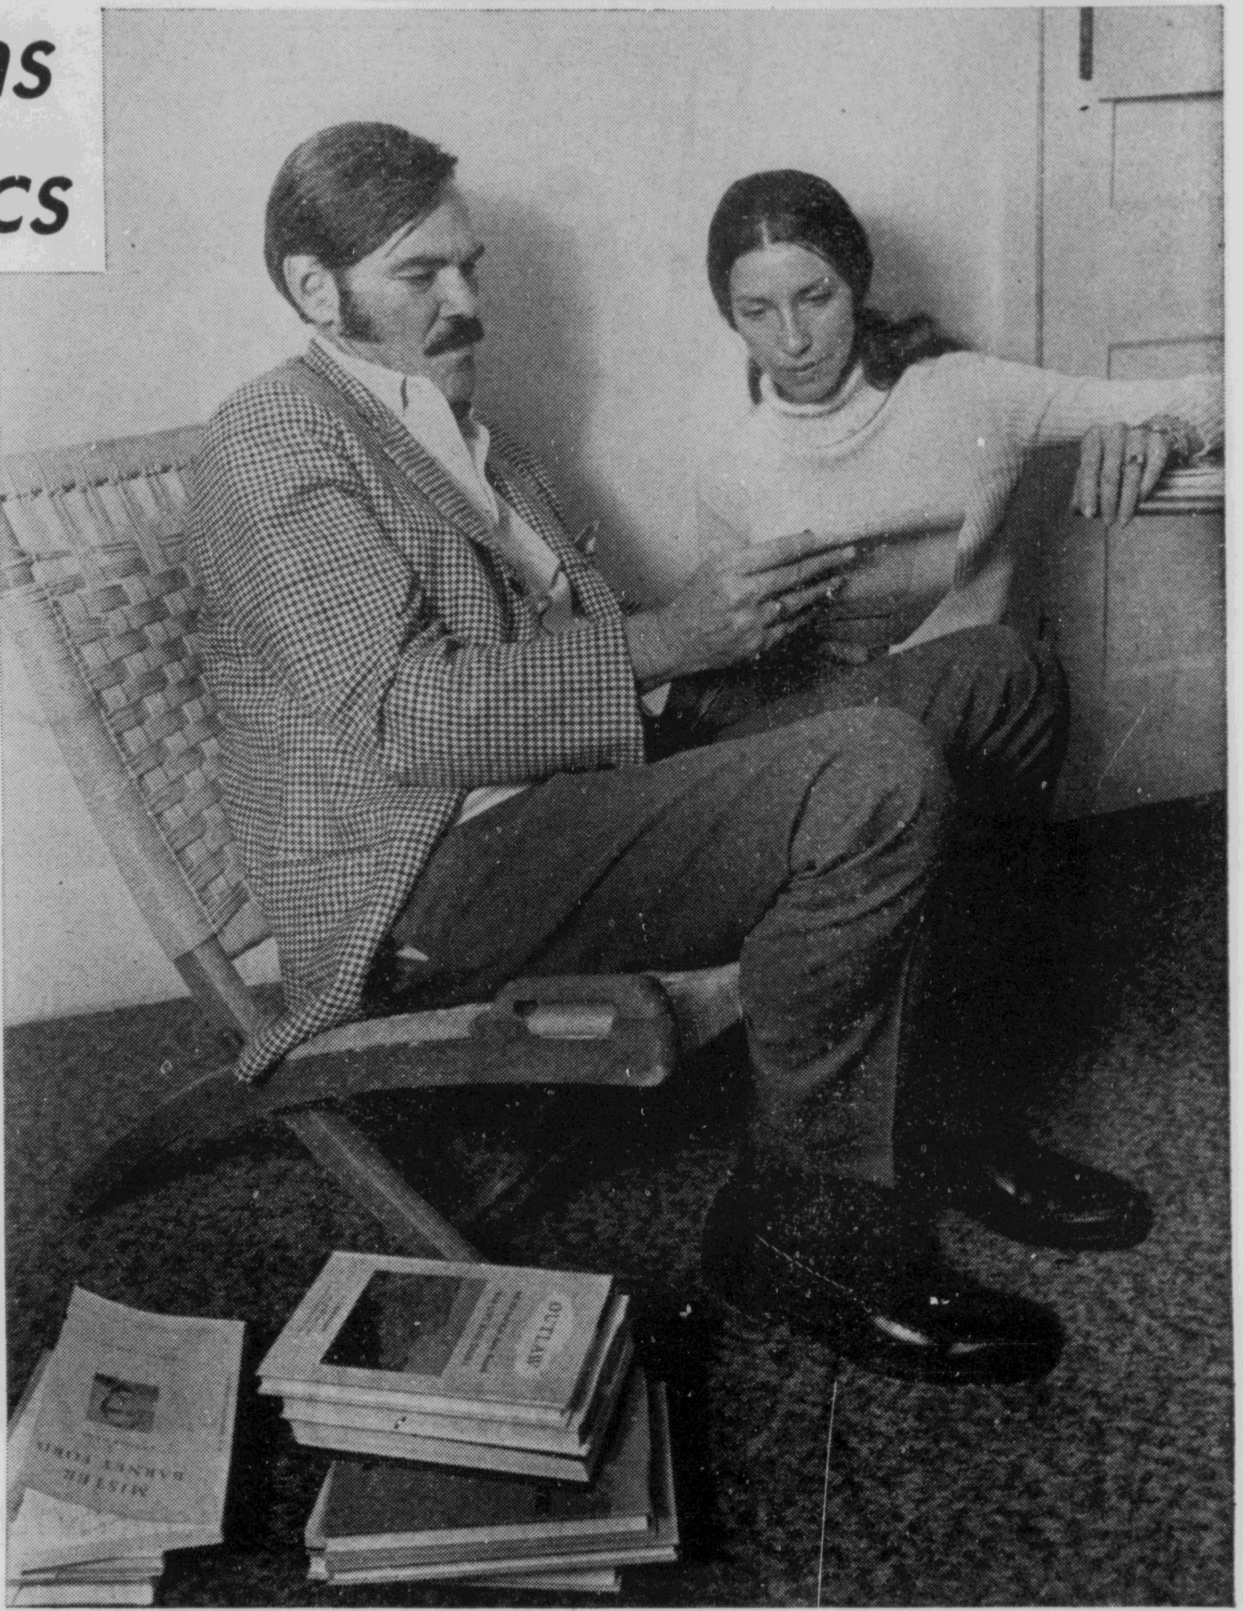
And while western novels, like novels of all genres, are not selling well at this time, the Goulds feel that "the public taste is bound to take a turn, and there will come a time when original western novels will again be in demand."

When that time comes, the Goulds will be ready to help meet the demand. Perhaps they will even move earlier, and attempt to generate the interest.

But in the meantime, they will concentrate upon rescuing our regional classics from oblivion, spicing up that list with occasional originals thought up by themselves or brought to them by creative authors, and always stressing the kind of quality in their selections, their editing and their presentations that have won them in just over two years recognition in the 1972 Ken Boyle Award from the Pacific Northwest Booksellers Assn.

"THAT WAS our first prize, and we are very proud of it," says Dori Gould.

And her husband adds: "But we expect to win other awards in the future. There is a lot more satisfaction in book publishing than just making money."



IN CONFERENCE are writer Ray Grosnevor and editor Dori Gould at the Comstock Editions offices in Sausalito on Bridgeway. They are studying galley proofs of the introduction Grosvenor has written for Stewart Edward White's "Arizona Night," being published this month by Comstock. Grosnevor, a professor at San Francisco State University, also serves as a consultant on western history to Comstock in its continuing effort to perpetuate the history and the literature of the American West.

A BIG PART of the popularity of the Lone Star Ramblers comes from the entertainment they provide along with their country music. "We do a lot of dancing ourselves when we play for a dance," they say. And here Barney Noel and Lisa Faustine of the Ramblers join Kentfield firemen and their guests in a spirited Virginia Reel, always a popular part of one of the country dances. This night the dancers demanded — and got — four Virginia Reels during the evening.

ty Center, the old Red Barn, was so appropriate for a barndance.

ON DEC. 16 AT the Novato Moose Lodge Hall, they will be playing for the Western Telephone Co. employees' Christmas dance. On New Year's Eve, they'll play at the same hall.

And their weekend engagement book is well filled for the immediate future.

"Generally," says Barbara Faustine, "our audiences are in the 30s, 40s and 50s. But this is because we play so often for lodges."

Young people do enjoy country music, she says, and proof of that comes when the Lone Star Ramblers make their annual trip to Fort Ord.

IT BEGAN when their son Lee was drafted and assigned to Fort Ord. "We went down there on his birthday, just to be with him and play a little music," his mother says. "We wound up playing for four hours, with more and more of the fellows coming in to listen and to applaud. It developed into a full-fledged country music concert."

The Fort Ord newspaper described the impromptu performance as "pleasure a la carte" with "fine to watch performers" and "wonderful to hear music."

The Ramblers have been going back to Fort Ord annually for the past four years, spending a vacation week playing there and touring other nearby military installations.

"WE HAVE A great time," Barbara Faustine enthuses. "It's marvelous!"

The Lone Star Rambler dances and concerts no longer feature the cowboy tunes played by the Marin Mavericks three decades ago. Now the Ramblers are more likely to play such more modern country-western pieces as "Ode to Billy Joe," "Happiest Girl in the Whole USA," "Leaving on Your Mind" and "Folsom Prison Blues."

"But we will still throw in a couple of the old cowboy tunes," says vivacious Barbara Faustine, as full of pep and enthusiasm as any of the younger members of the troupe. "I love them."

AND THERE will be as many as three Virginia reels in a night at the dances, but no square dances. "We find it takes too long to explain those, and the people get impatient. It slows things down."

Lee Faustine shifts over to the accordion for the popular polkas.

And there are sometimes Hawaiian numbers. But no rock and roll. "When they ask for rock, we tell them they will just have to go somewhere else for that," Barbara says. "It isn't our bag."

THE RAMBLERS increase their repertoire with something like 10 or a dozen "new" songs per year. Singers usually work alone, as soloists, although Lee Faustine and his sister Lisa frequently sing together.

The band holds no practices except in preparations for special events such as the Fort Ord tour. Their dances, which generally last from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. ("and sometimes when they won't go home, we just keep on playing until 2 o'clock") afford them plenty of work together.

To what do the Ramblers themselves attribute their popularity?

REPLIES Barbara Faustine: "We think the people like our stage personality as much as our music. It is so apparent that everyone in the band is enjoying himself so much that it is contagious with the audience. They tell us that they like

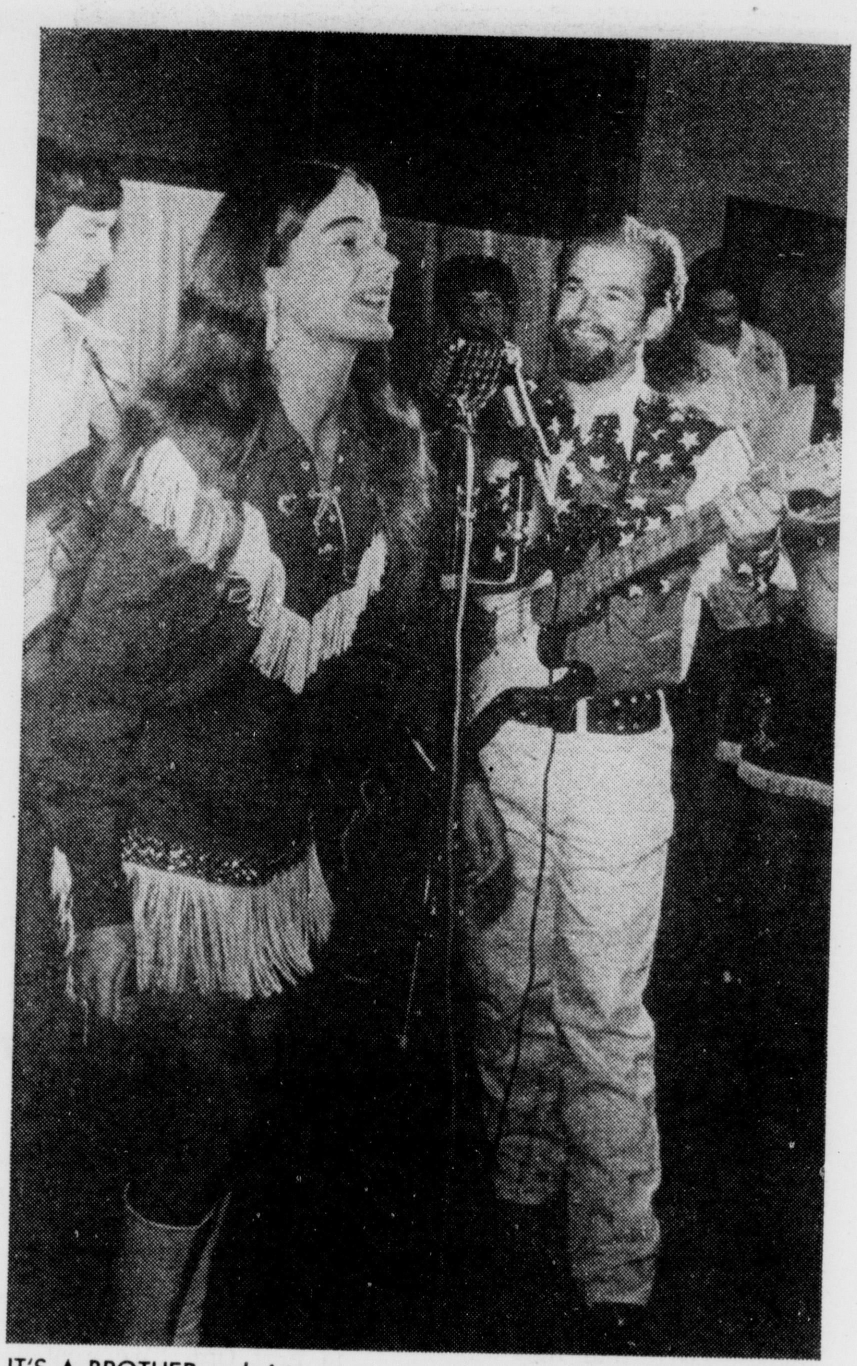
Clad in the usual western paraphernalia including satin shirts, levis, ponchos, fringed vests, boots and cowboy hats, the Ramblers do a lot of dancing on their own, as well as laughing and clowning while they play.

"By the time an evening is over, we have danced as much as the people down in front," laughs Barbara.

ALTHOUGH they play with the Ramblers virtually every weekend, the Faustines apparently can't get enough music. Barbara and Johnny play every Wednesday night with the banjo band at Cal's Steak House in downtown San Rafael.

And an event that was especially pleasing to Barbara was a gathering of the old Marin Mavericks at the Deer Park Villa, the occasion being member Mike Comiskey's 50th wedding anniversary, to play together once agina.

Do the Lone Star Ramblers aspire to something bigger in the music world?



IT'S A BROTHER-and-sister act as pretty Lisa Faustine vocalizes to the guitar accompaniment of her older brother Lee Faustine, standing to her left.

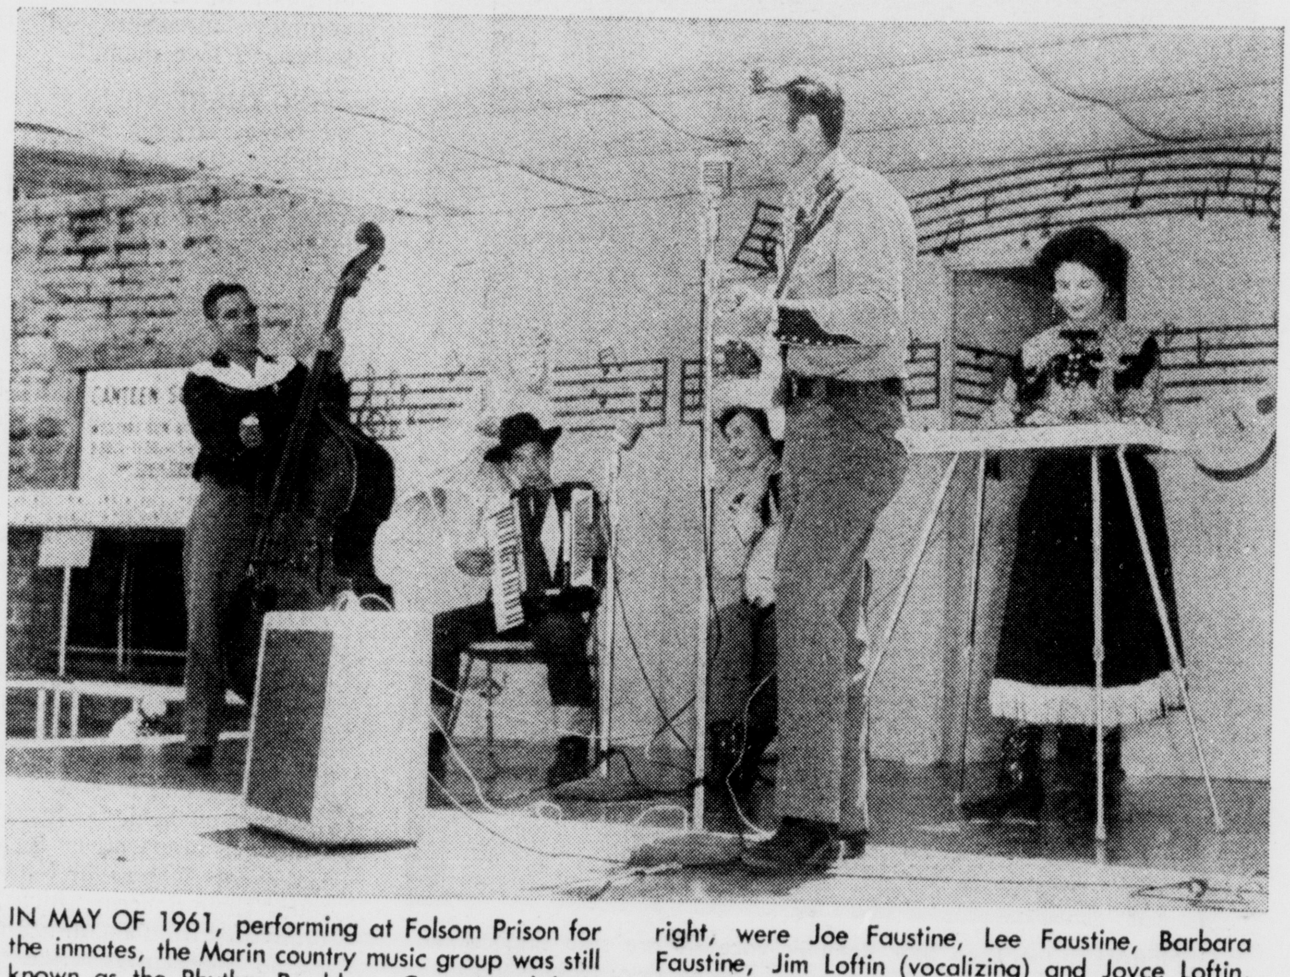
"IT'S TEMPTING," Barbara Faustine admits, "but the members are all too involved in their regular jobs to take the time off."

So there have been no recordings, although the Ramblers have cut their own tapes which they send to servicemen overseas to help satisfy their craving for "good old American music."

Interest in country music rises and falls in waves, Mrs. Faustine notes, and right now it is on an upsurge that began about three years ago and is continuing.

"But one thing about it," she adds. "It never dies out completely. Country music is always with us, to some degree. It is never dead. And it is very much alive right now."

And groups like the Lone Star Ramblers seemingly provide it with every assurance of continued good health for years to come.



IN MAY OF 1961, performing at Folsom Prison for the inmates, the Marin country music group was still known as the Rhythm Ramblers. On stage, left to right, were Joe Faustine, Lee Faustine, Barbara Faustine, Jim Loftin (vocalizing) and Joyce Loftin, an all-family group.

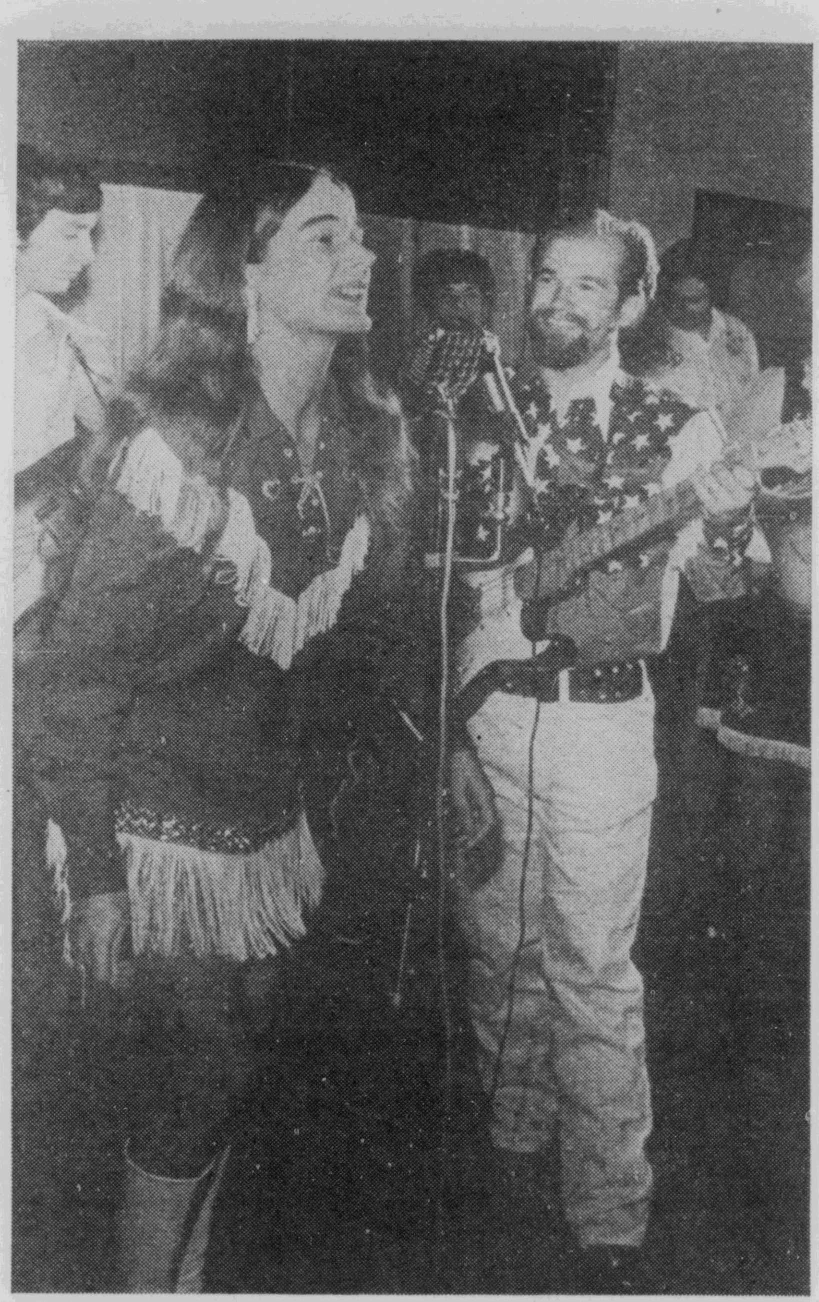
"By the time an evening is over, we have danced as much as the people down in front," laughs Barbara.

ALTHOUGH they play with the Ramblers virtually every weekend, the Faustines apparently can't get enough music. Barbara and Johnny play every Wednesday night with the banjo band at Cal's Steak House in downtown San Rafael. "

And an event that was especially pleasing to Barbara was a gathering of the old Marin Mavericks at the Deer Park Villa, the occasion being member Mike Comiskey's 50th wedding anniversary, to play together once agina.

Do the Lone Star Ramblers aspire to something bigger in the music world?



IT'S A BROTHER-and-sister act as pretty Lisa Faustine vocalizes to the guitar accompaniment of her older brother Lee Faustine, standing to her left.

"IT'S TEMPTING," Barbara Faustine admits, "but the members are all too involved in their regular jobs to take the time off."

So there have been no recordings, although the Ramblers have cut their own tapes which they send to servicemen overseas to help satisfy their craving for "good old American music."

Interest in country music rises and falls in waves, Mrs. Faustine notes, and right now it is on an upsurge that began about three years ago and is continuing.

"But one thing about it," she adds. "It never dies out completely. Country music is always with us, to some degree. It is never dead. And it is very much alive right now."

And groups like the Lone Star Ramblers seemingly provide it with every assurance of continued good health for years to come.

OUR BEST $200 MUSIC SYSTEM EVER, AND YOU SAVE $76

Our $200 component music system is plenty big enough to fill a small room with good sound, and it excels at reproducing music much more naturally than any compact or portable stereo.

The new TransAudio 1008 speakers sound just fine powered by the Nikko 2010 AM/FM stereo receiver. They're two-way systems priced at a phenomenally low $75 a pair, and their eight-inch bass speakers will do justice to your favorite string quartet's cello player. The one-way systems found in most other $200 music systems can't pick up his low notes at all. The receiver's tuner section can bring you a clean rendition of just about anything on the air, and the Nikko 2010 has a loudness contour switch so you can hear all of the low bass even at low volumes. There's even special provision for adding a four-channel adaptor, and the $139.95 price includes the case. The record player is also a fine value. It's the totally reliable Garrard 40B. Its $60.90 price includes a base and the excellent new ADC 220XE diamond elliptical cartridge, something else you won't find in other $200 music systems.

JUST RIGHT FOR BASS FANS ON A BUDGET

Music systems depend on room size as well as speaker size for their ability to reproduce low notes, and in any moderate-sized room this $300 system will go right down to the bass man's low E. An $80 saving and two new products that are outstanding values make it possible. The TransAudio 1010 speakers are two-way ten-inch systems, and until now we didn't believe that anyone could make speakers capable of such deep bass for anywhere near their $99.90 a pair price.

The receiver in this system is another surprise. The Spectrosonic 110-4 AM/FM stereo receiver has more power than any other receiver in its $220 price range, delivering 44 RMS watts with less than .5% distortion all the way from 20 to 20,000 Hz. The amplifier is direct coupled, so there's nothing between the transistors and the speakers to mess up the sound. The 110-4 also has a sensitive tuner section and a front panel switch to control an optional four channel adaptor. The walnut case is optional.

The Garrard 40B record player is so hard to beat for value we include it here too, again with a base and the ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge, which will add a great deal to the life of your records.

SHERWOOD, DUAL, AR AND A $155 SAVING GET TOGETHER FOR ONE WEEK ONLY

Each of these components is an exceptionally fine performer, and the $500 price is the added feature attraction you really shouldn't miss. It can be offered this week only, and you save $155 if you act fast.

The new Sherwood S7200 AM/FM stereo receiver carries on the long Sherwood tradition of providing a very high quality tuner section, plenty of power and a full range of features for a most reasonable price, $299.95 in this case. FM sensitivity is an excellent 1.8 microvolts, and ceramic filters account in part for the very good selectivity. The filters are permanently aligned, eliminating the need for expensive readjustments. The S7200's direct coupled amplifier section puts out 64 RMS watts of power from 20 to 20,000 Hz. Convenience features include FM muting, a high filter, a front panel tape dubbing jack, tape monitoring and a loudness contour. A new feature is the front panel switch for four-channel sound if you care to add a decoder. The walnut case is included.

The new design features of Dual's modestly-priced 1215S record player bring it amazingly close to the superb Dual 1229 in performance. It can track at pressures as low as .75 gram, and the anti-skate control is calibrated separately for conical and elliptical cartridges. A variable pitch control allows up to 6% change in speed. We equip the 1215S with a base and an ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge for $120.45.

AR 2ax speaker systems have been praised by any number of reviewers. They're three-way ten-inch acoustic suspension systems that sound very good indeed. Our normal price is a quite reasonable $235 a pair.

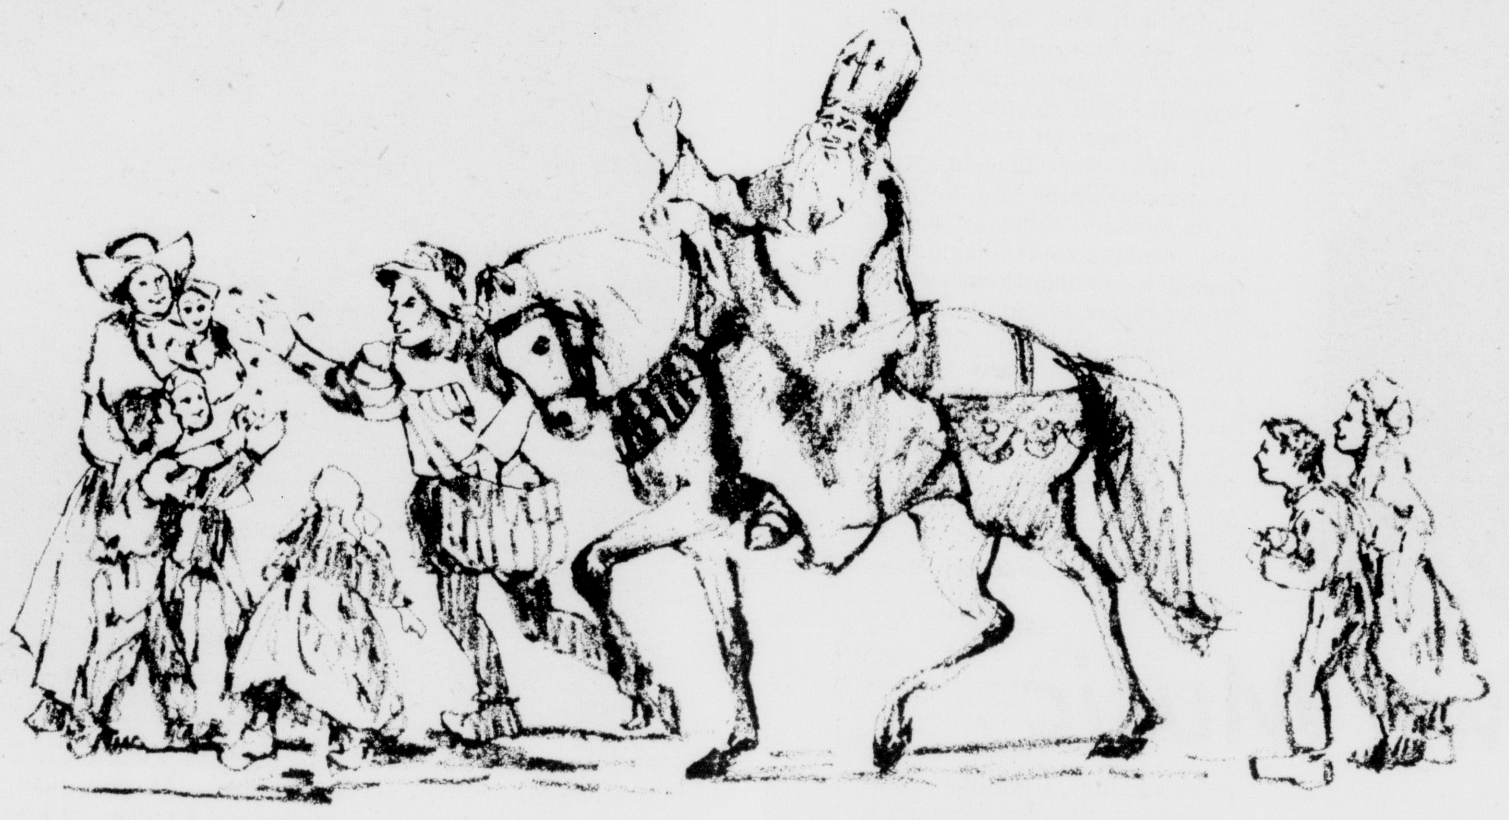
This Week's HOLIDAY OFFERING from Pacific Stereo will be gone in a twinkling



Our headline paraphrases a line from a poem everybody knows, Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas," but the St. Nicholas of our illustration was bringing gifts to children in Europe long before he acquired that miniature sleigh with eight tiny reindeer. His transformation into the modern Santa Claus was accomplished largely by Moore, Washington Irving, and the nineteenth century cartoonist Thomas Nast. Now hardly anyone remembers when the original Santa wore clerical vestments and rode a horse.

Admittedly, there's no overwhelming connection between this anecdote of Christmas history and Pacific Stereo's newest holiday offering, but it is a pleasant way to introduce you to our totally transformed selection of gifts for yourself or others at prices which are bound to add some holiday cheer. You have to act fast, however: some items are available only this week, others only until our very limited supply runs out, and there are still other things you haven't seen before now specially priced for the holidays.

Come in today; there's really not much time left to avoid the last minute hassles, and you'll want plenty of time for listening, comparing, and browsing around to see the unadvertised special values we offer whenever they come up. Remember you can take advantage of our free layaway and extended exchange privileges as well as all the other holiday amenities described in the "Free Offerings..." portion of our ad.

Free Offerings During the Merrye Monthe of December at Pacific Stereo

FREE HEADPHONES OR A SUBSCRIPTION TO "AUDIO"

You get to choose between a free pair of stereophones or a free one-year subscription to "Audio" magazine when you buy any music system at Pacific Stereo during the holiday season.

EXTENDED FIVE-YEAR WARRANTY

We won't start counting the elapsed time on our five-year warranty until January 1, so you get coverage for five years plus however much time there is between now and the 1st. The warranty covers free parts for five years and free labor for three years on absolutely everything but the needle on the record player. Even if you wrap up your system and don't use it until Christmas you get the full warranty.

LAYAWAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

If you want to be sure of getting what you want but aren't quite ready to buy, just put a $10 deposit on the system. It's refundable and you're under no obligation, but you'll be able to get what you want at the price you've seen advertised.

BANKAMERICARD AND MASTERCHARGE O.K.

Use your credit card for any purchases you make at Pacific Stereo.

FREE ELLIPTICAL CARTRIDGE

Instead of the conical cartridges usually supplied with value-oriented music systems, we're offering a very high quality elliptical cartridge which will help your records sound better and last longer. Except for a very few extremely low priced combinations, all of our holiday music systems will have ellipticals.

FREE CONNECTING WIRE

You can have whatever you need to connect your music system the way you want.

EXTENDED EXCHANGE PRIVILEGES

Our sixty-day exchange privilege and our one-year speaker trial privilege will also be dated from January 1st and cover the intervening time as well. You can exchange anything you aren't happy about within 60 days, and you have a full year to receive the purchase price on any speakers costing up to $200 in trade toward more expensive speakers.

INTRODUCING THE HARMAN-KARDON 75+ IN OUR BEST FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM YET

We're very proud of being the first to offer you the Harman-Kardon 75+, because this versatile four-channel receiver is an amazing achievement that's hard to fault for stereo or four-channel sound. It incorporates some advanced ideas Harman-Kardon first developed in their Citation line, and it has a couple of unique four-channel features all its own. Harman-Kardon's well-known twin power supplies and exceptionally wide frequency response contribute greatly to the outstanding clarity of sound you'll get with the 75+. A most unusual feature is the bridging circuit which, by linking the four amplifier sections into two, enables you to get more total power in stereo than in four-channel. The 75+ delivers 18 RMS watts per channel (72 total) in the four-channel mode, or 45 RMS watts per channel (90 total) in stereo. The 75+ incorporates an SQ matrix decoder which can provide either full four-channel separation or introduce a slight amount of blend in the front channels to position a soloist more pleasingly. An exclusive 360° balance control lets you adjust the total sound field for optimum four-channel realism or create some unusual moving-sound effects of your own. There's a synthesizer to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, facilities for adding discrete four-channel tape or cartridge decks and four-channel headphones, and of course a very good AM/FM stereo tuner section with all the usual controls. At $399.95, the 75+ costs no more than Harman-Kardon's best stereo receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The rest of this system deserves as much comment as the 75+, but space doesn't permit a full description. You get the excellent Benjamin Miracord 750 record player equipped with a base and a broadcast quality Stanton 500E elliptical cartridge, plus four of the direct/reflecting Bose 501 speaker systems. We'll be glad to tell you more about their features when you come in to hear what four-channel sound can really be.

AN IMPROVED AMPEX CASSETTE SPECIALLY PRICED FOR THE HOLIDAYS

People have been making good recordings on Ampex C60 cassettes for years, and recently Ampex has improved their tape formulation so you can make even better recordings. We normally sell these sturdy cassettes for 99¢, but this month we're reducing them to 69¢ each so you can do a lot of recording during the holiday season. Anyone on your gift list with a cassette recorder would probably appreciate a supply too. $ .69

TREAT YOURSELF TO TEAC'S SEMI-PRO DECK

The TEAC 3300-10 stereo tape deck is one of the most flexible and convenient-to-use machines we've seen. Its professionalism starts with 10½-inch reels, which double recording time. Three heads permit monitoring your recordings. Three motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their problems. It has a pause control for editing, a bias control switch, line and mike mixer inputs, and automatic tape lifters. This exceptionally sturdy machine performs so well in terms of frequency response and signal to noise ratio that $500 is really a most reasonable price.

SAVE $100 ON THE NIKKO 8010 IF YOU GET ONE THIS WEEK

Nikko consistently packs a lot of value into their receivers, and when you can take $100 off the Nikko 8010's regular $254.95 price "value" is hardly strong enough to describe what you're getting. The 8010 delivers 40 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section's rated FM sensitivity of 2 microvolts is very good indeed for the price. Features include FM muting, a loudness contour, tape monitoring, and high and low filters. Circuit breakers are used in place of fuses. You can build a fine music system around the Nikko 8010, especially at this price, but the $100 saving is offered this week only. $154.95

BUY ONE, GET THE SECOND WHARFEDALE W70E FOR HALF PRICE

Wharfedale W70E's are high quality three-way speaker systems with the bonus of good furniture design. Each has a fifteen-inch bass speaker for strong, deep low notes. A five-inch midrange and one-inch dome treble speaker provide clean, smooth response clear out to beyond audibility. You can use the W70E's as high boy endtables or on their sides under windows. Either way they look great and sound great. If you want a pair, by all means get them this week. You pay our regular $199.95 price for the first one; the second one is $99.97.

A Museum For America's Own Music

By ANDREA CHAMBERS

Midtown Manhattan, New York City, is a muted plaid of browns, grays and sandy beiges, juxtaposed in organized stone and steel blocks. But on West 55th Street, elbowing stone and steel on its left and on its right, is a discordant patch of blazing blue — jazz blue, to be exact.

This is the New York Jazz Museum, the first in the U.S. devoted to the history, legend, and legacy of jazz from its African origins to the modern era.

"We're anxious to show people the history and significance of jazz," explains the museum's managing director, Jack Bradley.

Terming jazz the "only truly American art form," he adds that his museum, with its broad spectrum, differs from the very first American jazz museum located in New Orleans, which is devoted solely to the jazz tradition in that Louisiana city..

NEW YORK'S new jazz museum, only a few months old, is the offspring of the New York Hot Jazz Society, establihsed in 1967 to promote a greater appreciation of jazz. The society's programs include the screening of rare jazz films, tapes, records, slides and photos, a jazz touring program for schools and civic groups, and parties featuring great jazz personalities.

Thanks to a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, the society was able to realize a long-hoped-for goal: establishment of a permanent jazz museum.

Today, the New York Jazz Museum basks in the rhythm of "total jazz." Horns, posters and jazz memorabilia decorate the walls.

A "Jazz Store" offers records, old and new and reams of sheet music. And there is the gentle wail of a trumpet. . . or perhaps a horn. . . from the tapes spinning in a corner. Soon, live concerts will be performed from the museum's upstairs balcony.

THE ARCHITECTS and overseers of this environment are two ardent jazz fans, Howard Fischer and Jack Bradley. Fischer, a theatrical attorney, is founder and president of the New York Hot Jazz Society and executive director of the Jazz Museum. Bradley, managing director, is a jazz writer, collector, photographer and historian.

As directors, Fischer and Bradley must be not only administrators but jazz sleuths as well. What ever happened to Artie Shaw's clarinet? Lester Young's famous hat? That congratulatory telegram Dave Brubeck sent to Louis Armstrong?

Such jazz memorabilia must be scouted for museum exhibits.

Currently, the museum is amassing a permanent collection of jazz instruments and memorabilia from assorted musicians, collectors, film distributors and fans. Until this can be completed, the Jazz Museum is sponsoring a number of temporary shows devoted to all-time jazz greats.

The first? What else but a retrospective exhibit honoring "the King of Jazz," Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong himself.

VISITORS TO the Armstrong exhibit were able to view a pictorial history of "Satchmo's" rise to stardom as well as a chronological arrangement of his countless record jackets. Then, too, there was the less dramatic but still vital fabric of Armstrong's everyday life: an itemized laundry bill from a Buffalo hotel, a copy of the Armstrong diet and even a "Satchmo" hankie.

To show Armstrong's worldwide reputation, the Jazz Museum pinned up a few selected international fan letters addressed, for example, to "Louis Armstrong, King of the Jazz," "Rex Jazz," and "To Ole Satchmo Himself, Wherever He Is."

Following the "Satchmo" retrospective, the museum has scheduled a Duke Ellington exhibit and an expanded jazz-film program.

IN ADDITION to exhibiting jazz artifacts and films, the Jazz Museum serves as an up-to-date jazz information center. All jazz events in and around New York appear on the museum's Jazz Calendar.

Fortuitous visitors to the West 55th Street jazz center might find an added bonus: a chance meeting with a member of the museum's illustrious board of directors, who drop in now and then to see how things are progressing. Among them are Artie Shaw, Clark Terry, Sy Oliver, Billy Taylor and Milt Hinton.

Alaska Where Winter Is Fishing Season

Alaska offers the world's greatest sports fishing, and this applies in summer and winter. Admittedly, summer fishing in the 49th State offers more appeal to most of those from the "other 49," but for Alaskans and the few outsiders who have tried it, winter or "ice" fishing offers a world of challenge and fun.

Ice fishing in Alaska starts as soon as the waters of the numerous Alaskan lakes are frozen to a depth of four or five inches and continues until things begin to thaw out in the spring.

Two of the favorite fish caught during the winter months are rainbow trout and silver salmon. Both are delicious on the table and are especially tasty if caught during the colder months as the flesh is firm and solid.

A little more gear is generally required for the wintertime sport, although if one prefers to travel light, a dollar's worth of beef liver will put you in business. In addition, an axe, ice spur or ice auger are required to get through the ice to the water.

Shelter of some sort, made of canvas or another material is sometimes popular, although not in vogue with Alaskans.

Somehow The Bahamians Keep Smiling

By JUNE GOODWIN

NASSAU, Bahamas — It's no wonder the Bahamas' "smile campaign" toward tourists occasionally turns into a case of grin-and-bear-it.

After all, there were 1,473,591 people to smile at last year and fewer than 180,000 people to do the smiling.

Sometimes, just sometimes, a Bahamian gets tired of remembering who butters his bread. He would rather think, say, of eating a conch with lime juice squeezed on it, or think of lying under a palm tree like the tourists.

IN A WAY, though, smiling conditions for the Bahamians are getting better. More and more tourists are coming on cruise ships, instead of flying in. This means that most of the smiling (and grinning) goes on in Nassau, gateway to this sunny archipelago. And the lion's share of Nassau's tourism takes place up and down Bay Street, the shoppers' row, very near Prince George Wharf where the cruise ships tie up.

Tourism officials are not ecstatic about the cruise boom, since it means less time and money in hotels. But neither are they completely unecstatic since cruises increase the number of arrivals. And that always looks good in reports.

Then, too, some cruise ships bring in more money than others. The Homeric Lines, for example, sailing every week from New York, arrive in Nassau Tuesday and leave Thursday.

THAT'S PLENTY of time to buy almost anything your heart could desire, some of it at bargain prices. Straw bags, china and crystal, cameras, and perfume are among the bargains.

Straw bags, at the same time, are not always among the bargains — depending on the bag and the market. The market at Prince George Wharf is great fun to watch, but buy there only if you can't get any farther.

Nassau merchants aren't always as well served by other cruise ships as they are by the Homeric Line however. The Queen Elizabeth 2 went to Nassau last Jan. 1, arriving at 8 a.m. and leaving at 5 p.m.

"MORE TIME was spent climbing the ladder down from the ship than in going around Nassau," one tourism official remarked.

But that's what a city sometimes gets if it is a gateway. Many tourists come to Nassau (on New Providence Isand) to get to another of the 700-odd Bahamian islands — often termed the Out Islands, many of them unspoiled in comparison with New Providence.

Of course, "unspoiled" to some people just means boring and out-of-it. So it's back to Nassau for them, although it's questionable whether Nassau is "in it."

NASSAU USED to be THE elegant city for society-conscious people going to the Bahamas. But a lot of those people now spread themselves farther around the world. Nassau still has a casino and all that goes with it on Paradise Island.

The island is a phenomenal tourist development only a short taxi ride from the city center. It is connected to New Providence Island by a soaring, fairytale-like bridge that carries the unfairytale toll of $2. In more ways than one Paradise Island is not for everyone.

If it's not for you, the alternative is to stay in Nassau proper or in a hotel on Cable Beach. For information on hotels a good guide book is "Fielding's Guide to the Caribbean plus the Bahamas, published in New York and available in many American bookstores for $7.95.

ABOUT FOUR or five years ago there was a land boom in and around Nassau, with tremendous buying and building of condominiums. But the boom has slacked off with the decision by the government of Prime Minister Lynden Pindling not to sell crown land.

If you desire, there are ways to meet Bahamians other than just your taxi driver. One way is to go to Nassau during Goombay Summer. Three years ago the Ministry of Tourism set up a program to entice tourists to the Bahamas during the months June to September, mistakenly considered too hot for visiting.

The idea of closing off Bay Street every Friday night during the summer to allow snake dancing to the music of local bands has gone over almost too well. One can hardly get onto the street during this miniature Mardi Gras.

AMONG OTHER things, Goombay Summer sponsors a folklore show and a weekly festival in Jumbey Village where you can buy soursop ice cream and conch fritters.

If you don't go to the Bahamas during the summer, you probably go because you want the summer. Temperatures never drop below 65 degrees.

Other people have gone to the Bahamas looking for things besides the sun. Christopher Coumbus went looking for China and gold. Ponce de Leon was looking for the fountain of youth. George Washington said he found the "isles of perpetual June" (but didn't say that was what he was looking for).

Whatever you go for, take a smile and give it to a Bahamian. He may need it.

INTRODUCING THE HARMAN-KARDON 75+ IN OUR BEST FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM YET

We're very proud of being the first to offer you the Harman-Kardon 75+, because this versatile four-channel receiver is an amazing achievement that's hard to fault for stereo or four-channel sound. It incorporates some advanced ideas Harman-Kardon first developed in their Citation line, and it has a couple of unique four-channel features all its own. Harman-Kardon's well-known twin power supplies and exceptionally wide frequency response contribute greatly to the outstanding clarity of sound you'll get with the 75+. A most unusual feature is the bridging circuit which, by linking the four amplifier sections into two, enables you to get more total power in stereo than in four-channel. The 75+ delivers 18 RMS watts per channel (72 total) in the four-channel mode, or 45 RMS watts per channel (90 total) in stereo. The 75+ incorporates an SQ matrix decoder which can provide either full four-channel separation or introduce a slight amount of blend in the front channels to position a soloist more pleasingly. An exclusive 360° balance control lets you adjust the total sound field for optimum four-channel realism or create some unusual moving-sound effects of your own. There's a synthesizer to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, facilities for adding discrete four-channel tape or cartridge decks and four-channel headphones, and of course a very good AM/FM stereo tuner section with all the usual controls. At $399.95, the 75+ costs no more than Harman-Kardon's best stereo receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The rest of this system deserves as much comment as the 75+, but space doesn't permit a full description. You get the excellent Benjamin Miracord 750 record player equipped with a base and a broadcast quality Stanton 500E elliptical cartridge, plus four of the direct/reflecting Bose 501 speaker systems. We'll be glad to tell you more about their features when you come in to hear what four-channel sound can really be.

AN IMPROVED AMPEX CASSETTE SPECIALLY PRICED FOR THE HOLIDAYS

People have been making good recordings on Ampex C60 cassettes for years, and recently Ampex has improved their tape formulation so you can make even better recordings. We normally sell these sturdy cassettes for 99¢, but this month we're reducing them to 69¢ each so you can do a lot of recording during the holiday season. Anyone on your gift list with a cassette recorder would probably appreciate a supply too. S .69

TREAT YOURSELF TO TEAC'S SEMI-PRO DECK

The TEAC 3300-10 stereo tape deck is one of the most flexible and convenient-to-use machines we've seen. Its professionalism starts with 10½-inch reels, which double recording time. Three heads permit monitoring your recordings. Three motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their problems. It has a pause control for editing, a bias control switch, line and mike mixer inputs, and automatic tape lifters. This exceptionally sturdy machine performs so well in terms of frequency response and signal to noise ratio that $500 is really a most reasonable price.

SAVE $100 ON THE NIKKO 8010 IF YOU GET ONE THIS WEEK

Nikko consistently packs a lot of value into their receivers, and when you can take $100 off the Nikko 8010's regular $254.95 price "value" is hardly strong enough to describe what you're getting. The 8010 delivers 40 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section's rated FM sensitivity of 2 microvolts is very good indeed for the price. Features include FM muting, a loudness contour, tape monitoring, and high and low filters. Circuit breakers are used in place of fuses. You can build a fine music system around the Nikko 8010, especially at this price, but the $100 saving is offered this week only. $154.95

BUY ONE, GET THE SECOND WHARFEDALE W70E FOR HALF PRICE

Wharfedale W70E's are high quality three-way speaker systems with the bonus of good furniture design. Each has a fifteen-inch bass speaker for strong, deep low notes. A five-inch midrange and one-inch dome treble speaker provide clean, smooth response clear out to beyond audibility. You can use the W70E's as high boy endtables or on their sides under windows. Either way they look great and sound great. If you want a pair, by all means get them this week. You pay our regular $199.95 price for the first one; the second one is $99.97.

Life With A Famous Father—

SON OF GROUCHO by Arthur Marx, David McKay Co., 357 pages, $7.95. ,Reviewed by Jim Williams

Looking for something light to read? "Son of Groucho" by the famed comedian's son Arthur Marx should fill the bill.

It is an intimate family portrait of his father Groucho and the other Marx Brothers. And Arthur should know his facts.

The book spans Arthur's years of growing up with a famous father, their mid-years and Groucho's presnet life.

There are also vignettes of celebrities drawn into the Marx orbit — Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer, Alexander Woollcott and others.

Groucho's pithy remarks are legion. A way to share them is to take a look at this living legend from the "son of Groucho."

History's Human Dimension

CALIFORNIA: LAND OF NEW BEGINNINGS by David Lavender; Harper and Row, 430 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

California history has been told and retold so many times that any new book of it faces the handicap of redundancy. But David Lavender has brought a fresh approach to "California: Land of New Beginnings."

There is little new historical material in Lavender's volume for Harper and Row's "Regions of America" series. But he tells the story in a more human dimension than most.

The Spanish explorers and padres, the Mexican generals, the '49ers and those who followed — all are real, believable people as depicted in "California: Land of New Beginnings." And the things they did are, therefore, more understandable.

Lavender's thesis is that California has been in ferment since its earliest settlement by whites. It has gone through beginning after beginning — and now seems launched on still another.

He sets the stage in his opening paragraphs:

"About six miles west of downtown Los Angeles is an accidental juxtaposition of landmarks, natural and man-made, that serves as an ironic introduction to some of California's furious ambivalences. The site is Hancock Park. Within the park's modest 32 acres are several ugly black bogs, a few life-sized, fiberglass replicas of prehistoric mammals, and a cluster of three spectacular buildings that were opened in March, 1965, as housing for the Los Angeles County Art Museum. Fronting both the bogs and the buildings is the nervous energy of Wilshire Boulevard, created during the 1920s to exploit the revolutionary shopping and living patterns just being created by the automobile.

"All tour guides of the city mention these items in isolation. More might be learned by pulling them together."

He spends the rest of the book "pulling them together," by reciting what has happened in California, where the oil that created those black bogs fuels the cars that stop and go, stop and go on Wilshire and hundreds of other boulevards.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SHREWSDALE EXIT by John Buell; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 279 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

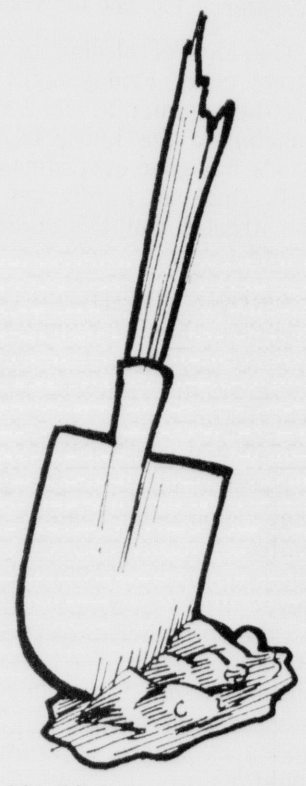
One of the most frightening, ugliest aspects of American life today is the prospect of suffering sudden, unprovoked violence. For Joe Grant, central character in John Buell's "The Shrewsdale Exit," that prospect became a terrible reality.

Bringing the terror and tragedy of mindless violence to Grant are three motorcycle-riding thugs. And when the ordeal is over, Grant's wife and small daughter are dead.

Buell recreates the helplessness of the average citizen placed in such a predicament with an almost unbearable realism. And he does well, too, with the aftermath of a Joe Grant at first stunned and numbed by what has occurred, then aching for revenge once his mind and emotions begin to thaw.

The rest of the novel, however, is not up to that start, and seems to trail off to a pat ending that is at odds with the tough, honest beginning. Drama becomes melodrama.

But on the whole, Buell, writing his third suspense novel, is deserving of applause. Despite the faltering finish, his book is well worth the reading — although the explosive start will give no comfort to a public already, perhaps, overly suspicious and fearful of other people, particularly those who are unlike the majority.



Fewer Titles

McGraw-Hill Book Co. has announced plans to cut its trade book list by half, from more than 200 titles to 100 titles a year.

Lincoln And Grant Vs. Lee And Davis

THE LAST CAMPAIGN by Earl Schenck Miers; Lippincott, 182 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

There is an ironic fitness in the title of this book: "The Last Campaign." For the author, Earl Schenck Miers, died at his home in Edison, N.J., a few days before it went on sale.

The "Last Campaign" of the volume is that of Grant and the Army of the Potomac against Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia, which closed the Civil War. The story has been told often. Miers tells it in terms of the four men who among them held the fate of Union and Confederacy: Lincoln and Grant, Davis and Lee.

It opens with the Battle of the Wilderness, in which Grant took over field command from Gen. George G. Meade. It follows the bloody, grinding trail that led to North Anna, Cold Harbor, Harrison's Landing, Petersburg — and at last to Appomatox Court House.

It is well told, a fitting addition to Lippincott's "Great Battles of History" series and a fitting period to the works of Miers, who has written a host of volumes, from juveniles to the full range of American history, since the boyhood days when he and this reviewer, as Lone Scouts, both tried their hands as amateurs at the typewriter.

An Exercise In Taste And Beauty

LOVE AFFAIR — A VENETIAN JOURNAL by Wright Morris; Harper and Row, 104 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here is an exquisite exercise in taste and sensitivity.

A beautiful array of superbly reproduced and displayed color photographs of one of the globe's most fascinating and photogenic cities is accompanied by Wright Morris' affectionate and perceptive description of what it is like to live in Venice.

"The mind-boggling gift of Venice," he writes, "is that it has escaped the tyranny of vehicles." It is a city where man walks — or more likely dawdles. And Morris revels in the pace and the unique way of life it creates.

So will the reader as he turns the pages to enjoy Morris' remarkable narrative and to savor the fine photos on each facing page.

A person who does not already share Morris' feeling for Venice will soon have the fire lit. There is more to Venice, one discovers, than canals, gondolas and palaces.

As for the worry that Venice's splendor is slowly disappearing, Morris observes that, yes, "Venice is sinking, but slower than most of us, and the sea will be less harsh than her likely survivors, ringed by motorcades."

Of Divas And The Music —

THE OPERA by Joseph Wechsberg; Macmillan, 312 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jim Williams.

In the forward to "The Opera" Joseph Wechsberg quickly sums up the intention of his absorbing work: "Opera is enjoyed only by those who know something about it. This is the idea behind this book . . ."

But please don't stop at his forward. "The Opera" is a treasure from beginning to end. Not only is it a book for the seasoned opera lover, but for the novice as well. It could serve as a great conversation piece at a very dull party.

Wechsberg traces the origins of opera, then explores singing and singers, people in opera, the great opera houses, as well as opera as a business.

The author, now a United States citizen, grew up in one of the world's greatest operatic cities. His love for the Vienna-style of opera is clear. His. discussions of the State Opera (Vienna's central house) are painted in detail. And I have to concur with Wechsberg that an evening at the famed house is one of the most thrilling experiences afforded an opera buff. I had the privilege of attending two performances there this fall. Not only does he discuss, Vienna, but deals at length on Italy's great house — La Scala in Milan — which to this day is still Toscanini's house. Rudolf Bing and the Metropolitan Opera are also very interesting.

But the noted critic gives only a line to the San Francisco Opera — noting that it occasionally presents outstanding productions. It's a shame that he did not come West for a closer look at the pride of San Francisco.

There are also many little gems on great divas, their battles and triumphs.

"The Opera" is a welcome addition to any opera lover's library.

A Museum For America's Own Music

By ANDREA CHAMBERS

Midtown Manhattan, New York City, is a muted plaid of browns, grays and sandy beiges, juxtaposed in organized stone and steel blocks. But on West 55th Street, elbowing stone and steel on its left and on its right, is a discordant patch of blazing blue — jazz blue, to be exact.

This is the New York Jazz Museum, the first in the U.S. devoted to the history, legend, and legacy of jazz from its African origins to the modern era.

"We're anxious to show people the history and significance of jazz," explains the museum's managing director, Jack Bradley.

Terming jazz the "only truly American art form," he adds that his museum, with its broad spectrum, differs from the very first American jazz museum located in New Orleans, which is devoted solely to the jazz tradition in that Louisiana city..

NEW YORK'S new jazz museum, only a few months old, is the offspring of the New York Hot Jazz Society, establihsed in 1967 to promote a greater appreciation of jazz. The society's programs include the screening of rare jazz films, tapes, records, slides and photos, a jazz touring program for schools and civic groups, and parties featuring great jazz personalities.

Thanks to a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, the society was able to realize a long-hoped-for goal: establishment of a permanent jazz museum.

Today, the New York Jazz Museum basks in the rhythm of "total jazz." Horns, posters and jazz memorabilia decorate the walls.

A "Jazz Store" offers records, old and new and reams of sheet music. And there is the gentle wail of a trumpet... or perhaps a horn... from the tapes spinning in a corner. Soon, live concerts will be performed from the museum's upstairs balcony.

THE ARCHITECTS and overseers of this environment are two ardent jazz fans, Howard Fischer and Jack Bradley. Fischer, a theatrical attorney, is founder and president of the New York Hot Jazz Society and executive director of the Jazz Museum. Bradley, managing director, is a jazz writer, collector, photographer and historian.

As directors, Fischer and Bradley must be not only administrators but jazz sleuths as well. What ever happened to Artie Shaw's clarinet? Lester Young's famous hat? That congratulatory telegram Dave Brubeck sent to Louis Armstrong?

Such jazz memorabilia must be scouted for museum exhibits.

Currently, the museum is amassing a permanent collection of jazz instruments and memorabilia from assorted musicians, collectors, film distributors and fans. Until this can be completed, the Jazz Museum is sponsoring a number of temporary shows devoted to all-time jazz greats.

The first? What else but a retrospective exhibit honoring "the King of Jazz," Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong himself.

VISITORS TO the Armstrong exhibit were able to view a pictorial history of "Satchmo's" rise to stardom as well as a chronological arrangement of his countless record jackets. Then, too, there was the less dramatic but still vital fabric of Armstrong's everyday life: an itemized laundry bill from a Buffalo hotel, a copy of the Armstrong diet and even a "Satchmo" hankie.

To show Armstrong's worldwide reputation, the Jazz Museum pinned up a few selected international fan letters addressed, for example, to "Louis Armstrong, King of the Jazz," "Rex Jazz," and "To Ole Satchmo Himself, Wherever He Is."

Following the "Satchmo" retrospective, the museum has scheduled a Duke Ellington exhibit and an expanded jazz-film program.

IN ADDITION to exhibiting jazz artifacts and films, the Jazz Museum serves as an up-to-date jazz information center. All jazz events in and around New York appear on the museum's Jazz Calendar.

Fortuitous visitors to the West 55th Street jazz center might find an added bonus: a chance meeting with a member of the museum's illustrious board of directors, who drop in now and then to see how things are progressing. Among them are Artie Shaw, Clark Terry, Sy Oliver, Billy Taylor and Milt Hinton.

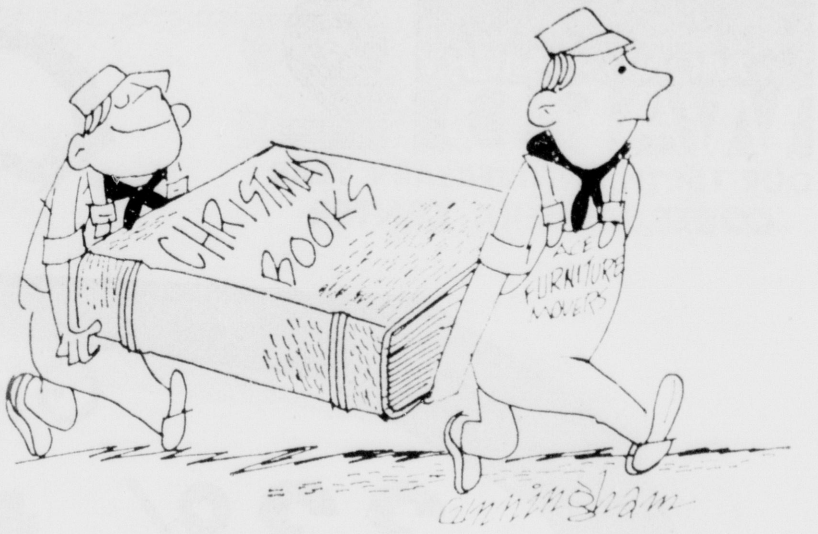
"For one, I doubt that any single moment of human experience has ever been fully understood or described. In fact, other than the surface worldly aspect of ourselves, most people have only a glimmering of what goes on in their heads. Often their most common fantasy or fear is just half known. . . We seem to know far more of rocks, clouds and machines than we do of our own experiencing." Wilson Van Dusen in "The Natural Depth of Man."



The Inner Messages

By DON KEOWN

THE NATURAL DEPTH IN MAN by Wilson Van Dusen; Harper and Row, 197 pages, $5.95.

"If one were locked up in an ancient castle for one's whole life — a castle full of artifacts, dungeons, endless rooms, art and books — one would spend much time exploring and recreating the lives of the inhabitants. We are locked up in such a mind castle, yet we have explored little. Many know little more than a sitting room in the east wing and assume this is the whole. The size of the mind-castle is little appreciated. It includes all you have experienced, are experiencing, will experience, and in the remote corners, all you can experience."

Thus Wilson Van Dusen, a much-published East Bay clinical psychologist, begins his book "The Natural Depth of Man," which, he says, he hopes will awaken his readers to their own "often dismissed inner messages."

In what manner are these inner messages delivered? Van Dusen suggests self-reflection, fantasy, meditation, dreams, the hypnogogic state, perhaps even hallucinations as among the media.

From whence come these messages is an even more involved and more difficult question. But Van Dusen suggests that there is within the individual a transcendent inner process and presence, which he personalizes as The Other Me, that exceeds our outer self in wisdom and experience and which, if listened to, can be used for guidance and direction in life.

It is not, however, quite that simple. Not only must this The Other Me be listened to, but it must be understood as well. And The Other Me speaks to us in a language all its own, dealing in esoteric symbols whose meaning often escapes us even when we remember the content of our dreams or fantasies.

Van Dusen believes we can train ourselves to remember our dreams and our equally fragile experiences while in the hypnogogic state — the twilight between awakeness and sleep that he regards as a particularly promising and fascinating field neglected by psychology and psychiatry. And he offers some instruction.

He believes, too, that the dreamer or fantasizer is his own best interpreter of his dreams or fantasies. But here he can be less helpful. Admittedly, the involved symbolism lends itself to many diverse interpretations. And the examples he provides of supposedly correct interpretations seem tenuous and unproven at best. Certainly the untrained individual who wrestles with the productions of his own mind — a kind of inner theater of the absurd — is taking on a difficult and uncertain task in trying to pin concrete meanings to allusory symbols.

A central question is whether all this is even worth the effort.

Van Dusen does not see fantasies, hypnogogic experiences or dreams as particularly useful for peering into the future. The Other Me, he believes, is concerned with the present. Thus, he feels, the most productive use the individual can make of these inner processes is the development of an enlightened understanding of himself as he exists today — of his needs, his fears, his values, his objectives. Blocks that limit the outer man pose no real problem for the inner psyche, so that we get from it a clearer, more honest picture of what we really are. Likewise, the psyche offers a sharper perspective of others and of society as a whole as well.

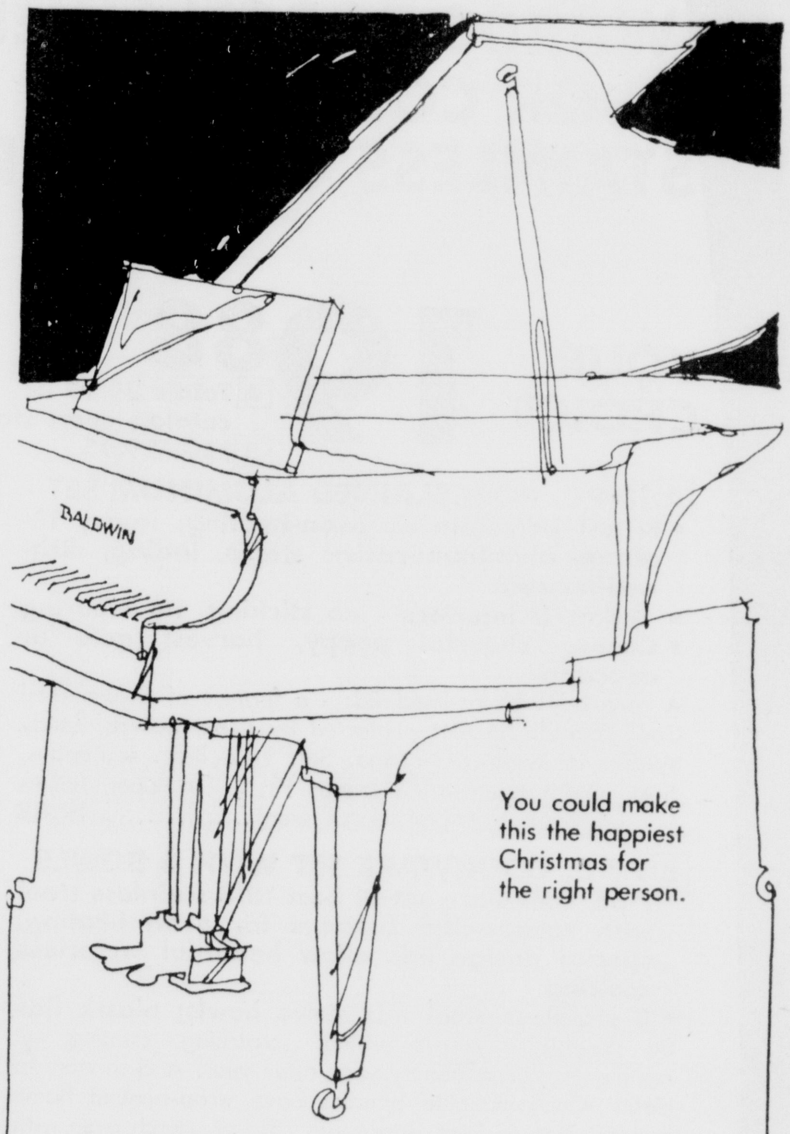
Mystical experiences, Van Dusen believes, are more common than generally believed, and these, too, can be used for enlightenment.

Van Dusen also tosses in some unorthodox theories on madness, seeing it broadly as a constriction of one's world, as a loss of meaning to existence, and as a move toward uselessness and unproductivity. Rather than delving into psyche, he suggests for recovery a course emphasizing useful work and consideration for others.

"Madness is uselessness; sanity is usefulness," he asserts.

Wilson Van Dusen obviously has been profoundly influenced by the works of Emanuel Swedenborg, the Swedish philosopher, religious leader and mystic. "The Natural Depth in Man" is replete with Swedenborgian quotations and theories, and finishes with a brief biography of Swedenborg.

Van Dusen's own book is important in bringing to our attention the presence of these often dismissed inner messages. But it also makes apparent the extreme difficulty of interpreting and using these subtle inner processes effectively. It is one thing to realize that our dreams have meaning. It is quite another to peer through the tricky web of allusion and symbolism to determine exactly what that meaning might be. "The Natural Depth in Man" can only start you to thinking in that direction.



You could make this the happiest Christmas for the right person.

Alaska Where Winter Is Fishing Season

Alaska offers the world's greatest sports fishing, and this applies in summer and winter. Admittedly, summer fishing in the 49th State offers more appeal to most of those from the "other 49," but for Alaskans and the few outsiders who have tried it, winter or "ice" fishing offers a world of challenge and fun.

Ice fishing in Alaska starts as soon as the waters of the numerous Alaskan lakes are frozen to a depth of four or five inches and continues until things begin to thaw out in the spring.

Two of the favorite fish caught during the winter months are rainbow trout and silver salmon. Both are delicious on the table and are especially tasty if caught during the colder months as the flesh is firm and solid.

A little more gear is generally required for the wintertime sport, although if one prefers to travel light, a dollar's worth of beef liver will put you in business. In addition, an axe, ice spur or ice auger are required to get through the ice to the water.

Shelter of some sort, made of canvas or another material is sometimes popular, although not in vogue with Alaskans.

Somehow The Bahamians Keep Smiling

By JUNE GOODWIN

NASSAU, Bahamas — It's no wonder the Bahamas' "smile campaign" toward tourists occasionally turns into a case of grin-and-bear-it.

After all, there were 1,473,591 people to smile at last year and fewer than 180,000 people to do the smiling.

Sometimes, just sometimes, a Bahamian gets tired of remembering who butters his bread. He would rather think, say, of eating a conch with lime juice squeezed on it, or think of lying under a palm tree like the tourists.

IN A WAY, though, smiling conditions for the Bahamians are getting better. More and more tourists are coming on cruise ships, instead of flying in. This means that most of the smiling (and grinning) goes on in Nassau, gateway to this sunny archipelago. And the lion's share of Nassau's tourism takes place up and down Bay Street, the shoppers' row, very near Prince George Wharf where the cruise ships tie up.

Tourism officials are not ecstatic about the cruise boom, since it means less time and money in hotels. But neither are they completely unecstatic since cruises increase the number of arrivals. And that always looks good in reports.

Then, too, some cruise ships bring in more money than others. The Homeric Lines, for example, sailing every week from New York, arrive in Nassau Tuesday and leave Thursday.

THAT'S PLENTY of time to buy almost anything your heart could desire, some of it at bargain prices. Straw bags, china and crystal, cameras, and perfume are among the bargains.

Straw bags, at the same time, are not always among the bargains — depending on the bag and the market. The market at Prince George Wharf is great fun to watch, but buy there only if you can't get any farther.

Nassau merchants aren't always as well served by other cruise ships as they are by the Homeric Line however. The Queen Elizabeth 2 went to Nassau last Jan. 1, arriving at 8 a.m. and leaving at 5 p.m.

"MORE TIME was spent climbing the ladder down from the ship than in going around Nassau," one tourism official remarked.

But that's what a city sometimes gets if it is a gateway. Many tourists come to Nassau (on New Providence Isand) to get to another of the 700-odd Bahamian islands — often termed the Out Islands, many of them unspoiled in comparison with New Providence.

Of course, "unspoiled" to some people just means boring and out-of-it. So it's back to Nassau for them, although it's questionable whether Nassau is "in it."

NASSAU USED to be THE elegant city for society-conscious people going to the Bahamas. But a lot of those people now spread themselves farther around the world. Nassau still has a casino and all that goes with it on Paradise Island.

The island is a phenomenal tourist development only a short taxi ride from the city center. It is connected to New Providence Island by a soaring, fairytale-like bridge that carries the unfairytale toll of $2. In more ways than one Paradise Island is not for everyone.

If it's not for you, the alternative is to stay in Nassau proper or in a hotel on Cable Beach. For information on hotels a good guide book is "Fielding's Guide to the Caribbean plus the Bahamas, published in New York and available in many American bookstores for $7.95.

ABOUT FOUR or five years ago there was a land boom in and around Nassau, with tremendous buying and building of condominiums. But the boom has slacked off with the decision by the government of Prime Minister Lynden Pindling not to sell crown land.

If you desire, there are ways to meet Bahamians other than just your taxi driver. One way is to go to Nassau during Goombay Summer. Three years ago the Ministry of Tourism set up a program to entice tourists to the Bahamas during the months June to September, mistakenly considered too hot for visiting.

The idea of closing off Bay Street every Friday night during the summer to allow snake dancing to the music of local bands has gone over almost too well. One can hardly get onto the street during this miniature Mardi Gras.

AMONG OTHER things, Goombay Summer sponsors a folklore show and a weekly festival in Jumbey Village where you can buy soursop ice cream and conch fritters.

If you don't go to the Bahamas during the summer, you probably go because you want the summer. Temperatures never drop below 65 degrees.

Other people have gone to the Bahamas looking for things besides the sun. Christopher Columbus went looking for China and gold. Ponce de Leon was looking for the fountain of youth. George Washington said he found the "isles of perpetual June" (but didn't say that was what he was looking for).

Whatever you go for, take a smile and give it to a Bahamian. He may need it.

Reviews Of New Reading

Life With A Famous Father—

SON OF GROUCHO by Arthur Marx, David McKay Co., 357 pages, $7.95. ,Reviewed by Jim Williams

Looking for something light to read? "Son of Groucho" by the famed comedian's son Arthur Marx should fill the bill.

It is an intimate family portrait of his father Groucho and the other Marx Brothers. And Arthur should know his facts.

The book spans Arthur's years of growing up with a famous father, their mid-years and Groucho's presnet life.

There are also vignettes of celebrities drawn into the Marx orbit — Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer, Alexander Woollcott and others.

Groucho's pithy remarks are legion. A way to share them is to take a look at this living legend from the "son of Groucho."

History's Human Dimension

CALIFORNIA: LAND OF NEW BEGINNINGS by David Lavender; Harper and Row, 430 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

California history has been told and retold so many times that any new book of it faces the handicap of redundancy. But David Lavender has brought a fresh approach to "California: Land of New Beginnings."

There is little new historical material in Lavender's volume for Harper and Row's "Regions of America" series. But he tells the story in. a more human dimension than most.

The Spanish explorers and padres, the Mexican generals, the '49ers and those who followed — all are real, believable people as depicted in "California: Land of New Beginnings." And the things they did are, therefore, more understandable.

Lavender's thesis is that California has been in ferment since its earliest settlement by whites. It has gone through beginning after beginning — and now seems launched on still another.

He sets the stage in his opening paragraphs:

"About six miles west of downtown Los Angeles is an accidental juxtaposition of landmarks, natural and man-made, that serves as an ironic introduction to some of California's furious ambivalences. The site is Hancock Park. Within the park's modest 32 acres are several ugly black bogs, a few life-sized, fiberglass replicas of prehistoric mammals, and a cluster of three spectacular buildings that were opened in March, 1965, as housing for the Los Angeles County Art Museum. Fronting both the bogs and the buildings is the nervous energy of Wilshire Boulevard, created during the 1920s to exploit the revolutionary shopping and living patterns just being created by the automobile.

"All tour guides of the city mention these items in isolation. More might be learned by pulling them together."

He spends the rest of the book "pulling them together," by reciting what has happened in California, where the oil that created those black bogs fuels the cars that stop and go, stop and go on Wilshire and hundreds of other boulevards.

Sleuths & Suspense

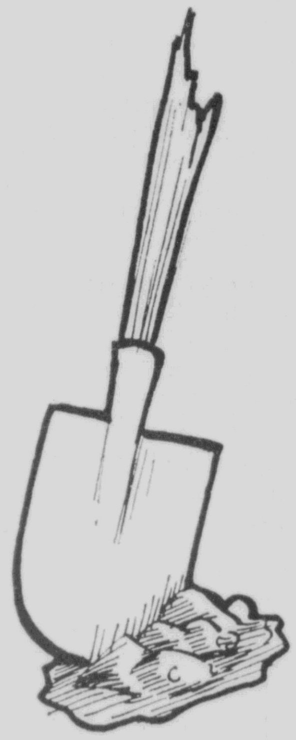
THE SHREWSDALE EXIT by John Buell; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 279 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

One of the most frightening, ugliest aspects of American life today is the prospect of suffering sudden, unprovoked violence. For Joe Grant, central character in John Buell's "The Shrewsdale Exit," that prospect became a terrible reality.

Bringing the terror and tragedy of mindless violence to Grant are three motorcycle-riding thugs. And when the ordeal is over, Grant's wife and small daughter are dead.

Buell recreates the helplessness of the average citizen placed in such a predicament with an almost unbearable realism. And he does well, too, with the aftermath of a Joe Grant at first stunned and numbed by what has occurred, then aching for revenge once his mind and emotions begin to thaw.

The rest of the novel, however, is not up to that start, and seems to trail off to a pat ending that is at odds with the tough, honest beginning. Drama becomes melodrama.



But on the whole, Buell, writing his third suspense novel, is deserving of applause. Despite the faltering finish, his book is well worth the reading — although the explosive start will give no comfort to a public already, perhaps, overly suspicious and fearful of other people, particularly those who are unlike the majority.

Lincoln And Grant Vs. Lee And Davis

THE LAST CAMPAIGN by Earl Schenck Miers; Lippincott, 182 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

There is an ironic fitness in the title of this book: "The Last Campaign." For the author, Earl Schenck Miers, died at his home in Edison, N.J., a few days before it went on sale.

The "Last Campaign" of the volume is that of Grant and the Army of the Potomac against Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia, which closed the Civil War. The story has been told often. Miers tells it in terms of the four men who among them held the fate of Union and Confederacy: Lincoln and Grant, Davis and Lee.

It opens with the Battle of the Wilderness, in which Grant took over field command from Gen. George G. Meade. It follows the bloody, grinding trail that led to North Anna, Cold Harbor, Harrison's Landing, Petersburg — and at last to Appomatox Court House.

It is well told, a fitting addition to Lippincott's "Great Battles of History" series and a fitting period to the works of Miers, who has written a host of volumes, from juveniles to the full range of American history, since the boyhood days when he and this reviewer, as Lone Scouts, both tried their hands as amateurs at the typewriter.

An Exercise In Taste And Beauty

LOVE AFFAIR — A VENETIAN JOURNAL by Wright Morris; Harper and Row, 104 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here is an exquisite exercise in taste and sensitivity.

A beautiful array of superbly reproduced and displayed color photographs of one of the globe's most fascinating and photogenic cities is accompanied by Wright Morris' affectionate and perceptive description of what it is like to live in Venice.

"The mind-boggling gift of Venice," he writes, "is that it has escaped the tyranny of vehicles." It is a city where man walks — or more likely dawdles. And Morris revels in the pace and the unique way of life it creates.

So will the reader as he turns the pages to enjoy Morris' remarkable narrative and to savor the fine photos on each facing page.

A person who does not already share Morris' feeling for Venice will soon have the fire lit. There is more to Venice, one discovers, than canals, gondolas and palaces.

As for the worry that Venice's splendor is slowly disappearing, Morris observes that, yes, "Venice is sinking, but slower than most of us, and the sea will be less harsh than her likely survivors, ringed by motorcades."

Of Divas And The Music —

THE OPERA by Joseph Wechsberg; Macmillan, 312 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jim Williams.

In the forward to "The Opera" Joseph Wechsberg quickly sums up the intention of his absorbing work: "Opera is enjoyed only by those who know something about it. This is the idea behind this book . . ."

But please don't stop at his forward. "The Opera" is a treasure from beginning to end. Not only is it a book for the seasoned opera lover, but for the novice as well. It could serve as a great conversation piece at a very dull party.

Wechsberg traces the origins of opera, then explores singing and singers, people in opera, the great opera houses, as well as opera as a business.

The author, now a United States citizen, grew up in one of the world's greatest operatic cities. His love for the Vienna-style of opera is clear. His. discussions of the State Opera (Vienna's central house) are painted in detail. And I have to concur with Wechsberg that an evening at the famed house is one of the most thrilling experiences afforded an opera buff. I had the privilege of attending two performances there this fall. Not only does he discuss, Vienna, but deals at length on Italy's great house — La Scala in Milan — which to this day is still Toscanini's house. Rudolf Bing and the Metropolitan Opera are also very interesting.

But the noted critic gives only a line to the San Francisco Opera — noting that it occasionally presents outstanding productions. It's a shame that he did not come West for a closer look at the pride of San Francisco.

There are also many little gems on great divas, their battles and triumphs.

"The Opera" is a welcome addition to any opera lover's library.

In fact, other than the surface worldly aspect of ourselves, most people have only a glimmering of what goes on in their heads. Often their most common fantasy or fear is just half known. . . We seem to know far more of rocks, clouds and machines than we do of our own experiencing." Wilson Van Dusen in "The Natural Depth of Man."

By DON KEOWN

THE NATURAL DEPTH IN MAN by Wilson Van Dusen; Harper and Row, 197 pages, $5.95.

"If one were locked up in an ancient castle for one's whole life — a castle full of artifacts, dungeons, endless rooms, art and books — one would spend much time exploring and recreating the lives of the inhabitants. We are locked up in such a mind castle, yet we have explored little. Many know little more than a sitting room in the east wing and assume this is the whole. The size of the mind-castle is little appreciated. It includes all you have experienced, are experiencing, will experience, and in the remote corners, all you can experience."

Thus Wilson Van Dusen, a much-published East Bay clinical psychologist, begins his book "The Natural Depth of Man," which, he says, he hopes will awaken his readers to their own "often dismissed inner messages."

In what manner are these inner messages delivered? Van Dusen suggests self-reflection, fantasy, meditation, dreams, the hypnogogic state, perhaps even hallucinations as among the media.

From whence come these messages is an even more involved and more difficult question. But Van Dusen suggests that there is within the individual a transcendent inner process and presence, which he personalizes as The Other Me, that exceeds our outer self in wisdom and experience and which, if listened to, can be used for guidance and direction in life.

It is not, however, quite that simple. Not only must this The Other Me be listened to, but it must be understood as well. And The Other Me speaks to us in a language all its own, dealing in esoteric symbols whose meaning often escapes us even when we remember the content of our dreams or fantasies.

Van Dusen believes we can train ourselves to remember our dreams and our equally fragile experiences while in the hypnogogic state — the twilight between awakeness and sleep that he regards as a particularly promising and fascinating field neglected by psychology and psychiatry. And he offers some instruction.

He believes, too, that the dreamer or fantasizer is his own best interpreter of his dreams or fantasies. But here he can be less helpful. Admittedly, the involved symbolism lends itself to many diverse interpretations. And the examples he provides of supposedly correct interpretations seem tenuous and unproven at best. Certainly the untrained individual who wrestles with the productions of his own mind — a kind of inner theater of the absurd — is taking on a difficult and uncertain task in trying to pin concrete meanings to allusory symbols.

A central question is whether all this is even worth the effort.

Van Dusen does not see fantasies, hypnogogic experiences or dreams as particularly useful for peering into the future. The Other Me, he believes, is concerned with the present. Thus, he feels, the most productive use the individual can make of these inner processes is the development of an enlightened understanding of himself as he exists today — of his needs, his fears, his values, his objectives. Blocks that limit the outer man pose no real problem for the inner psyche, so that we get from it a clearer, more honest picture of what we really are. Likewise, the psyche offers a sharper perspective of others and of society as a whole as well.

Mystical experiences, Van Dusen believes, are more common than generally believed, and these, too, can be used for enlightenment.

Van Dusen also tosses in some unorthodox theories on madness, seeing it broadly as a constriction of one's world, as a loss of meaning to existence, and as a move toward uselessness and unproductivity. Rather than delving into psyche, he suggests for recovery a course emphasizing useful work and consideration for others.

Are You Allergic To Your Garden?

Is that rash on your hands and arms caused by pesticides or did it result from handling flowers or foliage?

The California Department of Agriculture reports many calls from people concerned about a skin rash or an uncomfortable itch after working in thier gardens.

Such callers sometimes blame their discomfort on a pesticide, when many common plants, including flowers and ornamentals, can cause dermatitis.

According to Dr. Robert Adams, dermatologist at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic, and Jack Washkuhn, industrial hygienist with the San Mateo County Department of Public Health, authors of "Contact Dermatitis," even that beautiful bunch of chrysanthemums or that cluster of Shasta daisies may produce dermatitis under certain conditions.

Usually chrysanthemum dermatitis appears in the late fall and early winter during the blooming season, they say. Since the blooms emit a pollen, the eyelids may be the first area of the body affected. This may suggest an allergic sensitivity to chrysanthemums.

Philodendron is widely used for interior decorating and patio planting. Several species of this plant may cause dermatitis, especailly of the hands and arm. Exposure takes place when the person washes or plucks the leaves.

Dieffenbachia, or "deaf and dumb plant," is a houseplant closely related to philodendron. It may also cause a skin rash.

Oleander may cause dermatitis if crushed leaves come into contact with the skin of persons sensitized by previous exposures.

There are many varieties of primroses, any of which may cause dermatitis on some people. "Lily rash" is a frequent type of skin eruption, often involving the face, hands and forearms. Those affected are usually engaged in cutting, bunching or packing daffodil and narcissus flowers.

Chinese rice paper plant, a popular ornamental, may cause severe dermatitis. The toxic substance is present in a heavy yellow pollen produced by the plant in fall and winter months.

Less commonly, dermatitis may be produced by dichondra, magnolia, century plant, tea roses, poinsettias and Australian silk oak trees.

"Bulb fingers" may be produced by handling tulips or narcissus. It may be caused by specific allergens contained in the oleoresins of the bulbs, or by needle-like calcium oxalate monohydrate crystals in the bulbs which penetrate the skin when the bulbs are handled.

Early symptoms of bulb fingers includes tingling and tenderness of the fingertips. Redness soon develops and, with repeated exposrue, the fingertips may become dry, scaly and fissured.

A similar type of skin eruption may be produced by hyacinth bulbs or by handling onions and garlic. Even common garden vegetables like carrots, parsley, parsnips and celery may cause allergies in some individuals.

Not everyone is subject to dermatitis from these sources, but, says Dr. Adams and Waskhuhu, a skin rash is as likely to be caused by such plants as by a chemical carelessly handled.

How To Care For Your Living Christmas Tree Indoors

More Marinites than ever before will be using living Christmas trees this holiday season, aware that living trees enhance the quality of the environment.

Trees provide vital oxygen for humans, plus trap and filter dust and dirt particles from the air we breathe. They are nature's own air conditioners, providing shade and offering temperature control on hot summer days. They also reduce sound and city noises which fray one's nerves!

TO INSURE a long life for a living Christmas tree — and that's an important reason for selecting a growing tree in preference to a cut one — it should receive air, light, moisture and a comfortable temperature. Indoors, the requirements of a living Christmas tree are much like those of a foliage house plant.

The air and temperature conditions inside the average home during the winter are suitable for a living Christmas tree. It should be located in a well-lighted room — as opposed to being placed in a dark location, where drapes are drawn.

While it may be possible to enjoy the tree indoors for 10 to 14 days, the California Assn. of Nurserymen recommends one week's time — especially if the home is kept warm. Avoid placing the tree close to a fireplace or a heat outlet, as excess warmth can damage a live tree as easily as a cut tree.

IN CARING for the tree indoors, keep the roots of the tree moist. If the tree is growing in a container, this simplifies watering; if the root ball is contained in burlap, set this in a can or tub which will catch the drainage — and saturate the root ball with water. A heavy plastic covering will protect carpeting or floor.

It isn't necessary to keep the tree standing in water, but watch that the plant doesn't dry out between waterings.

Living Christmas trees can be decorated with ornaments and lights — miniatures are recommended. Many Californians decorate a container-grown tree and display it at the entrance or on the patio to add a festive holiday spirit to the outdoor living area or entryway.

AFTER DEC. 25, and after the decorations have been removed, take the tree outdoors and hose off its foliage with a fine mist spray. This will be helpful in the transition from indoors and will aid the tree in its efforts to provide beauty and enjoyment for its owners — as well as enhancing the quality of the environment.

Remember: all these benefits accrue, whether the living Christmas tree is planted in the landscape or grown in a container to serve as an accessory to decorate the garden.

Three More Plant Books By Kramer

San Rafael's Jack Kramer, who has established himself as this country's leading author of gardening books, has three new ones to bid for the green thumb trade this Christmas season.

They are:

"Garden Rooms and Greenhouses" (Harper and Row, $10), a guide to the design, construction, maintenance and stocking of these increasingly popular indoor gardens, written by a man whose own garden room is a showplace and which has been included among the many photographs in this book. There are also diagrams to aid in the planning and the building. And special material on plants best suited to greenhouses and garden rooms.

"Natural Dyes: Plants and Processes" (Scribner's, $9.95) is an illustrated manual on the plants that can be used for natural dyeing, how to collect them and how to use them. Blackberry shoots, fennel, yellow lichen, rhododendron leaves, red onion skins, eucalyptus bark and flowering plum leaves are typical ingredients from his dye recipes. The processes, Kramer promises, have been tested by himself and proven. It deals with a currently popular craft riding the do-it-for-yourself wave.

"Ferns and Palms for Interior Decoration" (Scribner's, $6.95) takes up two foliage plants that graced Victorian homes and are now making a strong comeback as freshening touches in indoor decor. Kramer takes up all the many species of ferns and palms, their specific growing requirements, and the special uses to which they are adapted. Again, there are lots of illustrations.

THE ICELAND POPPY is just one of the annuals that can be planted in December in Marin to get the jump on spring. There are newer hybrids in intense shades and a wide color range — oranges, reds, yellows, pinks, whites. Give them good drainage. And grow them as borders, in beds, or in window boxes or other containers.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENER OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Perennials you can plant this month include Shasta Daisies, Day Lilies, Columbine, Phlox and Lily-of-the Valley. Mix in plenty of organic material with the soil. The plants will be strongly established when it is time to produce new growth in the spring.

✓ Supplies are dwindling, so hurry to plant Daffodils, Tulips, Hyacinths and other spring-blooming bulbs. Ranunculus can be planted from now into January for a succession of bloom in the spring garden.

✓ Remember that rains can't reach plants growing next to the house, under wide overhangs. Don't let the plants dry out.

✓ Cut back Dahlia stalks to within six inches of the ground and dig tubers after foliage turns yellow or is blackened by frost. Wash off dirt from tubers and place them in the sun to dry. Then, apply a recommended all-purpose garden dust. Store in a cool place until planting-time in spring.

✓ Heather, Azaleas and Camellias head the list of blooming shrubs available in nurseries this month.

✓ Don't overlook plants and garden tools in your Christmas shopping.

A Little Color And Pattern Can Give A Room That Lift

By CAROLYN MURRAY

If there's one dog of a room in your house one you find hard to resolve from a decorating point of view — try winging your way to a solution through the use of color and pattern.

Sometimes a single strong theme such as a bold plaid or an over-scaled flower motif can give that hopeless area a sense of continuity.

The kitchen shown today is one hard-to-believe rehabilitation job.

The plaster on the ceilings and walls was a shambles. Existing cabinetry was painted an old ivory color that showed every greasy fingerprint. The floor was covered in a 1930 linoleum, and cooking equipment was adequate but not enhanced in any way by the decorative materials.

Handyman's Pages

IN CAME designer Betty Willis, to salvage the situation.

She has a special talent with paint and color so she decided to create a warm kitchen, the kind we think of when we say family kitchen. She found reproductions of American Colonial furniture by Pennsylvania House and ordered the tables and chairs, plus a mobile service cart, in a warm red finish.

Then she went looking for a way to disguise the ugly ceilings and walls without having to replaster.

THE ANSWER was a vinyl-coated wall covering from C. W. Stockwell. It has a delightful strawberry motif, trailing over a simple trellis.

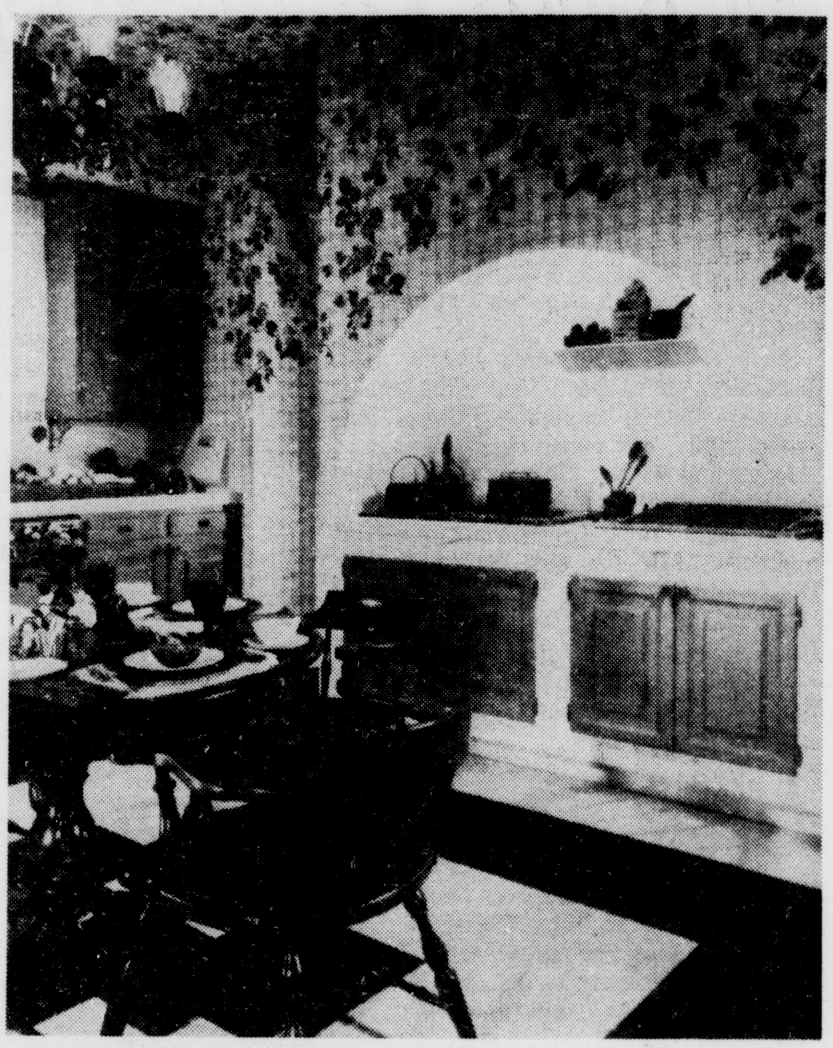
Instead of merely dabbling with small areas of paper, she covered the entire ceiling, then trailed the strawberry vine halfway down the wall area. The lower section is covered with the plain trellis pattern minus the strawberries.

Another quick piece of trickery was the plywood arch she asked the carpenter to make. This conceals all that dead space above the cook top and gives a little more character to the whole room. One small shelf holds decorative and useful items.

CABINETS throughout the kitchen wer painted a leaf green. On one door to a storage pantry she had the owner hand-paint little strawberries and vines, then add hand-lettered mottoes.

The result is warm and personal — a happy blend of family and professional touches.

The flooring is a simple geometric idea and uses wood tiles stained to two shades: off-white and green. These are KolorWood from Edward Fields. An effective perk-up for a drab workroom.



AN UGLY DUCKLING kitchen was transformed by designer Betty Willis into this warm and comfortable room, through the imaginative use of color and pattern.

'Making Do' In The Manner Of The American Pioneer

Arthur M. Hill, a now retired shop teacher, is a throwback to the old pioneer days — a self-sufficient man.

All his life he has made with his own hands, simply but sturdily, the things which he and his family needed. He anticipated today's do-it-yourself, natural living craze by several decades.

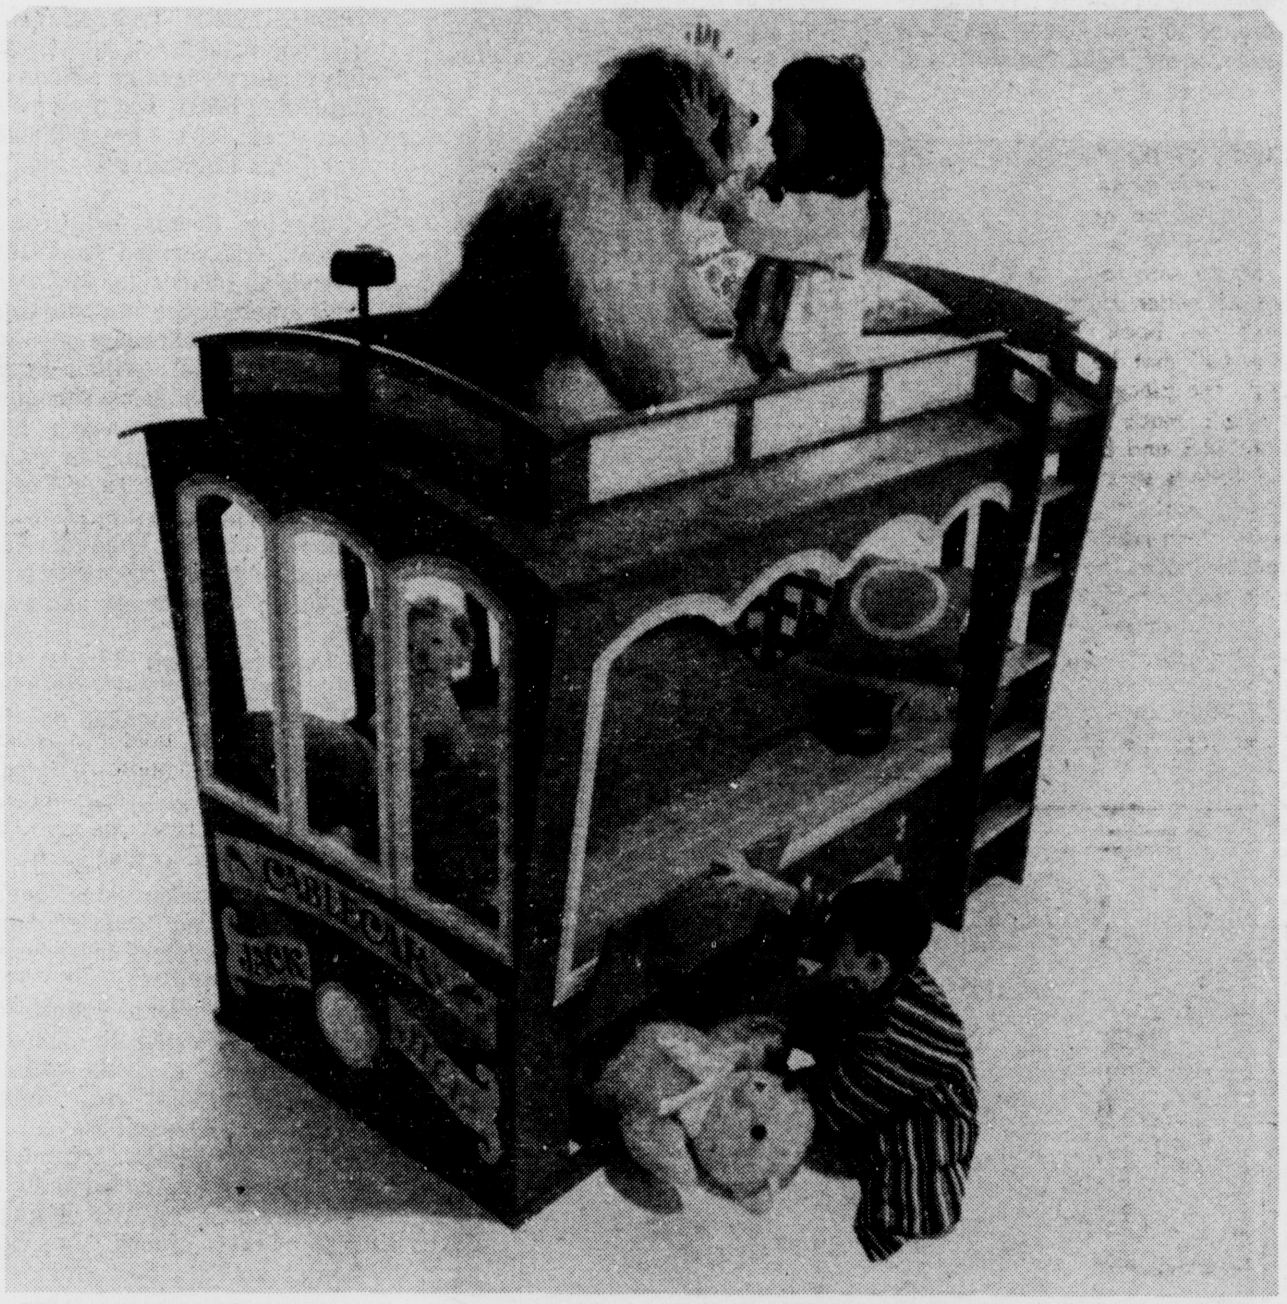
In "Making Do," $3.95 softcover, published jointly by Ballantine Books and San Francisco Book Co., Hill shares a good many of his designs and projects, with diagrams, drawings and detailed directions.

For the home, there is the framing itself, the fireplace, fireplace tools, simple furniture, homemade bread mixer (with bread recipe), hand-powered washing machine, potter's wheel, drinking glasses, etc. For the garden, there are a wheelbarrow, a rake, a push plow, a hotbed, a post hole digger, and some advice on gardening itself. For the yard, there's a child's swing and slide, a dollhouse, a cement mixer. For the shop, saws, vise, lathe, mallet, die holder, sanding disc, forge, hinges, directions on bending wrought iron, working sheet metal and much, much else.

Hill obviously is a man who, like our more isolated and self-reliant forefathers, stresses utility and function over appearance, although there is no reason why his projects cannot be finished for aesthetic effect. In fact, their rude simplicity has a certain beauty of its own.

One can learn from Arthur M. Hill not only how to build a bed or to fit a pipe, but also something of a philosophy of life that obviously is rich with dignity and satisfaction.

ALL ABOARD FOR SLUMBERLAND



SAN FRANCISCO'S world famous cable cars provide the model for this six-foot-high, seven-foot-long bunk bed, accommodating standard 39-by-75-inch mattresses. Built of durable fir plywood, both bunks are safely enclosed. There's a ladder for easy ascent to the top bunk. And large doors on the skirt of the bed conceal bedding and store toys.

Send $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 92409, and ask for Cable Car Bunk Bed Pattern 507. From those directions you can easily construct a lightweight bed that disassembles, for storing or moving, into eight individual pieces.

All Kinds Of Plywood Are Made From The Real Thing

By ANDY LANG

The varieties of plywood are almost endless, but none is a synthetic product, as some persons are inclined to think.

Webster puts it this way:

"A structural material consisting of wood glued or cemented together with the grains of adjacent layers arranged at right angles or at a wide angle."

The key word there is "wood." But it would take several pages of any dictionary to delve into the many types, classes and grades of plywood.

THE MOST common kind of plywood is Douglas fir, which is what you get when you walk into a lumber yard and buy a piece of four by eight plywood without giving any specifications. It is strong, has a wide range of applications and is the least expensive.

When you want plywood for a special purpose, tell the dealer what the purpose is. This is especially important if you intend to use the plywood outdoors where it will be continually exposed to the elements. In that case, you will need exterior plywood, which has completely waterproof glue between the veneers.

Interior plywood is highly moisture resistant but the bond is not 100 per cent waterproof. Also, the veneers used in the inner plys may be of lower grade than those in the exterior type. But interior plywood may be used anywhere it will not be subject to continuing moisture conditions or extreme humidity.

SHEETS OF plywood have all kinds of markings on them. Here is what a few of them mean:

A-A — For applications where both sides of the plywood will be on view.

A-B — For applications similar to A-A but where the appearance of one side is less important yet two smooth solid surfaces are necessary.

A-C or A-D — Where the appearance of only one side is important.

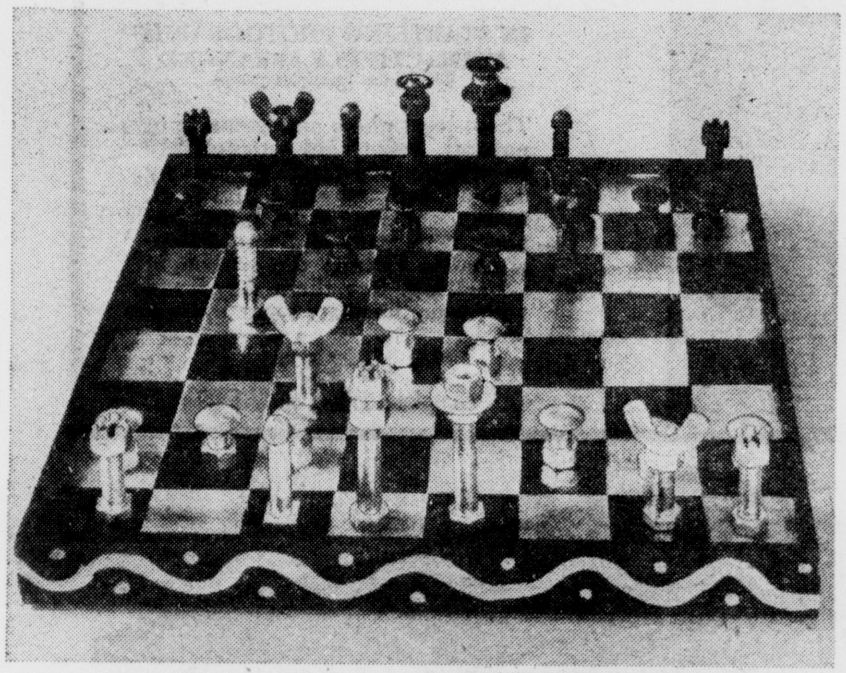
B-B — Has solid surfaces but generally used where the plywood will be painted rather than given a clear finish.

B-C or B-D — For use as utility panels.

Plywood comes in both softwood and hardwood, the softwood — pine, Douglas Fir, Spruce, poplar, etc. — being the big seller. Hardwood-faced plywood is more expensive generally, but is distinguished for the beauty of its grain and color. It has four common grades, one to four, the lower the number the higher the over-all appearance and quality.

Many plywood sheets have various kinds of special finishes, including hardboard surfaces, striations, grooves and plastic coats. It is safe to say that there is a plywood for every possible use.

A GAME OF NUTS AND BOLTS



CHESS IS the "in" game these days, and many a head-of-the-house will be getting a set for Christmas. If the son or a friend is handy with tools, here is one out of Better Homes and Garden's new book "Gifts to Make Yourself" that he can make for dad. The pieces, pawn to king, are all made from hardware store nuts and bolts, by threading various shapes together and adding washers and fancy crown bolts, then securing with glue and painted. The board is cut from half-inch-thick plywood into a 16-inch square, then marked with two colors of vinyl, cloth or metallic tape cut into two-inch squares. A clear plastic or glass cover tops the board.

Are You Allergic To Your Garden?

Is that rash on your hands and arms caused by pesticides or did it result from handling flowers or foliage?

The California Department of Agriculture reports many calls from people concerned about a skin rash or an uncomfortable itch after working in thier gardens.

Such callers sometimes blame their discomfort on a pesticide, when many common plants, including flowers and ornamentals, can cause dermatitis.

According to Dr. Robert Adams, dermatologist at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic, and Jack Washkuhn, industrial hygienist with the San Mateo County Department of Public Health, authors of "Contact Dermatitis," even that beautiful bunch of chrysanthemums or that cluster of Shasta daisies may produce dermatitis under certain conditions.

Usually chrysanthemum dermatitis appears in the late fall and early winter during the blooming season, they say. Since the blooms emit a pollen, the eyelids may be the first area of the body affected. This may suggest an allergic sensitivity to chrysanthemums.

Philodendron is widely used for interior decorating and patio planting. Several species of this plant may cause dermatitis, especailly of the hands and arm. Exposure takes place when the person washes or plucks the leaves.

Dieffenbachia, or "deaf and dumb plant," is a houseplant closely related to philodendron. It may also cause a skin rash.

Oleander may cause dermatitis if crushed leaves come into contact with the skin of persons sensitized by previous exposures.

There are many varieties of primroses, any of which may cause dermatitis on some people. "Lily rash" is a frequent type of skin eruption, often involving the face, hands and forearms. Those affected are usually engaged in cutting, bunching or packing daffodil and narcissus flowers.

Chinese rice paper plant, a popular ornamental, may cause severe dermatitis. The toxic substance is present in a heavy yellow pollen produced by the plant in fall and winter months.

Less commonly, dermatitis may be produced by dichondra, magnolia, century plant, tea roses, poinsettias and Australian silk oak trees.

"Bulb fingers" may be produced by handling tulips or narcissus. It may be caused by specific allergens contained in the oleoresins of the bulbs, or by needle-like calcium oxalate monohydrate crystals in the bulbs which penetrate the skin when the bulbs are handled.

Early symptoms of bulb fingers includes tingling and tenderness of the fingertips. Redness soon develops and, with repeated exposrue, the fingertips may become dry, scaly and fissured.

A similar type of skin eruption may be produced by hyacinth bulbs or by handling onions and garlic. Even common garden vegetables like carrots, parsley, parsnips and celery may cause allergies in some individuals.

Not everyone is subject to dermatitis from these sources, but, says Dr. Adams and Waskhuhu, a skin rash is as likely to be caused by such plants as by a chemical carelessly handled.

How To Care For Your Living Christmas Tree Indoors

More Marinites than ever before will be using living Christmas trees this holiday season, aware that living trees enhance the quality of the environment.

Trees provide vital oxygen for humans, plus trap and filter dust and dirt particles from the air we breathe. They are nature's own air conditioners, providing shade and offering temperature control on hot summer days. They also reduce sound and city noises which fray one's nerves!

TO INSURE a long life for a living Christmas tree — and that's an important reason for selecting a growing tree in preference to a cut one — it should receive air, light, moisture and a comfortable temperature. Indoors, the requirements of a living Christmas tree are much like those of a foliage house plant.

The air and temperature conditions inside the average home during the winter are suitable for a living Christmas tree. It should be located in a well-lighted room — as opposed to being placed in a dark location, where drapes are drawn.

While it may be possible to enjoy the tree indoors for 10 to 14 days, the California Assn. of Nurserymen recommends one week's time — especially if the home is kept warm. Avoid placing the tree close to a fireplace or a heat outlet, as excess warmth can damage a live tree as easily as a cut tree.

IN CARING for the tree indoors, keep the roots of the tree moist. If the tree is growing in a container, this simplifies watering; if the root ball is contained in burlap, set this in a can or tub which will catch the drainage — and saturate the root ball with water. A heavy plastic covering will protect carpeting or floor.

It isn't necessary to keep the tree standing in water, but watch that the plant doesn't dry out between waterings.

Living Christmas trees can be decorated with ornaments and lights — miniatures are recommended. Many Californians decorate a container-grown tree and display it at the entrance or on the patio to add a festive holiday spirit to the outdoor living area or entryway.

AFTER DEC. 25, and after the decorations have been removed, take the tree outdoors and hose off its foliage with a fine mist spray. This will be helpful in the transition from indoors and will aid the tree in its efforts to provide beauty and enjoyment for its owners — as well as enhancing the quality of the environment.

Remember: all these benefits accrue, whether the living Christmas tree is planted in the landscape or grown in a container to serve as an accessory to decorate the garden.

Garden Page

THE ICELAND POPPY is just one of the annuals that can be planted in December in Marin to get the jump on spring. There are newer hybrids in intense shades and a wide color range — oranges, reds, yellows, pinks, whites. Give them good drainage. And grow them as borders, in beds, or in window boxes or other containers.

(California Assn. of Nurserymen photo)

Three More Plant Books By Kramer

San Rafael's Jack Kramer, who has established himself as this country's leading author of gardening books, has three new ones to bid for the green thumb trade this Christmas season.

They are:

"Garden Rooms and Greenhouses" (Harper and Row, $10), a guide to the design, construction, maintenance and stocking of these increasingly popular indoor gardens, written by a man whose own garden room is a showplace and which has been included among the many photographs in this book. There are also diagrams to aid in the planning and the building. And special material on plants best suited to greenhouses and garden rooms.

"Natural Dyes: Plants and Processes" (Scribner's, $9.95) is an illustrated manual on the plants that can be used for natural dyeing, how to collect them and how to use them. Blackberry shoots, fennel, yellow lichen, rhododendron leaves, red onion skins, eucalyptus bark and flowering plum leaves are typical ingredients from his dye recipes. The processes, Kramer promises, have been tested by himself and proven. It deals with a currently popular craft riding the do-it-for-yourself wave.

"Ferns and Palms for Interior Decoration" (Scribner's, $6.95) takes up two foliage plants that graced Victorian homes and are now making a strong comeback as freshening touches in indoor decor. Kramer takes up all the many species of ferns and palms, their specific growing requirements, and the special uses to which they are adapted. Again, there are lots of illustrations.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENER OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Perennials you can plant this month include Shasta Daisies, Day Lilies, Columbine, Phlox and Lily-of-the Valley. Mix in plenty of organic material with the soil. The plants will be strongly established when it is time to produce new growth in the spring.

✓ Supplies are dwindling, so hurry to plant Daffodils, Tulips, Hyacinths and other spring-blooming bulbs. Ranunculus can be planted from now into January for a succession of bloom in the spring garden.

✓ Remember that rains can't reach plants growing next to the house, under wide overhangs. Don't let the plants dry out.

✓ Cut back Dahlia stalks to within six inches of the ground and dig tubers after foliage turns yellow or is blackened by frost. Wash off dirt from tubers and place them in the sun to dry. Then, apply a recommended all-purpose garden dust. Store in a cool place until planting-time in spring.

✓ Heather, Azaleas and Camellias head the list of blooming shrubs available in nurseries this month.

✓ Don't overlook plants and garden tools in your Christmas shopping.

A Little Color And Pattern Can Give A Room That Lift

By CAROLYN MURRAY

Handyman's Pages

If there's one dog of a room in your house one you find hard to resolve from a decorating point of view — try winging your way to a solution through the use of color and pattern.

Sometimes a single strong theme such as a bold plaid or an over-scaled flower motif can give that hopeless area a sense of continuity.

The kitchen shown today is one hard-to-believe rehabilitation job.

The plaster on the ceilings and walls was a shambles. Existing cabinetry was painted an old ivory color that showed every greasy fingerprint. The floor was covered in a 1930 linoleum, and cooking equipment was adequate but not enhanced in any way by the decorative materials.

IN CAME designer Betty Willis, to salvage the situation.

She has a special talent with paint and color so she decided to create a warm kitchen, the kind we think of when we say family kitchen. She found reproductions of American Colonial furniture by Pennsylvania House and ordered the tables and chairs, plus a mobile service cart, in a warm red finish.

Then she went looking for a way to disguise the ugly ceilings and walls without having to replaster.

THE ANSWER was a vinyl-coated wall covering from C. W. Stockwell. It has a delightful strawberry motif, trailing over a simple trellis.

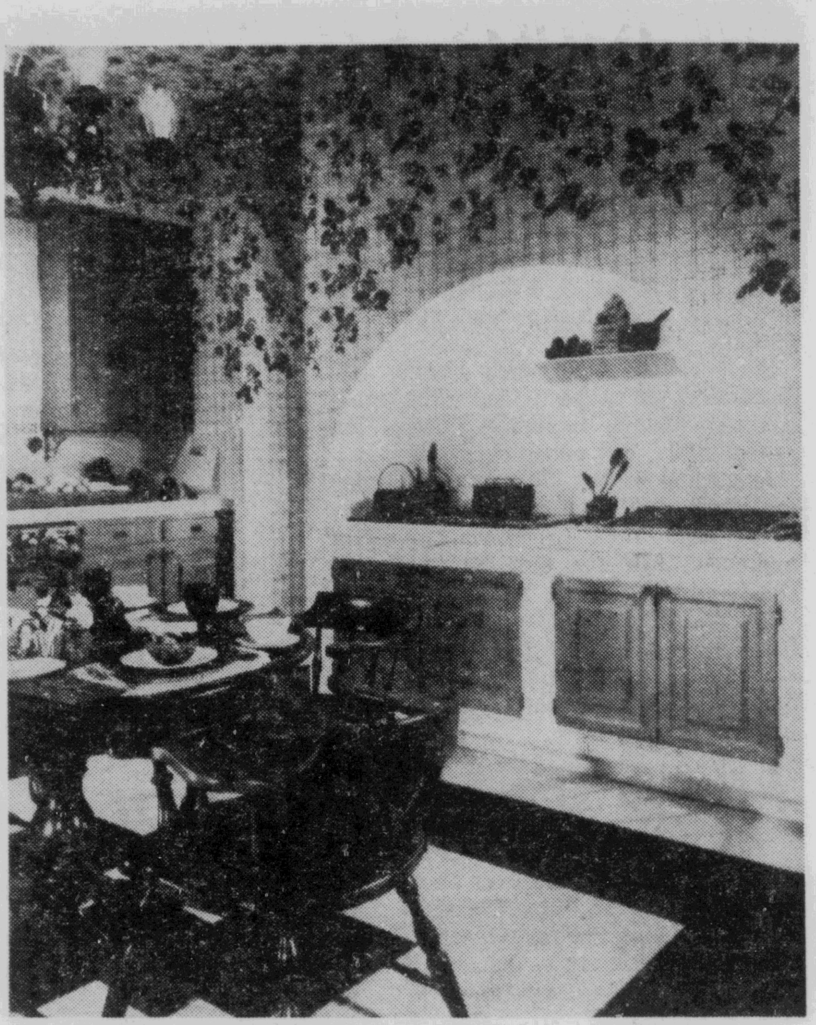
Instead of merely dabbling with small areas of paper, she covered the entire ceiling, then trailed the strawberry vine halfway down the wall area. The lower section is covered with the plain trellis pattern minus the strawberries.

Another quick piece of trickery was the plywood arch she asked the carpenter to make. This conceals all that dead space above the cook top and gives a little more character to the whole room. One small shelf holds decorative and useful items.

CABINETS throughout the kitchen wer painted a leaf green. On one door to a storage pantry she had the owner hand-paint little strawberries and vines, then add hand-lettered mottoes.

The result is warm and personal — a happy blend of family and professional touches.

The flooring is a simple geometric idea and uses wood tiles stained to two shades: off-white and green. These are KolorWood from Edward Fields. An effective perk-up for a drab workroom.



AN UGLY DUCKLING kitchen was transformed by designer Betty Willis into this warm and comfortable room, through the imaginative use of color and pattern.

'Making Do' In The Manner Of The American Pioneer

Arthur M. Hill, a now retired shop teacher, is a throwback to the old pioneer days — a self-sufficient man.

All his life he has made with his own hands, simply but sturdily, the things which he and his family needed. He anticipated today's do-it-yourself, natural living craze by several decades.

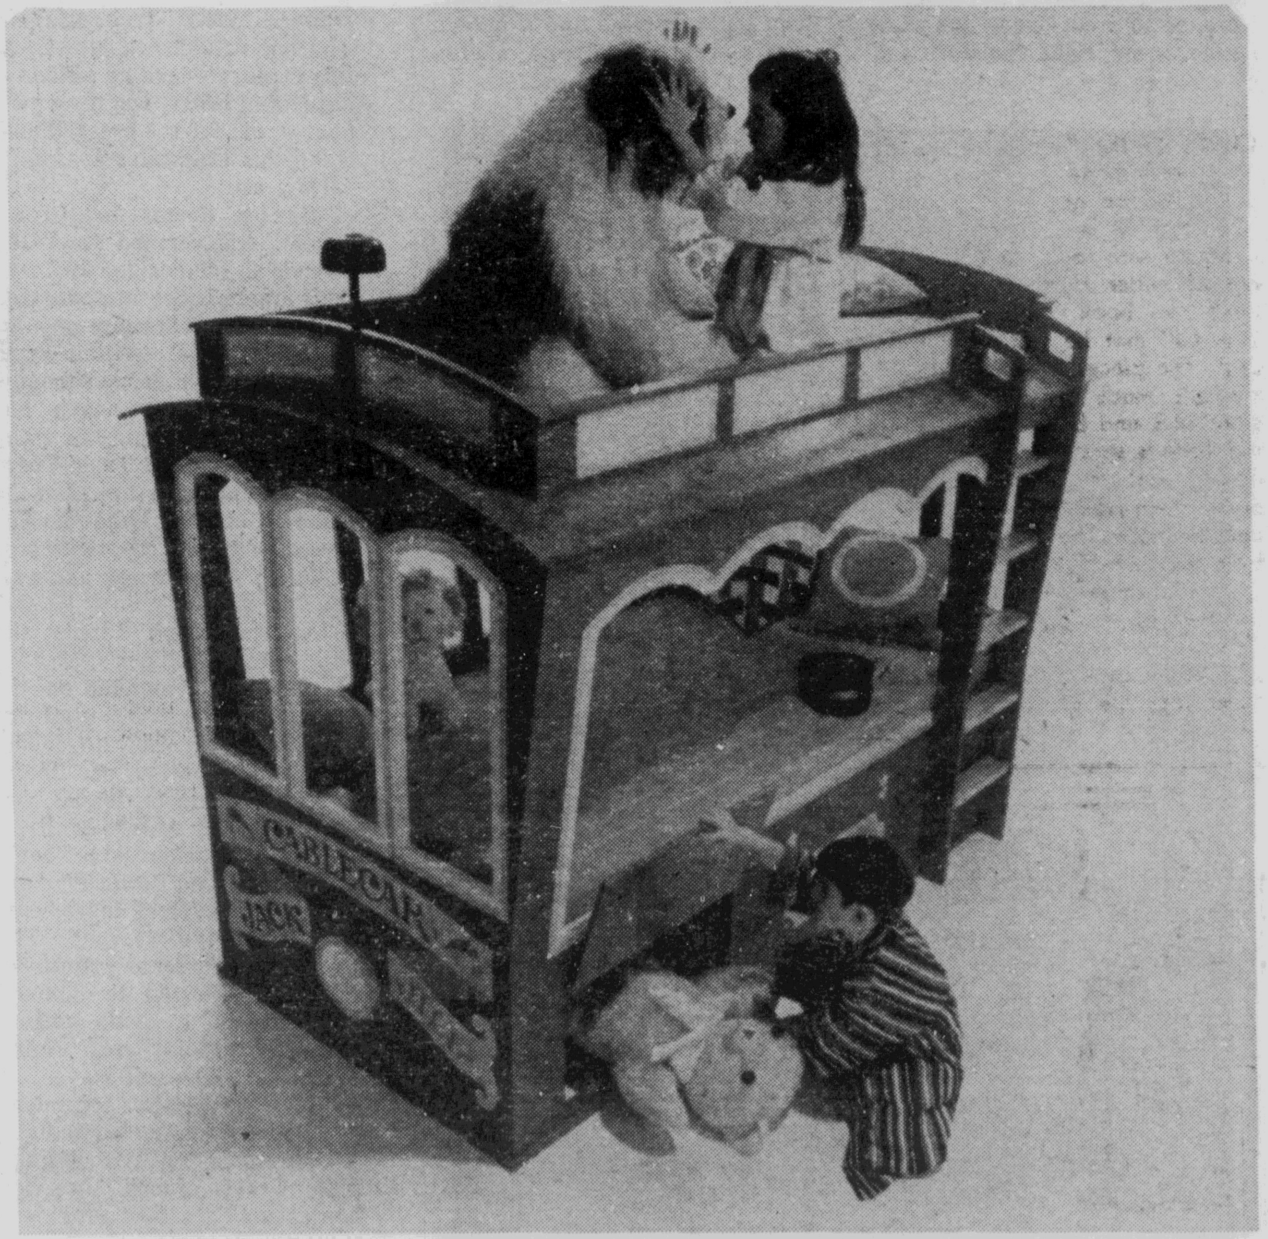
In "Making Do," $3.95 softcover, published jointly by Ballantine Books and San Francisco Book Co., Hill shares a good many of his designs and projects, with diagrams, drawings and detailed directions.

For the home, there is the framing itself, the fireplace, fireplace tools, simple furniture, homemade bread mixer (with bread recipe), hand-powered washing machine, potter's wheel, drinking glasses, etc. For the garden, there are a wheelbarrow, a rake, a push plow, a hotbed, a post hole digger, and some advice on gardening itself. For the yard, there's a child's swing and slide, a dollhouse, a cement mixer. For the shop, saws, vise, lathe, mallet, die holder, sanding disc, forge, hinges, directions on bending wrought iron, working sheet metal and much, much else.

Hill obviously is a man who, like our more isolated and self-reliant forefathers, stresses utility and function over appearance, although there is no reason why his projects cannot be finished for aesthetic effect. In fact, their rude simplicity has a certain beauty of its own.

One can learn from Arthur M. Hill not only how to build a bed or to fit a pipe, but also something of a philosophy of life that obviously is rich with dignity and satisfaction.

ALL ABOARD FOR SLUMBERLAND



SAN FRANCISCO'S world famous cable cars provide the model for this six-foot-high, seven-foot-long bunk bed, accommodating standard 39-by-75-inch mattresses. Built of durable fir plywood, both bunks are safely enclosed. There's a ladder for easy ascent to the top bunk. And large doors on the skirt of the bed conceal bedding and store toys.

Send $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 92409, and ask for Cable Car Bunk Bed Pattern 507. From those directions you can easily construct a lightweight bed that disassembles, for storing or moving, into eight individual pieces.

All Kinds Of Plywood Are Made From The Real Thing

By ANDY LANG

The varieties of plywood are almost endless, but none is a synthetic product, as some persons are inclined to think.

Webster puts it this way:

"A structural material consisting of wood glued or cemented together with the grains of adjacent layers arranged at right angles or at a wide angle."

The key word there is "wood." But it would take several pages of any dictionary to delve into the many types, classes and grades of plywood.

THE MOST common kind of plywood is Douglas fir, which is what you get when you walk into a lumber yard and buy a piece of four by eight plywood without giving any specifications. It is strong, has a wide range of applications and is the least expensive.

When you want plywood for a special purpose, tell the dealer what the purpose is. This is especially important if you intend to use the plywood outdoors where it will be continually exposed to the elements. In that case, you will need exterior plywood, which has completely waterproof glue between the veneers.

Interior plywood is highly moisture resistant but the bond is not 100 per cent waterproof. Also, the veneers used in the inner plys may be of lower grade than those in the exterior type. Bay Area: Ten per cent chance rain tonight; 40 per cent tomorrow; continued cold.

Record Winter Chill In Marin, S. Sonoma

THIS IS GOLF? — An intrepid foursome of golfers putted this morning on the second green of the San Geronimo National Golf Course, whitened with frost and ice from the plunging mercury. The cold snap is to continue at least through the weekend.

10-Degree Reading Recorded

By PAT ANGLE

Record cold gripped Marin and Southern Sonoma today, sheathing the two counties with an icy cover.

Below freezing temperatures caused a variety of problems, from freezing pipes to minor traffic accidents and even set off an automatic fire sprinkling system in the Lark Theater in Larkspur, causing minor damage to an office next door.

The federal weather service forecast more sub-freezing weather tonight and tomorrow night, with lows in the high 20s and highs in the low 40s.

Increasing clouds and showers were predicted for tomorrow and Monday, with snow in the hills and light north winds.

It was coldest in Point Reyes Station, where Mrs. John Wagner of Bambi Lane reported 10 degrees at 8 a.m. today.

Elsewhere, things weren't much better as Marinwood, Novato and Mount Tamalpais all registered lows of 15 degrees on what most observers said was the coldest night in memory.

Temperatures of between 16 and 19 degrees were reported in Petaluma, Woodacre, Terra Linda, Cotati and Nicasio.

San Rafael shivered with 23 degree temperatures early today and recorded 37 at noon today.

The plummeting temperatures, brought on by a prolonged cold front, froze water pipes throughout Marin, leaving hundreds of residents without water. The Marin Municipal Water District and many police departments reported scores of calls about frozen pipes from 3 a.m. onward.

As late as 11 a.m. today, there was still no water coming from the taps in parts of San Anselmo, Mill Valley, Tamalpais Valley, Novato, Kentfield, Bolinas and Santa Venetia.

J. Dietrich Stroeh, MMWD manager of engineering, said the freezing had not occured in major district lines, but rather in pipes between meters and the homes they served.

Stroeh suggested that persons who know where their water lines are located could aid the thawing by pouring heated water from toilet tanks on the ground over the pipes.

Stroeh also recommended that district customers leave faucets dripping in their homes tonight to avoid further freezing.

The California Highway Patrol said that ice-slick roads or ice-covered car windows caused minor auto crashes on Highway 101 near Alto, Panoramic Highway, Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of San Quentin, and in Mill Valley, Greenbrae and San Rafael. One minor injury was reported.

OFFICIALS WORRIED

Disaster Exercise Too Successful?

By JEFF GREER

Marin County disaster officials worried that "things went too well" in the county's first training exercise yesterday.

Alto Fire Chief Franklin J. Buscher warned, "Let's not everyone go home and say, 'Gee, that worked great'," and forget about the rough spots uncovered by the simulated earthquake that put officials through their paces.

Almost 60 county department heads and top aides, fire chiefs, utility executives and officials of special districts went through the routine they would follow in the first three hours after a major earthquake, if one should shatter Marin.

The imaginary quake, of magnitude 8.0 on the Richter scale, wreaked havoc that has been predicted in federal studies now underway of Bay Area seismic risks. Highway operpasses collapsed, a dam was damaged, a school collapsed and fires hypothetically killed some 60 persons, communications were hampered, and water and sewer mains were shattered, all according to a carefully worked out "scenario."

Following the exercise, the trainees voiced a wide variety of reactions in a self-critique session.

University of Southern California instructors who conducted the emergency test listened, offered advice, and made notes for the next training exercise, tentatively set for next spring. It probably will center on a different type of emergency, such as a simulated airliner crash in a residential area, according to Frank E. Kirby, county emergency services coordinator.

Yesterday's training session was the first all-out disaster rehearsal ever held in Marin. It was based on a new disaster plan prepared by Kirby, county department heads and local agencies. The plan has been under development since shortly after Californians were jolted into disaster awareness by the San Fernando Valley earthquake of 1970.

At that time, Marin County's disaster plan — unmodernized since 1960 — was labeled a disaster in itself — because of its obselenscence and inadequacy — by William R. Ward Jr., director of the Bay Area regional offices for the state Office of Emergency Services. Ward was an observer at yesterday's test in the Marin Civic Center.

"If you'd told me two years ago that this would be happening today, I wouldn't have believed you," Ward said after the critique. "I must say, I'm very pleased."

The participants were more critical of themselves. One fire official felt the test "wasn't realistic enough. . . I've worked in three major emergencies, and normally there's a sort of chaos" in the command center, he related.

Sidney Smith of the county schools office warned that not enough attention had been paid to traffic jams likely if a temblor damaged schools. "You know that every mother in the county — on foot or in a car —

Upset Win For Demo Party Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jean Westwood won an upset victory today in her battle to retain the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee on a razor thin vote of 105 to 100.

The National Committee turned down a motion to oust the Utah woman who was the personal choice of Sen. George S. McGovern to head the party but even with that victory, there still was a possibility that the Democrats would wind up with a new national chairman before the day was out.

The outcome was a defeat for Robert Strauss of Texas, former party treasurer, who is the candidate of old line regulars to recapture control from the "new politics" group backing Mrs. Westwood.

But Mrs. Westwood announced in advance that no matter how the ouster motion fared, she still would resign if the national committee could agree on a compromise candidate who was not symbolic of the warring Democratic factions. She said that would require Strauss to drop out of the race as well as herself.

The ouster of Mrs. Westwood was central to Strauss' plans to win the chairmanship.

The Texas lawyer, former party treasurer, was regarded as the leading candidate in a field of four or five hopefuls. And a successful effort to fire Mrs. Westwood, McGovern's personal choice for national chairman, was seen as the last

Death Count In Jet Crash: 45

CHICAGO (UPI) — Firemen using steel saws today freed the bodies of two more persons from the snarled wreckage of homes and of a United Air Lines Boeing 737 jetliner that crashed into a row of houses while approaching Midway Airport yesterday. (See picture, page 2.)

At least 45 persons were known dead as a result of the crash. Eighteen persons were injured.

The plane, en route from Washington to Omaha, Neb., with a stop in Chicago, carried 61 persons.

Witnesses said the plane came in low over a residential district in the approach path of Midway Airport, its tail scraping power lines, then slammed into a residential area about one and one-half miles southeast of the airport.

Some witnesses speculated that the pilot, once the crash was imminent, might have let the plane down in the cluster of bungalow-type houses to avoid slamming into a school about a block away. School was in session at the Hurley Elementary School, when the crash occurred about one block from the school.

Forty-three bodies were recovered from the wreckage yes-

Another Round Of Talks On Viet Peace

GIF-SUR-YVETTE, France (UPI) — U.S. presidential peace envoy Dr. Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiators met again today in another attempt to bring the Vietnam War to an end.

The meeting here in a villa owned by the Communist party between Kissinger and Hanoi special counsellor Le Duc Tho got under way at 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EST).

Full teams from both sides drove 15 miles south of Paris to the villa that was bequeathed to the French Communist party by a long-dead Communist artist.

Xuan Thuy, Tho's aide, smiled and raised both arms in the air in salute to onlookers as the Vietnamese arrived shortly after the Americans. After hand-shakes all round, the two sides went into the house to start the 20th hour of bargaining.

Kissinger and Tho have gone through 19 hours of negotiations thus far this week.

At the close of yesterday's four and one-half-hour session, Kissinger escorted Tho to his car and gave him a long and cordial handshake. But the news blackout held fast and neither side would make any comment on the progress of the talks.

Kissinger went sight-seeing early today and strolled bareheaded in the bright sunshine from the U.S. embassy residence to a famed Paris art gallery, the Jeu de Paume.

In the meantime, French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said the world's press was too pessimistic about the prospect of an early peace in it Vietnam.

Truman Is Reported As Improved

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The aged and ailing heart of Harry S Truman, sapped by a five-day fight against infection, gained slight strength today. The 88-year-old former president was reported improved but still critically ill.

As the tough little man fought back, signs that showed the same pep that Truman did when he led the nation were placed in shop windows.

"Give 'em hell, Harry. Let's get well," they read.

A high-protein liquid, fed Truman every four hours through a nasal tube, helped him gain strength, physicians said. His heart condition had been reported as "extremely precarious" the day before, a condition disputed by Truman's daughter.

"The former president's cardiac situation is slightly improved as indicated by the lowering of his pulse rate," said Truman's physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, at a medical briefing Saturday. "His pulse is 96 and regular. He is much calmer."

Truman's pulse rate had jumped to 124 last night and had been reported at 120 when he came out of an "ultracritical" period Wednesday, the day after he was hospitalized with a lung infection.

"He is improved today but remains critical," Graham said in a medical report read by hospital spokesman John Dreves. "His temperature is 100 degrees. Kidney function is adequate. He continues to tolerate his tube feeding well."

Graham said Truman showed response to nasal feeding of the wheat-based liquid.

A Flap Arises Over Span Board Election

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

San Francisco attorney Stephan C. Leonoudakis was elected president yesterday of the Golden Gate Bridge District, despite an ill-fated attempt by opponents to reconsider the vote at the board's next meeting.

Leonoudakis got nine votes and Daniel F. Del Carlo, a San Francisco labor leader, got eight. San Francisco Supervisor Robert E. Gonzales, who initialed his ballot for Del Carlo in the secret voting, switched his vote to Leonoudakis, however, in order to force reconsideration of the outcome at the Dec. 21 meeting. Only a voter on the majority side can move to reconsider an issue.

Robert's Rules of Order was consulted by district officials, but no reference to such a reconsideration could be found in the hurried check, so the board assumed that the motion by Gonzales passed automatically.

The Independent-Journal, however, later learned that Robert's Rules explicitly prohibits such a reconsideration, thus Leonoudakis was in fact elected. He will have to wait until the board's next meeting, however, to make it official.

According to Robert's Rules, "an election to an office becomes final immediately if the candidate is present and does not decline. . . After an election has become final as stated in this paragraph, it is too late to reconsider the vote on the election."

As for objections by some directors that election of the president should be by a majority of the 18-member board, the vote switch by Gonzales made this point moot. Only director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco was absent.

The unprecedented election hassle came after a special committee of five directors nominated Leonoudakis for president. His nomination was contrary to the board's strict tradition of elevating the previous year's first vice president to the presidency.

The first vice president had been Del Carlo, and it also was Gonzales who immediately nominated him as well for president. Gonzales told newsmen that the usual tradition should be followed "otherwise it will become a political football."

A member of the nominating committee told newsmen that Leonoudakis was recommended because Del Carlo already has served once as board president and because Leonoudakis has been passed over three times for the presidency in past years.

A group of directors never has forgiven Leonoudakis for his successful campaign five

SEARCH AMONG THE WRECKAGE

The severed nose section of a United Air Lines jet, which crashed into a residential area near Midway Airport in Chicago yesterday afternoon, lies in the wreckage of one of the demolished homes as the grim search for bodies continues. At least 43 bodies have been recovered. The Boeing 737 jet was carrying 61 persons. See story, page 1. (UPI Telephoto)

B52s Hit Targets In The DMZ

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers staged heavy raids against targets in the so-called Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) today in an attempt to halt a suspected buildup of North Vietnamese troops and supplies, military sources said. In the ground war, fighting increased to its fiercest pitch in a month.

In response to the bombing, Radio Hanoi broadcast identical statements by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong saying U.S. air raids had "dimmed the prospects for peace in Vietnam."

The U.S. command said the giant Stratoforts flew about 100 sorties in North and South Vietnam. Three quarters of them were concentrated along Vietnam's wasp waist within an 80-mile band divided by the 17th parallel buffer zone separating the north and south.

The U.S. Command said 17 waves of B52s each dumped at least 90 tons of explosives in and along the edges of the DMZ. While the air war over the DMZ was stepped up, the South Vietnamese command reported 83 Communist-initiated attacks during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today, the same number as the previous day, and the highest since Nov. 12 when 87 were recorded.

UPI correspondent Kenneth F. Englade reported that 1,208 artillery and mortar shells hit airborne and marine positions during daylight hours today in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

More than 1,000 shells a day have been plowing into South Vietnamese positions nearly every day since cease-fire negotiations made a breakthrough six weeks ago.

Since then, both sides have been trying to seize control of as much land and as many people as possible in the event of a stand'still cease-fire.

The increased raids by the Guam and Thailand-based Strategic Air Command planes began Wednesday, after U.S. officers spotted large concentrations of troops and supplies in the buffer strip area.

The officers thought that the supplies were destined for South Vietnam and ordered the heavy raids, military sources said.

In all, 57 waves of B52s and scores of strikes by smaller, conventional jet fighter-bombers have hit the DMZ area since the new North Vietnamese buildup was spotted, spokesmen said.

Playboy Shelled Out On Prop. 18

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State records show Playboy Magazine, the trailblazer of the nude centerfold, kicked in $125,000 to the successful campaign to defeat the antiobscenity initiative on the November ballot.

Playboy's contribution to the effort against Prop. 18 was included in hundreds of campaign spending reports on file yesterday with Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Final post-election campaign reports on ballot measures indicated that the biggest spender was the California State Employes Association at $1.7 million for its salary initiative.

The deadline for submitting financial statements on the propositions was Thursday, but many were still being processed by Brown's office or believed en route in the mail.

The anti-obscenity initiative, sponsored by Republican Sen. John Harmer of Glendale, proposed enacting strict new controls to crackdown on what supporters said was an avalanche of obscenity in California.

Opponents charged that if enacted the controversial measure would establish "censorship" and would ban great works of art, movies and magazines such as Playboy.

The Committee for Yes on Prop. 18 reported spending $162,000 in its campaign. The biggest single contributor was P. J. Frawley Jr., the Los Angeles razor mogul.

The Citizens Against Prop. 18, bankrolled by movie theaters, film makers and publishers, reported spending $746,852 on its campaign. Playboy Magazine and Playboy enterprises funneled in $125,000.

The state employed-sponsored initiative proposed eliminating a governor's power to blue pencil veto pay raises from the state budget. The CSEA members voted themselves a dues assessment to finance the campaign. The measure was defeated.

Opponents of the state employe salary initiative, organized under the banner of the "Committee to Stop the Blank Check Initiative," reported spending $20,000 and raising $30,941.

Several Reagan administration officials each contributed $25 or slightly more to the campaign, including Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian, Deputy Finance Director Kenneth Hall as well as governor's office staff assistants William Evans, Don Livingston and James Jenkins.

The "Fair Labor Practices Committee," proponents of a measure to enact a California farm labor relations initiative, reported spending $721,355 and collecting $937,408.

Opponents led by Cesar Chavez and the California Federation of Labor, reported spending in excess of $80,000. Chavez' United Farm Workers Union said it spent $37,781 alone.

Sponsors of the defeated initiative to legalize the personal use of marijuana said they spent $164,882 and collected $182,301 in contributions. They said they plan to try again.

Supporters of Prop. 14, the Watson property tax limitation initiative, spent $1.1 million in their unsuccessful campaign while opponents calling themselves "Citizens Against Higher Taxes" reported spending $739,200.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

A Twin Attack

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI condemned abortion anew today as a crime against God and humanity and he attacked the women's liberation movement for what he said are its "certain distortions" on the subject.

The Pope said abortion is "repugnant not only to Catholic morality but even to universal human ethics."

The pontiff used a meeting with a group of Italian Catholic jurists to get across his point of view in a particularly hard-hitting speech.

Merger Meeting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A meeting will be held in Washington, D.C., Dec. 19 on the possible merger of the Teamsters Union and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU, said he and his top aides would meet with Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons.

The ILWU will "get a final 'yes' or 'no' on the question of merger," Bridges said in a letter to ILWU locals and their leaders.

Drugs In Flames

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — Authorities burned more than 27 metric tons of marijuana, 13 pounds of heroin and nearly 35 pounds of cocaine Friday.

Assistant attorney general David Franco Rodriguez, the top man in Mexico's antidrug force, presided over the bonfire.

The drugs were confiscated during recent months by police agencies.

POW Bracelet Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill taxing the sale of Vietnam prisoner-of-war bracelets the same as girl scout cookies has been signed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

The measure signed yesterday is aimed at preventing the 5 per cent sale tax from being imposed on the total price of the bracelets.

Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, introduced the bill after the state Board of Equalization questioned the position of POW groups that sales of the bracelets were exempt from the tax.

White House Staffers To No. 2 Jobs

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon today selected two members of his White House staff, John C. Whitaker and Ekil (Bud) Kroth Jr., to take over the No. 2 jobs in the Interior and Transportation departments.

Both Whitaker and Kroth served on the staff of the Domestic Council headed by John Erlichman. Whitaker, who has a doctor's degree in geology, also was secretary to the Cabinet.

Whitaker, 45, succeeds William T. Pecora, who died last July, as undersecretary of interior. Kroth, 33, replaces James M. Baggs as undersecretary of transportation. Baggs will return to private life.

White House Press Secretary Ronald l. Ziegler, who announced the appointments, noted that both men were young and predicted "you will see an infusion of young people — young men and young women —moving into positions of responsibility."

Ziegler said no decision has been made whether Whitaker and Kroth will be replaced at the White House because "the structure of the Domestic Council staff ... has not been set yet" for Nixon's second term.

Ziegler also said Carl Kamp Jr., will become acting chairman of the Federal Home Bank Board until a permanent chairman is designated to succeed Preston Martin, who resigned earlier this month. Kamp had been a member of the board since May 1969.

Ziegler said Nixon continued to work at his Camp David office today, studying cables from his national security affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, and drafting additional instructions for Kissinger at the Paris peace talks.

Nixon's latest appointments followed a complete overhaul of the Justice Department, although Richard G. Kleindienst will remain as attorney general.

Crash Kills Three

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force C130 cargo plane with eight persons aboard crashed today while landing at the Agana Naval Air Station. A military spokesman said three persons were killed.

Union Leader Deaths Termed 'Professional'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Nevada officials are helping Sacramento officers investigate the gunshot deaths of two union leaders which are now being called "a professional killing."

The chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board, Phil Hannifin, said yesterday, "We are sharing and comparing information."

A spokesman for the Sacramento County sheriff's office, William Miller, said "quite a few people" in Nevada would be interviewed as a matter of routine. He said "we're contacting everyone everyplace" who has associated with the victims.

Killed were Roger Ekar, 34, international representative of the Stationary Engineers Union, and John Duncan, 31, business agent of Local 39. They were found shot to death in the local's headquarters here Wednesday morning.

Both had been reported active in trying to organize workers in Reno, Las Vegas and the north shore of Lake Tahoe.

Tom Kenny, secretary of the Sacramento Central Labor Council, said, "It's my personal opinion and the general opinion of us in the local labor movement that this was a result of their attempts to organize labor in Nevada. It's traditionally a tough nut for us to crack over there."

Miller said the men "were obviously set up" for the shooting. "I was a professional killing, the kind we don't see around here but very rarely," he said.

Investigators said the two had an appointment in the office Tuesday evening with someone who apparently was a "fictitious person." The meeting was arranged at the request of a telephone caller who said he wished to discuss the representation of employes of a Sacramento area hospital.

But the hospital told investigators no one by that name had ever worked there.

The Nevada efforts were both successful and unsuccessful. A contract was signed with Howard Hughes' Harold Club in Reno, where the local's steward, Ken Sharpnack, said he knew of no problems. He said Duncan had visited him only two days before being found dead.

$30,000 Suit Filed Over Column Picture

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — A Tiburon male model and restaurateur has filed a $30,000 lawsuit against the Pacific Sun Publishing Co. for printing his photograph with a sexual advice column.

Francis H. B. Ingall filed suit in Sonoma County Superior Court through his attorney, James Murray of Tiburon.

Ingall, who works as a male model and actor and also operates Butler's Pantry in Tiburon, asked $5,000 for damages to his career; $10,000 in damages for "severe emotional shock and mental anguish" and $15,000 in punitive damages.

The suit claims the weekly Pacific Sun of July 27 carried Ingall's picture in connection with a sexual advice column known as "Dr. Diddle."

The suit claimed the article "subjected him to scorn, ridicule, derision, humiliation and embarrassment, and has cast him in a false and defamatory light in the eyes of the public at large and has greatly injured and defamed his character, reputation and professional standing."

Ingall described himself as an actor and theatrical performer "primarily engaged in posing for commercial advertising for hire and his photographic likeness has appeared in many publications and television commercials."

Named in the suit were Stephen McNamara, editor and publisher; Donald Stanley, managing editor, and Roberta Branning, advertising manager.

The complaint was filed in Sonoma County because Ingall said he wished to avoid further publicity in Marin County.

San Mateo Escapee Captured

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The seventh of nine prisoners who escaped March 22 from the San Mateo County Jail has been arrested in Florida.

A spokesman for Sheriff Earl Whitmore said Friday the John S. Szymkiewicz, 28, was in the Dade County Jail at Miami, Fla., on robbery and assault charges following a holdup of a pharmacy at Hialeah, Fla.

Szymkiewicz was arrested Nov. 30 under the name of John A. Morgan. His true identify was discovered Friday through a fingerprint check.

Still at large are Joseph B. Mora and William Marchilette. The escapers had keys to their cells and used a hacksaw to cut out a door lock.

Whitmore vowed not to cut his hair until all nine of the prisoners had been captured. However, when his locks began hovering near his shoulders several months later, he allowed them to be trimmed at a law enforcement dinner in Hillsborough.

Search Is Abandoned For Bear

READDING, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. Customs agents have abandoned the search for the innocent victim of a $625,000 hashish smuggling plot—a shaggy, black, Himalayan bear missing in the snow covered northern California mountains.

Two Himalayan bears were shipped to the United States from Nepal in cages laden with hashish concealed in false panels, authorities said.

One bear was shot by a hunter last Sunday after its cage was found. The cage that contained the second bear was found by agents Wednesday with an estimated 60 pounds of hashish stashed inside.

Authorities estimated the value of the illicit drugs at $625,000. Four men have been arrested and others are being sought in the smuggling case which agents began pursuing when the two cages arrived at San Francisco International Airport last month.

A wildlife specialist at the University of California at Davis said Himalayan bears are nocturnal and do not hibernate. He said the animals are "less aggressive and more vegetarian" than the American black bear.

Sonoma County Step Closer To Closing Ranch

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sonoma County authorities were a step closer today in their attempt to close a 315-acre commune were scores of young persons live in alleged unsanitary conditions.

The California Court of Appeal Friday unheld a 1969 Sonoma County effort to end communal life at the Wheeler Ranch near Occidental.

The Sonoma County Superior Court issued an order to tear down dilapidated ranch buildings, saying the conditions on the ranch "endangered public health and safety."

Rânchowner William Wheeler and about 75 followers currently live on the ranch.

Register Omits Nixon In-Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — Society checked through the newly published 1973 Social Register today and found the mysterious omission of a White House inlaw.

Missing from page 181 of the 87th New York edition of Society's who's who was Howard Ellis Cox Jr. of Westwood, Mass., brother-in-law of Tricia Nixon Cox, and his wife, the former Julia Dempsey of Cleveland. Still listed were Cox's parents, his brother Edward with his wife Tricia, and sister Mary Ann.

The Register never explains or comments on omissions.

Apollo 17 Crew Sleeps Through Voice Call, Kansas Fight Song

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Apollo 17's astronauts slept through voice calls, the Kansas fight song and even a wailing warning horn before finally being awakened more than an hour late today on the last leg of their wrapup flight to the moon.

Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt stirred at last at 10:14 a.m. EST and mission commander Cernan said, "We're asleep."

"That's the understatement of the year," ground communicator Gordon Fullerton replied.

"That was some party last night," Cernan quipped. "It was a humdinger."

While the astronauts were sleeping, Apollo 17 started accelerating toward the moon. Their landing craft was reported in great shape for Monday's descent into a mountain valley believed blanketed with ashes from an ancient volcano.

The astronauts were 67,000 miles from the moon when they awakened. They will brake into lunar orbit tomorrow evening.

Even though the pilots started the day behind schedule, they made up time quickly. Cernan and Schmitt returned to their landing craft about 12:30 p.m. for a second systems check.

"It's just like a refrigerator," Schmitt said from the lander cabin.

Controllers told the astronauts earlier that time was not critical today and there was no need to hurry.

"Our biggest problem this morning is keeping Ron from going back to sleep," Cernan said.

Evans was supposed to have had earphones on while he slept during the night and a Mission Control spokesman said it appeared that either he had the volume turned down or the earphone had slipped off.

The first wakeup call was sent at 9:09 a.m. when Mission Control broadcast the opening strains of the University of Kansas' Jayhawks football fight song. It was repeated twice, along with voice calls and finally the warning horn. Despite all that, the pilots slept until a repeat of the song finally woke up the crew.

Lodge Plan For Club Is Protested

Black Point Improvement Club members last night voted 14-7 to oppose a permit for the Moose Lodge to use the Atherton Swim Club building for the fraternal organization's wining and dining.

The issue split Black Point residents, with L. Charles Smith of 6 June Lane and his neighbors objecting to the club plans, and Stanley Weiss of 330 School Road, a member of the Moose, stoutly defending the use permit.

The lodge seeks to move from its longtime quarters in the former Hilltop restaurant in Novato to the clubhouse east of Atherton Avenue. A use permit granted by the county zoning administrator has been held up by appeal from neighbors, and is due a planning commission hearing Dec. 18.

The Black Point Improvement Club also:

FEDERATION — Nominated Albert Rivisplata for president of the Noarth Marin Federation of homeowner associations.

NOVATO — After a member urged "leave it to the Novatans," declined to nominate any Black Point resident to an advisory committee to revise the downtown Novato plan, as requested by city officials.

GENERAL PLAN — Voted unanimously to tell Novato that Black Point residents want to draft their own general plan, rather than be included in the general plan now being prepared by Novato officials.

DONATION — Added $64 to the $100 the club donated last month to the committee working on a Black Point plan.

Plea Made In Attack Case

A 27-year-old Marin City man, charged with participating in the kidnap and gang rape of a Sausalito woman, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

A preliminary hearing for David Barrow was set for Dec. 19.

Barrow was arrested Tuesday by sheriff's deputies in Marin City after the 19-year-old woman was given a ride from Sausalito to Marin City, then raped at least 14 times by six or more men during three early morning hours.

She was repeatedly beaten and threatened when she resisted, according to Sheriff's Lt. Richard Gaddini.

He said four other men are being sought.

FOR HER 100TH birthday tomorrow, Mrs. Bertha L. Hatch of Mill Valley received a congratulatory letter from President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, triggering her memories of presidents and White House receptions from James A. Garfield to Theodore Roosevelt.

Memories Span A Continent Presidents, The White House

By BETTY FROST

The memories of Mrs. Bertha Loucks Hatch of Mill Valley span an entire century and a continent.

Bertha Loucks was born Dec. 10, 1872 in Savona, N.Y. and will be 100 years old tomorrow. Her birthday was to be celebrated at a reception today at the Mill Valley Community Church.

Her daughter, Mrs. James Bertenshaw of Mill Valley, with whom she lives, and her son, Osborn F. Hatch of Santa Monica, are co-hosting the party for more than 100 relatives and friends.

A 10-year Mill Valley resident, the alert Mrs. Hatch is receiving scores of letters and cards of congratulation. One, a message on White House stationery expressing good wishes from President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon and signed by the President, triggered a flow of memories about the other presidents Mrs. Hatch has met.

The Loucks family moved to Aurora, Ill., from Savona when Bertha was 3 years old. When she was 8, a carriage parade passed along the main street of the town, and as the child stood outside the gate in front of her house a gentleman stood up in the front carriage and said, "Hello, little girl." It was James A. Garfield, then campaigning for the presidency. He was elected in 1881.

Three years later, her father, who was a Civil War veteran, was appointed to a government position in the pension office. The family moved to Washington, D.C., and many of Bertha's memories revolve around the White House.

She and her brother and a sister attended an Easter Monday egg rolling on the White House lawn. She recalls that the ground was littered with broken colored eggshells and bits of egg, and "I couldn't look at a boiled egg for two weeks."

She also attended presidential receptions for Benjamin Harrison, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Mrs. Cleveland made a lasting impression.

"She was the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life," Mrs. Hatch said. "She was wearing a white brocade silk dress with roses of all shades of pink appliqued on it."

Frances Folsom was 22 when she and Cleveland, then 49, were married in 1886.

At the age of 18, Mrs. Hatch accompanied her aunt to the White House where they had been invited to have tea with Mrs. McKinley. The President's wife, who was an invalid confined to a wheelchair, received the ladies in an uptairs sitting room overlooking the south lawn. Afterward they were given a tour of the White House by an usher.

Bertha was married to Frederick W. Hatch in 1898 in Washington, D.C. Her husband was a graduate of Colgate University and the Baptist Theological Seminary in Rochester, N. Y.

"We became engaged when he was a sophomore at Colgate. We waited five years to marry until my husband had finished his education," Mrs. Hatch said.

Her husband's first pastorate was in a small town on the Hudson in New York, and from there they went to Au Clair, Wis., Kalamazoo, Mich., and Lansing before they moved to California.

Reverend Hatch had a church in Bakersfield for five years, then went to Ocean Park Church near Santa Monica. In 1924 he founded the Trinity Baptist Church in Santa Monica and saw it grow to a membership of 500. He remained there until he retired. He died at age 80 in 1952. The Hatches celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1948.

Each year in March, Mrs. Hatch personally presents the Frederick Hatch award given by church members to the year's outstanding Santa Monica citizen, and she is looking forward to making the presentation next March.

Of her full century of living Bertha Hatch said, "I have had a wonderful life. I had a good home when I was a child, and I had the most wonderful husband."

If there is any hint for longevity she suggests that it might be "that I never drank coffee." Her daughter added, "In the family we say that Mother never drinks anything but cold water."

Mrs. Hatch is grateful for her good health. "I've never had a broken bone and I've had only one cold in 20 years."

Her one regret is that her eyesight is failing.

"I would love to go traveling if I could see," the sprightly lady said, "but I just can't see the colors anymore."

Beside her daughter and son, Mrs. Hatch has five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, all of whom will be in Mill Valley for the family celebration.

San Domenico Upper School's annual Christmas tableaux will be presented Wednesday and Thursday at 8 p.m. in the alumnae hall of the school in San Anselmo.

The tableaux, directed by John Brebner, will have musical background by the San Domenico Singers, directed by Dr. John Kelly.

The program of living pictures is inspired by the 15th Century frescoes of Fra Angelico with mimes, chants and carols.

Brooke Jackson of Belvedere will portray the Blessed Mother. She has been selected by her senior classmates on the basis of possessing the qualities of gentleness, grace and dignity. The role of Joseph will be played by Johanna Edwards of Bolinas.

Dumas Keeps Skiwear Practical

His Newest Is Nonskid Snow Suit

By ELEANOR GUREWITSCH
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHATEL ST. DENIS, Switzerland — A ski-clothing manufacturer with headquarters here in the heart of ski country pays particular attention to practical details of the sport.

Thiy season, for example, while other skiwear makers are still giving primary attention to the cut, style, and line of their garments, Charles Dumas is emphasizing something quite different. He is promoting antigliss rutschfest, or antiskid ski clothes.

The ultrasmooth and shiny fabrics which have been used extensively for ski clothes, look great, and the garments feel great so long as the skier is standing up. But when he spills, the smooth, shiny fabrics have one distinct drawback: They slide so well they could double as toboggans.

For practical reasons as well as pretty ones, Charles Dumas ski outfits are dominating the scene here this season. In addition to the antiskid feature, they have a number of other thoughtful details.

Designed to keep out snow and wind, the suits are lined with a slippery, shiny, windproof and waterproof fabric — inside where it will do the most good and won't toboggan slide anyone down the slope.

To keep snow out at the waist there are other tricks. The suits with very short jackets come atop high-cut overall pants; some of the suits feature the short, lumber-jacket look but are cut in a single piece for the same no-snow-at-the-waist effect.

These outfits are designed for the active skier but with their wide, comfortable pants they are versatile enough to wear for any cold-weather sport.

Cross-country skiing is gaining in popularity here, and the ski-clothes designers are jumping on the bandwagon. This particular kind of skiing appears to call for knickers.

This season Bogner, always a pace-setter, offers jackets and knickers in matching fabrics — plain, checked, or prints —for the girls who have decided to skip the ski-lift lines and the ski-slope crowds for the quiet, snowy places accessible only to the cross-country skiers.

In New York holiday-resort clothes echo the retreating autumn and herald the approaching spring.

One of the most attractive collections on the market this season is Victor Joris's. Lush peach or aqua silk linen suits in safari styles combine extravagance of color and fabric with economy of design.

His evening separates are in a similar vein, with tailored, sporty styles glamorized for dressy occasions. Joris describes the mood this year as "more relaxed and less constricted," in keeping with an informal vacation atmosphere.

Other highlights of Joris's line are halter dresses and palazzo pants, which are the rage everywhere this year. Their full cut offers the advantage of camouflage to the stouter woman.

Although the prints are sometimes too flamboyant, basically they represent a pleasant compromise between a skirt and trousers.

Joris also is renowned for his caftans. "They originated in the Arabian countries," he explained, "because they allow the air to circulate during the heat of the day and provide warmth during the chilly evenings."

HOLIDAY SPORTSWEAR — Skidproof fabric, to keep the tumbling skier from sliding down the slope is the latest feature of ski clothing maker Charles Dumas of Chatel St. Denis, Switzerland, where Dumas ski fashions like the one at left are dominating the scene this season. In France, the latest fashion for the skier is an overall outfit, right, designed by Pindisports.

CONTRASTING RESORT wear is this palazzo pantsuit in a Japanese print. It was designed by Victor Joris of New York for the winter and spring resort season.

Disillusioned Parent's Advice Is Not The Best In All Cases

DEAR RAP:

In reply to the "Disillusioned Parent," who said her teen-age daughter kept her baby, but the grandmother did all the work: She shouldn't warn all parents to insist their unwed daughters give their babies up for adoption, get abortions, and such. It depends on the girl — and maybe as you say — on how much the parents have spoiled her.

I kept my son when I became an unwed mother at age 15, and I accepted my responsibilities as a mother. My parents helped. They were wonderful. But they didn't take over.

D.P. said girls were following a trend or "fad" in keeping their babies. No! I went by what I felt was best for my son and myself. Maybe some girls keep their babies for brownie points but I did so out of love. This woman talks about putting an unwed mother "on probation." Many married mothers treat their children badly. Who is going to "probate" them? — UNWED TEENAGE MOTHER

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

We, too, became early grandparents, but we don't use the word "illegitimate." Our daughter was an unwed mother at 15. She wanted to keep the baby out of love but it was a family decision and we made it happily. We feel the love and joy our grandson has brought into our homes and lives has more than made up for any suffering we may have had.

Our "immature" daughter finished two years of high school and graduated. She helped do much of the housework and assumed most of the responsibility and care of the baby. We all realized there would be work, tears and sleepless nights.

Our daughter is now happily married and our grandson has a proud daddy. Her pregnancy and the way she faced the future brought the family closer together. Our way might not work for many families, but we have never regretted the decision. — PROUD GRANDPARENTS

RAP:

You both championed the right of an unmarried pregnant teenager to finish high school with her class, if she wishes. I agree: dropping out of school — perhaps never going back — is disastrous, but there are alternate ways of finishing an education.

In Holyoke, Mass., a YWCA-sponsored project called CAPP (Comprehensive Adolescent Parent Program) is filling a need. Under it, pregnant girls may continue their education, but they meet daily at the YWCA rather than school. CAPP works in conjunction with the department of education, which strongly supports the program. A licensed teacher is provided, and the girls also meet with a nurse who instructs them in pre-natal health, labor, delivery and post-partum care. Practical home economics and baby care are also part of the program. And of course there is counseling for girls and their families. . . and the unwed father too, if needed. Should financial aid be indicated, the girls are directed to "help" agencies.

Financing? The project coordinator's salary is provided by the Emergency Employment Act and the teacher receives her pay from Title 1 Funds for Special Education. The Junior League of Holyoke pays the salaries of the counselor and nurse, and League volunteers serve as tutors, conduct cooking and health classes, provide transportation, and do a lot of listening on a one-to-one basis. No moralizing here — just encouragement.

I'm sure other cities have similar programs, and perhaps this letter may inspire still other groups along these lines. Although the stigma of illegitimacy is disappearing, pregnant teenagers still need the reinforcement of talking and working with those in similar circumstances in a non-condemning atmosphere. — E.L.S.

DEAR E.:

Your letter certainly will be an encouragement to other groups. Thanks for writing, and congratulations to CAPP! — HELEN AND SUE

Try A New Approach To Replacing Old Buttonholes

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I have always selected Chesterfield coats for my children so that the boys and girls could wear them interchangeably. Now I find that the buttonholes are all pulling out and yet there is a lot of wear left in the coats. Can you suggest a way of mending these?

MRS. S.M.

DEAR MRS. S.M.,

I would forget trying to mend the buttonholes. Instead, try to camouflage the disaster. This year, nothing is newer than the leather toggle closings. These are triangles of leather with a hemp type cord attached, that buttons on large wooden or leather buttons. They are easy to find at fabric shops and even easier to attach. They will cover up the torn buttonholes and give the coats a great new look, besides, the children will love them.

MRS. LeROY Wagoner, Charles, City, Iowa, is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"When you need a featherweight pellon, just take your medium weight pellon and separate. Start at one corner and peel as much as you need. One yard goes a long way, this way."

DAR EUNICE,

I would love to wear the newest palazzo pants but since I'm not too thin, I'm wondering if these are out for me.

MRS. R. T.

DEAR MRS. R.T.,

There are variations of almost all fashions that can be adapted in some way to suit everyone's figure. In your case, you should select a pattern that has no fullness at the waist.

It should fit smoothly around the waist and hips and gracefully flare out at the hem, not too wide. Be sure and use a soft, flowing fabric to avoid that extra pounds look.

If you are thin, you may select palazzo pants that not only have gathers at the waistline, but that end in huge, full, legs. If you're not watching your weight, you may select wools, plaids, velvets, and knits for your pants. The secret to all of them is to make them full enough so that you will have a skirt look with the added comfort of pants.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a question concerning your caftan. I heard a clerk in a store tell a customer that women were wearing these when they go out in the evenings. Is this really true? I have never seen any worn in our city at night, so I am at a loss to know if it is proper or not.

MILLIE S.

DEAR MILLIE,

Today, anything is proper if you feel proper wearing it. The caftan has become one of the most sophisticated garments of today and the women who make fashion news are wearing them in the evenings with great confidence.

Naturally, the fabric has a great deal to do with the occasion. The most popular fabrics for evening caftans are pure silks, chiffons, crepes, sheer brocades and satins. They are an oriental expression of beauty. Keep this in mind when making your selection.

I think every woman should have one to wear at home, too. Spoil your family and pamper yourself. It's fun to be glamorous not only for your friends but for your family as well.

DEAR EUNICE,

There has been quite a bit written about flameproof cottons for children's sleep wear in ready-made clothes. I am wondering if there is a similar kind of fabric available for those of us who make our families' clothes?

MRS. L.J.F.

DEAR MRS. L.J.F.,

I don't have that answer at the tip of my fingers, I'm sorry to say. To my knowledge, this is not available for over-the-counter sales. However, if I'm wrong, please write to me at once giving me the name of the manufacturer so that I may pass it on to all of you readers.

Driver Killed In Shoreline Accident

A San Francisco man was killed yesterday when his small foreign car crashed into a tree on Shoreline Highway between Bolinas and Olema.

The California Highway Patrol said Arne Arnesen, 39, was northbound about 2:30 p.m. when he apparently attempted to pass a pickup truck driven by James R. Scagliola, 26, of 18 Pleasant Lane, San Rafael.

A witness reported the small car began to sway, then skidded across the highway and into a tree.

The highway patrol said there was sand on the road, dumped earlier to melt ice, but did not know if the sand had contributed to the accident.

The fatality was the 42nd in Marin this year, compared to 32 at the same period last year.

years ago to kill the proposed second deck on the bridge. He also has been the prime mover behind the district's entry into the ferryboat business.

Leonoudakis, 48, has been on the board for 10 years.

The secret ballot also was an unprecedented departure from the tradition of unanimously and quietly accepting the slate recommended by the nominating committee. Outgoing board president Lowell Edington of Napa County ordered the secret balloting "in the interest of harmony."

Also elected, but in open balloting, were Edwin M. Fraser of Del Norte County as first vice president, and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras as second vice president.

Del Carlo, first appointed to the board in 1942, served as board president two years later. Board presidents in recent years have served for two years, as has Edington. No director, however, ever has been reelected as president after leaving office.

push needed to give him the votes to recapture party control from the "new politics" faction that took over in July.

Mrs. Westwood had been offering for a week to step down if the party would replace her with a "consensus" candidate not identified with either warring faction of the party. She said again Friday she would quit in favor of a middle ground candidate even if the committee rejected the motion to oust her, provided Strauss agreed to step out also.

Asked about this at a caucus of the New Democratic Coalition, Strauss said he regarded such a deal as similar to suggesting last summer to McGovern that he quit if Gov. George C. Wallace would drop out. Strauss said McGovern would have told anyone making such a proposition "to go to hell" and he was doing the same.

Mrs. Westwood said she could accept any of the known candidates except Strauss.

would be heading for the schools" to find her children, he argued.

County Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who headed the "simulators" who posed emergencies for emergency service leaders to react to, agreed. He criticized lack of effort to informing the public whether to pick up students at the schools or let the schools deliver them home when conditions permit.

School officials and Kirby said firm policies would be set at meetings in the near future.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who probably will wear the hat of county disaster director next year if elected chairman of the board as expected, offered several observations. A main criticism, he said, was that not enough use was made of light aircraft to assess damage and find routes open for traffic.

Public Works Director Ray Foreaker Jr. reported that "problems were coming in faster than we could have kept track of them with a computer." County Administrator John F. Barrows opined that the fragility of Highway 101 as the county's only north-south route "is a problem that isn't easily solved."

Other officials pointed out that central San Rafael might find itself unable to reach Terra Linda in emergencies unless another traffic link were opened through Sleepy Hollow.

Utility officials stressed that citizens would have to depend on transistor radios and auto radios for instructions and news in many disasters, because blackouts would prevent TV sets from working. This led to considerable but inconclusive discussion of how to work with news media to reach the public.

Kirby reported the county is preparing a brochure explaining how the citizen should react in any of several disaster situations, and hopes to have it completed by May.

In addition, he said, the countywide disaster plan will undergo further revisions on the basis of weak spots that showed up yesterday. More than 150 copies of the bulky, complicated plan have been distributed to county and city officials. Each county library has a copy available for public scrutiny.

Vincent P. Connors and Charles C. Coleman, the instructors from USC, commented that the Marin test was "unusually realistic" because Kirby recruited private utility executives and special district officials as participants. The trainees were "very highly motivated," the instructors said.

"Don't leave it now — keep feeding ideas to Kirby," Coleman urged.

OBITUARIES

Philip W. Tompkins Dies At 99

Private funeral was held today for Philip W. Tompkins, a 99-year-old native Marinite who died Wednesday in the same San Anselmo home in which he was born.

Tompkins, who would have been 100 years old in April, succumbed after a short illness, although he long had been afflicted with arthritis.

Tompkins, an analytical chemist and chemical engineer who had retired two years ago from Curtis and Tompkins, a San Francisco firm he established before the turn of the century, lived in San Anselmo all his life.

The funeral was scheduled at the home, 52 Park Way, this morning.

Tompkins, whose late sister, Ethel H. Tompkins, founded the Marin County Humane Society, was one of the oldest members of San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, joining in 1911.

With his father, M. M. Tompkins, a banker, Tompkins was aboard the ferryboat San Rafael when it collided with the ferry Sausalito No. 2 and sank off Alcatraz Island in 1901. Both slipped into the water and were rescued by a lifeboat.

In an interview several years ago, Tompkins recalled early-day Marin. "It was pretty country then, well wooded... Deer were plentiful and quail were abundant... As a boy, I rode my horse to San Rafael to a private school."

Tompkins was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

CHARLES COHEN

Funeral for Charles (Ted) Cohen, owner of Ted's Taxi and Limousine Service in Tiburon, will be held at 11 a.m. Monday at Russell and Gooch mortuary, Mill Valley.

Cohen, 51, died unexpectedly Tuesday in Culver City, Los Angeles County, while on vacation.

Cohen, of 488 Irving Court, Belveron West, ran the taxi service for 16 years. Born in Philadelphia, he was a Marin resident for 20 years.

Cohen was an unsuccesful candidate for the Tiburon City Council in 1964, when the city incorporated and belonged to the Taxi Cab Association and the Tiburon Lions Club.

Survivors are four children, Niccolette Russo of Petaluma, Cheryl and Debbie Cohen of Tiburon, and Terry Cohen of Fresno, and a brother, Herb Cohen of Maryland.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the mortuary.

terday before the search was halted. The search resumed today, and by midmorning, two more bodies had been found.

Police roped off the crash site on Chicago's South Side and stationed guards to keep unauthorized persons out of the area.

When the plane when down, it hit the roof of one house, smashed through three garages, hit three more houses and plunged to a halt in the John Saldewski home, the plane's nose sticking out one side of the house and the tail from the other side. Several of the homes burst into flames.

A neighbor, Charges Kansler, said, "I heard screams coming from inside the house. I could see the pilot's arm stick out out the window. It looked all white. I couldn't tell if he was alive or dead."

Pope Expresses Concern On Vice

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI voiced concern anew yesterday over "the polluted environment of licentious customs and degrading and provocative vice with which we are surrounded."

"We pray today, on this feast day of the Immaculate Conception of Mary," the Pope said, "that we be given back the ideal concept of human life and of the dignity of our person and of civil and humgn customs."

The Pope spoke from his studio windows to a crowd gathered in St. Peter's Square for his holiday noontime blessing.

Places On Commissions Are Filled

San Rafael City Councilman Lawrence Mulryan has been named to the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission while Fairfax Councilman Frank J. Egger has been appointed to the North Central Coast Regional Commission.

Both men were selected by Marin County mayors, who met Thursday at the Marin Civic Center.

Mulryan, nominated for the LAFC post by the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen, replaces the late Harry Barbier. His appointment was unanimous.

Egger, meanwhile, beat out three other Marin councilmen for the appointment to the regional commission, which was authorized by Proposition 20, the state coastline conservation measure approved by voters last month.

The 14-member commission will review coastline building proposals and issue permits in much the same manner as the Bay Conservation and Development Commission does for construction near San Francisco Bay.

Others nominated for the position were Corte Madera Mayor Holmes S. Norville, Novato Councilman George Quesada and Tiburon Councilman Carlisle Becker.

Phyllis Diller, Husband Split

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Noting their marriage was "for better or for worse, but not for keeps," comedienne Phillis Diller announced Friday she has separated from her actor-husband, Warde Donovan.

Miss Diller, 55, who curently is performing here, said she and Donovan, 56, were living apart. She said each had custody of his or her own children from previous marriages.

She has five children and Donovan has two. They were married in 1955.

State Rate Of Jobless Takes Drop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's unemployment rate dropped in November to its lowest level in 31 months even though there were 50,900 fewer jobholders, the Reagan administration reported Friday.

Sigurd I. Hansen, director of the Department of Human Resources Development, said the jobless rate fell from 5.9 per cent to 5.6 per cent. The nationwide rate declined from 5.5 per cent to 5.2 per cent.

Hansen said 8.24 million Californians held jobs last month—the highest ever for a November and 178,400 above the corresponding month a year ago.

The state official attributed the October-to-November drop in jobholders to "the usual cutback in farm and other outdoor work" during the rainy season.

But he said seasonal decrease was "less than usual" because much of it was offset by expansion in trade, government, finance, insurance and real estate during the month.

He said the total number of Californians employed in November was 467,000, up from 427,000 the previous month. However, he said the figure was 40,000 lower than November 1971.

Here is a breakdown, by areas, of November unemployment rates, with October's figures in parentheses:

Los Angeles-Long Beach, 5.1 (5.3); San Francisco-Oakland, 5.5 (5.8); Anaheim-Santa Ana Garden Grove, 5.0 (5.2); San Jose, 5.1 (5.5); Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario, 5.9 (5.9); Sacramento, 5.9 (6.5); Fresno, 7.5 (7.4); Bakersfield, 5.8 (5.5); Oxnard-Simi Valley-Ventira, 6.0 (5.7); Stockton, 8.1 (8.9); Santa Barbara-Santa Maria-Lompoc, 5.1 (5.4); Vallejo-Fairfield Napa, 5.0 (5.9).

The department said figures were unavailable for the remainded of the state's major labor marketing areas.

State To Add Land At Point Mugu Park

Director William Penn Mott Jr. announced Friday that Richard E. Danielson Jr. has agreed to sell the property to the state at half its appraised value of $4,215,000.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Defective Vision May Cause Child's Behavioral Disorders

Behavior disorders in young children may be related to defective vision. A 6-year-old boy, for example, made very little progress in school and was considered backward. Routine tests for hearing and sight showed no abnormality.

The lad fell and broke his hip, and while in the hospital, became very uncooperative, spitting, throwing things, and crying. On his return to school, he was obviously disturbed, unpleasant, and aggressive and his school work deteriorated.

HE WAS NOW 8 years old and the teacher thought his vision might be impaired; the parents agreed because they noticed he had become increasingly afraid of the dark. A thorough eye examination showed that he could see just enough to count his fingers and that he viewed things eccentrically, looking over the top of them. Special electrical studies of the retina demonstrated that the boy was almost blind because of an hereditary ocular degenerative disorder.

Drs. Brian Harcourt and David Hopkins reported four of these cases in the British Medical Journal. One involved a 6-year-old girl who first began to get into trouble at school. She took little interest in her surroundings, cried a lot, talked continuously, and was intensely jealous of her infant sister.

She became increasingly more afraid of the dark and slept very little. She was under psychiatric care for some time and improved a little after going to a special school. But her vision progressivly worsened and in time, the parents agreed to extensive eye tests. The girl was no 9 years old and hardly able to see.

CHILDREN WITH this type of retinal degeneration often go 18 to 30 months before the ocular disturbance is recognized. Good vision exists during the first few years, after which there is a slowly progressive deterioration. Night blindness is the first sign and begins with trouble on dark days or in subdued light. On routine examination, the eyes appear to be normal and severity of the visual defect is masked.

These children had tapetoretinal degeneration, a form of retinitis pigmentosa. The rodsand cones in the retina slowly disintegrate leading to blindness. The behavior of these children improves when they are transferred to schools for the visually handicapped.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

BRITTLE DIABETES

A reader writes: What is brittle diabetes?

REPLY

This unstable form of diabetes fluctuates in and out of control for no apparent reason. The sugar content of the blood may be excessive at 9 a.m. and a small amount of insulin may bring it down to insulin reaction levels within a short time.

PREGNANT CYCLING

A reader writes: Is it safe for a pregnant woman to ride a bike?

REPLY

It would be better to walk after the third month. As the mother-to-be grows larger and more awkward, there is greater danger of falling from the bike.

SUBNORMAL THYROID

F. M. writes: Can a lazy thyroid have a disturbing effect upon the menstrual cycle?

REPLY

Yes. Fertility also may be disturbed.

Israel Will Continue To Keep Arab Lands

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Israel has pledged to disregard a U.N. General Assembly resolution calling on the Israelis to get out of Arab territories occupied since the six-day war of 1967.

But Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, in condemning the measure adopted late Friday by an 86-7 vote with 31 abstentions, did not repeat his government's threat to pull out of U.N. Middle East peace efforts if the Assembly tampered with the intent of a Nov. 22, 1967 Security Council resolution.

The United States abstained from voting on the measure, sponsored by 20 nonaligned powers with Arab blessing, which:

—Deplored Israel's failure to comply with the council resolution and repeated the exact language of that measure which called for Israel's withdrawal "from territories" occupied in the 1967 war and urged "secure and recognized boundaries" for all Middle East countries.

—Asked Israel to declare publicly acceptance of "the principle of non-annexation of territories through the use of force".

—Declared changes made by Israel in the occupied territories null and void and called on all countries to withhold aid to assist Israel in such changes.

—Recognized the rights of Palestinian refugees as an "indispensable element" for Middle East peace.

—Asked the Security Council to "take all appropriate steps" for the carrying out fully of the 1967 resolution.

—Expressed full support for the peace efforts of Secretary General Kurt Waldheim and his special Middle East peace envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring.

Before the vote, Tekoah called the resolution a "characteristic reflection of the failings and travesties of U.N. debates on the Middle East".

"Israel cannot allow itself to be engulfed by numbers," Tekoah said.

Irish Leaders Laud Vote To Split Church, State

DUBLIN (UPI) — Leaders of the Irish Republic said today the voters' decision to sever the government's constitutional link with the Roman Catholic church was a necessary "first step" toward eventual unification of Northern Ireland and the Republic.

"There may be other changes later," a spokesman for Premier Jack Lynch's Fianna Fail party said. "But this was a first step toward reconciliation."

Final results in Thursday's referendum showed 721,003 or 84 per cent of those voting favored deleting from the 1937 constitution the special recognition granted to the Roman Catholic church, while 133,430 or 16 per cent voted to retain it.

But only 50 percent of the 1.8 million people eligible to vote did so. Lynch had urged a "massive response" from voters as a goodwill gesture to the Protestant majority in British ruled Northern Ireland.

"Naturally I am disappointed at the low poll," Lynch said. "But the republic has shown it is ready to make changes."

Lynch said the message of the poll had come through "loud and clear" for all on both sides of the Irish border.

"The vote in this referendum was for peace and reconciliation," he said.

First reactions from Protestants in Northern Ireland were unfavorable.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, Protestant militant leader and a member of the British House of Commons, described the result as "unrepresentative."

"The poll did not express a majority viewpoint," he said.

Symphony Opener Is Set Tonight

As a result of erroneous information in a press release from the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, the Independent-Journal incorrectly reported on Wednesday that the Orchestra would open its Marin series Sunday.

The series actually opens tonight at 8 o'clock at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building with the orchestra's concertmaster, Stuart Canim, substituting for originally scheduled Israeli violinist Pinchas Zukerman.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Dec. 9, the 344th day of 1972 with 22 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

English poet John Milton was born Dec. 9, 1608.

On this day in history:

In 1793, Noah Webster founded the American Minerva, the first daily newspaper in New York City.

In 1907, Christmas seals were placed on sale in the post office in Wilmington, Del., to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

In 1920, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to American President Woodrow Wilson.

In 1971, Dr. Ralph Bunche, former U.N. official and winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, died at the age of 67.

A thought for the day: British poet John Milton said, "Peace has her victories no less renowned than war."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

Consider The Odds In Action Before Attempting The Contract

Today's hand, played 15 years ago in an intercollegiate tournament, was a test of the ability to foresee bad breaks. Several thousand college students played the hand, in more than a hundred colleges, but only a few came up with the right answer.

GETS TO CONTRACT

In most cases, South got to the correct contract of five diamonds. The jack of clubs was usually opened by the West player.

South can expect to win seven trumps, two top clubs and the ace of spades. The 11th trick, needed for the game contract, can come only from developing dummy's long club suit.

Declarer naturally thinks first of taking the top clubs and ruffing a low club. If each opponent has exactly three clubs, declarer can get back to dummy with the king of diamonds in order to run the last two clubs. South will then make 12 tricks.

GOOD BREAK UNLIKELY

The trouble with this plan is that the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break of the missing six clubs. The suit is more likely to break 4-2.

To guard against the expected 4-2 break, South should play a low club from dummy at the first trick!

BEST PLAY

East's best play is to win with the queen of clubs and return the queen of spades, South takes the ace of spades, draws two rounds of trumps with the ace and queen and then leads a club to dummy's king. It is now easy to cash the ace of clubs and ruff a club. This establishes dummy's last club as a good trick. Declarer can get back to dummy with the king of diamonds to cash the last club, making his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠- 7 6 5
♥- J 10
♦- K 3 2
♣- A K 6 5 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club or pass.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, but some aggressive experts would open it. The hand would be a better opening bid if there were low hearts and if the clubs were A K J 10 2.

Hub Police Err In Crash Report

San Anselmo police said today they erred last week in reporting that a 28-year-old San Anselmo woman on a bicycle crashed broadside into a car driven by an 86-year-old woman.

Actually, the car driven by Ruby Smith Krelle, 86, of 425 Center Boulevard, San Anselmo, crashed into the cyclist, Claudia M. Polliti, 28, of 810 Butterfield Road, police said.

Police said today that the cyclist caused the crash, however, by not looking where she was going.

Salute today's birthday names, but remember some are make-believe. Who's using the real name and who's adopted a new one? That's the question.

1. KIRK DOUGLAS was a baby 56 years ago. Now he's the screen's tough hero, fighting to win in such pictures as "Seven Days in May," "Spartacus," or "The Vikings." His hometown is Amsterdam, N.Y. and his alma mater, St. Lawrence University. Often nominated for an Oscar, Kirk has never won one. His real name is Issur Danielovitch. Right?

2. REDD FOXX, co-star of TV's "Sanford and Son," is 50 today. If you think he's 65, that's because the part calls for a man that age. Redd got the role after NBC executives spotted him as a junk man in the film, "Cotton Comes to Harlem." For years Foxx played only the black night club circuit, but white audiences saw him 10 years ago and he really got going. Is Redd's real name John Sanford?

3. HERMIONE GINGOLD, 75 today, was raised a proper English lady, enjoying a private education, with her own governess and all that. But stage lights got her away from sewing rooms, first with Old Vic and today in films ("Gigi"), recording ("Life of the Party") and her own books ("My Own Unaided Work"). Is it true, however, her real name is Frances Gumm?

4. ELISABETH SCHWARZKOPF, star of grand opera, was born 57 years ago. Europe has applauded her voice for years and she has appeared in all the major opera houses, including La Scala in Milan and Covent Garden in London. She made her American debut at the San Francisco Opera House in 1955. Her name is Lilli Lehmann. Right?

ANSWERS: 1 - Right; 2 - Yes; 3 - False; 4 - Wrong.

SHELTERS DESIGNED FOR BUS SYSTEM

This conception of shelters for the Golden Gate Bridge District bus system, despite the designer's misspelling of Tiburon, won first prize of $250 for Firooze Pejhan, a student of environmental design at the California College of Arts and Craft in Oakland. The 31-year-old Iranian, whose work will serve as a model for new shelters to be built under a pending federal grant, proposed a unit with a sheet metal umbrella supported by green steel columns.

Mistrial In Ellsberg Case Is Declared

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A mistrial will be declared in the Pentagon Papers case Monday.

U.S. District Judge Matt Byrne said at a hearing Friday he would order the mistrial because the U.S. Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco earlier that day declined to overrule Byrne's decision not to grant a mistrial last Dec. 1, but said it would be "foolish to proceed to trial in the case with the jury selected four months ago."

"In view of the language," Byrne said, "I believe there would be substantial risk" in continuing the trial with the present jury because a verdict "might be disturbed on appeal."

Byrne said he would have issued the mistrial order at the hearing Friday except that Daniel Ellsberg, 41, was not present. Ellsberg has admitted providing the Pentagon papers to news media in July, 1971, but denies that constituted any wrongdoing. He was not aware the hearing had been called and was undergoing a physical checkup at the time.

Laird Says Some Bases To Be Shut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says the Pentagon will begin closing some military bases next year to cut $1 billion from the defense budget by 1975.

Pentagon officials said the closings tentatively would include one naval base on the east and west coasts and many small Army depots.

Laird disclosed the move Friday at an Andrews Air Force Base news conference upon his return from NATO meetings in Belgium. Laird also said that he discussed the future of SEATO with British officials at the NATO talks.

Two important members of SEATO, Australia and New Zealand, have cooled toward the alliance since the election of new governments in recent weeks.

Laird said that he had received from the Army, Navy and Air Force lists of bases that can be closed or cut back.

"The chiefs and others do feel that cuts can be made in this area," the outgoing defense secretary said.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., whose home state is a major center for the defense establishment, said Thursday that the Pentagon had a responsibility to help displaced workers find new jobs.

Laird said the primary problem in shutting down bases is combatting pressures from congressmen in whose districts the closings would take place.

Laird said that he has eliminated 4 million jobs of military and civilian personnel since becoming secretary in 1969. But he said the Pentagon has worked and will continue to work to attract new industries and open new job opportunities in areas where defense cutbacks have an impact on the local economy.

The current defense budget is $76 billion and Laird has projected the next budget at $80 billion.

He said the $1 billion savings could not be achieved in the year the base cutbacks are made. The expenses inherent in closing a base generally increase costs during the phaseout period, Laird said.

But he said he believed full savings were "attainable" in 18 months after the closings.

President Nixon in a postelection analysis of the federal bureaucracy said he believed that defense spending could be trimmed by 10 per cent.

Three Confess To Plot On Marcos Life To Seize Power

MANILA (UPI) — The Philippine government said today that righwing conspirators have confessed they planned to assassinate President Ferdinand E. Marcos and seize power.

Alternatively, the government said, the rightwingers wanted to get into power through Marcos' ouster in a Communist rebellion.

Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad said at least three members of a "revolutionary junta" had confessed to the alleged plot. He warned that assassination attempts on President Marcos, his wife and their children would continue.

Tatad's statement came 48 hours after an assailant wielding a foot-long bolo knife stabbed Marcos' wife Imelda at an awards ceremony.

Mrs. Marcos suffered deep wounds in both hands and her right arm but was reported in satisfactory condition. Her attacker, identified as Carlito Dimaali, was shot dead by guards.

Tatad said as a result of that attack Filipino police had raided "14 houses" and arrested 85 persons in an effort to prevent more violence.

Previously the government said at least six Americans had been involved in a rightist conspiracy, including Vietnam war veteran Edward Lehman who is in custody, and San Francisco businessman Lawrence Tractman, whom the government is seeking.

"All those who have been apprehended in the rightist plot to take over the government upon the assassination of the president or after the success of a Communist takeover have signed voluntary confessions," Tatad said.

Tatad said that among those detained or implicated were relatives of millionaires, politicians, retired military officers and others, including Sergio Osmena III, grandson of a Philippine wartime president and son of Sen. Sergio Osmena who lost to Marcos in the 1969 presidential election.

"The plan included the support for the Communist campaign of terrorism and violence to create a revolutionary situation and grab power even if the Communists should have succeeded in taking over the government," Tatad said.

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., today called on President Marcos and extended the sympathy of Americans to his wife.

The senator is in Manila in the course of a tour of Southeast Asia. He was accompanied on the call at the Malacanang presidential palace by U.S. ambassador to the Philippines Henry A. Byroade.

Woman Admits Welfare Fraud, Perjury Charges

A Hayward woman, said to have bilked Marin County of almost $3,600 in a welfare career that included claiming disability because a back injury ended her topless dancing career, pleaded guilty to two charges in Marin Superior Court yesterday.

Agreeing to a plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, Lia Culcleasure Stahrlite admitted felony counts of welfare fraud and perjury. The judge promised her a state prison sentence would be suspended in favor of nine months in jail and probation. She will also be ordered to pay restitution if the negotiation is followed.

Sentencing is set for Dec. 18.

The judge dismissed a petty theft count over the objection of Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams, who sought a state prison term for the 27-year-old woman.

Hyams said the woman apparently used three other names to enroll for welfare in San Francisco and Alameda counties while receiving checks from Marin.

She received $3,523 she wasn't entitled to in Marin alone from January 1971 until September 1972 when a state computer caught up with her, according to Hyams.

At one point, he said, she may have been receiving five different aid checks from three counties, plus a $125-per-week paycheck from a job as a furniture refinisher.

Hyams said Alameda County may also prosecute her for welfare fraud and Santa Clara and Monterey counties want her on charges of passing bad checks. In Los Angeles County, she is wanted for defrauding an innkeeper, he said.

Drake, Petaluma In Cage Tourney Finale Tonight

By LEW CODDINGTON

Drake High School, which runs the tournament, and Petaluma High, which practically owns it, wili meet at 8:15 tonight for the championship of the Drake Pirate Classic at the San Anselmo school.

Each team won frantic semifinal basketball games last night, with the Pirates rallying to defeat Ells of Richmond, 72-68, and Petaluma scrambling to beat Novato, 40-38. The losers will meet for third place tonight at 6:30.

In loser's bracket games yesterday afternoon, San Marin edged Terra Linda, 61-58, and San Rafael drubbed Napa, 56-47. The winners were to meet today for the consolation title at 5 p.m., while the losers were scheduled to collide at 3:30.

Drake has made the finals of its eight-year-old tournament only once, and that in the inaugural year, 1965. The Pirates won then, and are top-seeded now, but Petaluma has won the last two years and has an eight-game winning streak in the tourney.

Drake (5-1) rallied from a 38-30 halftime deficit to defeat Ells (1-2) before a near-capacity crowd of 1,400 fans. Center John Channell collared eight offensive rebounds and converted most into baskets for 18 points to lead all scorers, with Eddie Joe Chavez adding 14 and John (Skipper) Schmitz 10.

Drake did not take the lead for good until Schmitz converted a three-point play with 5:47 left in the game for a 59-58 advantage. Then Channell put in an offensive rebound, Dan Howard sailed in for a controversial layup and Chavez rifled home a long jumper for 65-58.

Just before Howard's basket, Ells' Richard Bailey was called for an offensive foul, his fifth. A buzzer was sounded to stop play so Bailey could be removed from the game, but the officials apparently could not hear it over the crowd noise. Play continued, and Howard scored.

The shooting of Petaluma (2-3) was nowhere near as glamorous as Drake's, but the Trojans showed similar grit in the clutch to upset second-seeded Novato (4-2). The Hornets led late in the third quarter, 29-25, but Petaluma surged for a 39-32 lead which turned out to be enough.

"We were out of the game as far as talent goes, but we controlled the tempo absolutely," said Petaluma coach Mark Reischling who, like Hayward, is a first-year mentor.

Jess Tremblay was the star of the surge with three baskets and a free throw, while Gary Mungle had three free throws.

Novato shot an atrocious 29 per cent from the field (16 of 54) and Petaluma was even worse at 26 per cent (12 of 47). In fact, the Trojans went a full 12 minutes in the second and third quarters without a bucket — and never relinquished the lead during that stretch.

Novato was called for 27 personal fouls to Petaluma's 12, with the predictabe result that

Marin, Sacramento Tonight; Tars Lose

Sports

Independent-Journal, 23
Saturday, December 9, 1972

By RON LENT

College of Marin basketball coach John Panagakis plans only one change tonight at 8 o'clock when the Tars host Sacramento City.

"We plan to win," he asserted last night after his Tars bowed 85-67 to powerful Laney College of Oakland, in a non-league game in Kentfield.

"Sacramento doesn't run a lot like Laney — and they're not nearly as physical," Panagakis pointed out.

Certainly, the Tar fans would agree with Panagakis' assessment of Laney. Some 700 vociferous spectators looked on as the Eagles (6-0) handed the Tars (5-1) their first loss this season.

Regarding the defeat, Panagakis stressed, "It should serve as a lesson to us. If we don't screen out and rebound, we get killed. And that's what happened to us against Laney."

The Eagles outrebounded Marin 63-34 in controlling the game. Although the Eagles dominated the boards, they couldn't stop Tar star forward Wil Garner. Garner was the contest's top scorer with 24 points. His forward running mate Joe Casteel chipped in 13.

Despite the setback, Panagakis was looking ahead. "I told my players that this was just one non-league game. . . we've got a long way to go."

Off last night's showing, Panagakis is right; the Tars do have a long way to go. Marin led four different times in the first half, but the visitors outrebounded the Tars 33-20 during that span and grabbed a 39-32 advantage at the intermission. This was the first time this season that the Tars trailed at the half.

Enjoying a pronounced rebounding edge, the Eagles utilized a fast break and balanced scoring to throttle the Tars. Forward Tyree Foster and guard Vernon May were the big guns for Laney. They tallied 15 and 11, respectively for the team that finished second in the state tournament last year.

Able Laney reserves Geoffrey McCray and Fred McDonald also contributed mightily to the Tars' demise. McDonald, a 6-foot-9 center, and McCray, a hot-shooting guard, registered 10 and nine points, respectively, while the outcome was still in doubt.

McCray and McDonald did most of their damage in the second half when the Tars were battling to stay in contention. The Tars tied the game at 45-45 on a Garner jumper with 15:58 left, but Johnson promptly responded with a field goal to put the Eagles ahead to stay.

The Tars closed to within one point on three occasions thereafter before Laney pulled away. Laney was ahead, 52-51, when Foster and guard Bruce Fernandez ran off seven unanswered points between them, making it 59-51. Marin fell further behind from that point on as the Eagles hustled and muscled their way to victory.

ROUGH BATTLE — Marin Tars' guard Joe DeMaestri and Laney Eagles' guard Vernon May (10) scrambled for a loose basketball last night in Kentfield during a rugged, non-league contest. The Eagles prevailed, 85-67, in handing the Tars (5-1) their first defeat of the season.

AT CANDLESTICK

No Tomorrow For 49ers, Falcons; Game 'Crucial'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Operating on the theory there may be no tomorrow the San Francisco 49ers and Atlanta Falcons "hang it all out" Sunday in their "crucial" meeting at Candlestick Park.

The Falcons, who haven't won a division title since coming into the National Football League in 1966, go into the test — to be played in unusually cold weather — with the edge in the standings and the possible luxury of playing for a tie. But the oddsmakers are picking the 49ers by six points.

'WORST GAME'

Atlanta, which bowed, 49-14, to San Francisco six games back in what coach Norm Van Brocklin called "the worst game we've ever played," is 7-5 and leads the 49ers and Los Angeles Rams by a half game in the chase for the National Football Conference title. The two California teams are 6-5-1, following Los Angeles' upset 26-16 victory over the 49ers last Monday night.

For San Francisco, it's beat Atlanta or call it a year, which would be a little tough to take for the 49ers, NFC West champs the last two seasons. Atlanta goes into the game also faced with winning, but if the St. Louis Cardinals upset the Rams before the Falcon-49ers tilt, the Falcons could play for a tie if that is easier to accomplish in the waning minutes of a close contest.

FALCONS' FOE

In the event they have to go that route — in order to stay alive — the Falcons then would have to beat the Kansas City Chiefs in their final gmae of the season to win the title.

Steve Spurrier, sabotaged by his receivers in the Los Angeles loss, threw three of his 18 scoring passes in the earlier victory over Altanta. What made that game easy, though, was the running of Larry Schrieber, Ken Willard and Vic Washington. That set up the passing game and Spurrier had little trouble connecting in key situations.

Van Brocklin likes to think that game was not indicative of what his Falcons can do, and he's right. The San Francisco loss was just one of those games where a team starts off with a mistake and never recovers.

NOTHING RIGHT

"We didn't do one thing right except, perhaps, to show up," Van Brocklin says of that game. "We made enough mistakes to take care of us for the year. I don't want to take anything away from the 49ers, though. They were good enough to take advantage and that's always the sign of a good ball club. This time I hope things will be different."

Dick Nolan, about as upset as he could be with the loss to the Rams last Monday — a game in which Spurrier's receivers

TAM, REDWOOD

Marin Cagers' Tourney Wins

Hollis Owens of Tamalpais High School and Mark Kilmer of Redwood — two players who got their chances only because starters on their teams were injured — provided the spark yesterday as the two schools won tournament basketball games.

Owens scored 10 of his 14 points in the fourth quarter as Tam rallied to defeat Lowell of San Francisco, 38-37, in the Crusader Classic at Riordan High in the city, while Kilmer fired in 20 points as Redwood defeated Mission San Jose, of Fremont, 70-58, in the Amador Valley tournament in Pleasanton.

Tamalpais (2-4) trailed at the beginning of the final period, 32-26, but rallied behind Owens to close within one point with 20 seconds left. Then Jared McFerrin followed up a missed Owens shot for the winning bucket.

Owens, a 6-foot-4 junior, was moved from outside to the post to replace Mike Dinehart, another 6-4 junior who has been sidelined with Osgood's-Schlatter's "disease," a growth defect resulting in weakness in the bone shaft of the leg, Tam coach Bernie Schneider said.

Tam will play Balboa of San Francisco today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Redwood (2-3) shot 56 per cent from the field (40 of 71), with guard Kilmer hitting 10 of 13 in relief of Katsumi Johnson, who is missing the tournament with a hand injury requiring 10 stitches. "A good performance for a sophomore," grinned Giant coach Dick Hart.

Redwood set a dubious school record by missing 18 of 22 free throws, but got 10 points and 17 rebounds from Darrell Elder en route to victory. The Giants meet Berkeley today at 5:30 p.m. for the consolation title.

Also going for a consolation championship is Marin Catholic, which was to meet Oakland High at 3:30 p.m. today in the St. Elizabeth tournament in Oakland.

BOAT ISSUE PUT OFF

Bay Shoreline Night Fishing Approved By State Commission

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — The state Fish and Game Commission Friday approved night fishing from the shoreline of San Francisco Bay, but decided to wait before permitting night fishing from boats, citing safety hazards.

"There's a real chance — even a probability — that if the commission authorizes" nighttime fishing from boats, "a result could be the death of a fisherman or grounding of a large ship, even a repeat of the 1972 oil spill," warned Cmdr. Frank E. Thrall, vessel traffic system chief for the U.S. Coast Guard in San Francisco.

Thrall also expressed concern that inexperienced small craft navigators would confuse a ship's running lights with the skylines of Oakland and San Francisco, and that operators of large ships might have difficulty avoiding smaller craft.

The commission said it will reconsider permitting nighttime fishing from boats next year after evaluating a study now being made by the Coast Guard of ways to minimize hazards.

The commission's action is effective March 1. The waters involved extend from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Carquinez straits; including San Pablo Bay.

In other actions, the commission increased the bag and possession limits for multi-day ocean sport fishing and diving trips to a maximum of three daily limits.

The three-day possession limit was also expanded to include abalone, scallops, spiny lobsters and clams in multi-day trips.

Among other changes, the commission set permanent dates for the opening of trout and salmon fishing seasons, and closed the trout season two weeks earlier in Inyo and Mono counties.

The new multi-day limit takes effect on Jan. 1. Most of the other regulations are effective next March 1 and remain in effect until February, 1974.

Other changes:

—The size limit on green abalone was reduced from 6¼ inches to six inches.

—One white sea bass under minimum size of 28 inches may be taken.

—Night fishing will be permitted in Clair Engle Lake in Trinity County and Evans Lake in Riverside County.

—For Northern California streams, and lakes and streams in Mono and Inyo Counties, the trout and salmon seasons will open the last Saturday in April. For north coast streams, opening was set for the Saturday preceding Memorial Day.

—Seasons will run through Nov. 15, except in Mono and Inyo counties where the season will close Oct. 31.

—Lakes and reservoirs in Alpine County will be open the year around.

—Weight limit on catfish was removed.

—A 40-mile stretch of the Kern River from Johnsondale Bridge to Democrat Dam was opened to all-year fishing.

Tomales Five Tops Lick; First Win Of Season

Tomales High School got its first basketball victory of the season in San Francisco last night with a 50-42 non-league win over Lick Wilmerding. The Braves are now 1-2 on the year.

"We did a lot better," Tomales coach James Clahan commented. "We took in a lot of rebounds, but our shooting is still off." The Braves hit a poor 29 per cent of their shots from the field.

Russ Sartori and John Ball were the scoring and rebounding leaders for Tomales with 15 and 13 points, and 12 and 11 rebounds.

Warriors Snoozing; Bucks Flying High

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Golden State was snoozing while the Milwaukee Bucks were grooving to a 23-point halftime lead Friday night. At the final sneaker squeak, Milwaukee found itself on top 124-91 without hardly working up a sweat to end a short two-game losing string.

There was no denying the Bucks who shot 62 per cent from the floor to pull to a 65-42 halftime advantage. Meanwhile, the Warriors managed only 40 per cent from the field.

Warriors coach Al Attles could tell it would be one of those nights when the Warriors turned the ball over five times in the first five minutes.

Milwaukee extended its 23-point halftime advantage to 32 points at the end of the third period.

Seven Bucks hit in double figures, topped by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 19. He saw only limited action.

Rick Barry of the Warriors led all scorers with 26 points but nobody else on his team could manage over 13. Center Nate Thurmond had 13 and guard Jeff Mullins 12.

Golden State plays Sunday night against the Cavaliers in Cleveland.

Jets Vs. Oakland Monday Night

OAKLAND (UPI) — The New York Jets return to the scene of their infamous Heidi fiasco Monday night hoping to avoid a rerun on national television.

In 1967, the Jets were in the running for the championship of the American Football League East title when they dropped a 43-32 thriller to the Raiders. Oakland scored two touchdowns in the final 65 seconds while television turned to the children's show.

Now the Jets are back with quarterback Joe Namath limping through a typical year by hurling 18 touchdown passes to tie San Francisco's Steve Spurrier for the pro lead.

Emerson Boozer will have to be the running workhorse of the Jets because John Riggins, the other starting back, is injured and will miss the game.

The Jets need to win their final two games to have a shot at the wild card playoff berth in the AFC. They are presently 7-5 and battling Cleveland (8-4) and Cincinnati (7-5) for the remaining playoff spot.

Oakland (8-3-1) has clinched its division and a berth in the playoffs.

NBA ROUNDUP

Petrie, Wicks Star, Sans Cast

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

If pro basketball's rules were altered and National Basketball Association clubs were allowed to start only two players, the lowly Portland Trail Blazers would likely become a contender.

Portland's Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks are first-rate start playing with a poor supporting cast. Such was in evidence last night as Portland fell to Houston, 114-108.

Houston survived a second-half scoring spree by Portland's Petrie and Wicks to beat the Trail Blazers. Petrie led all scorers with 34, Wicks had 29 and Jimmy Walker topped Houston with 24.

Elsewhere, Boston downed Cleveland 96-87, Buffalo edged New York 91-89, Atlanta drubbed Baltimore 134-115 and moved past the Bullets atop the Central Division, Los Angeles crushed Seattle 119-100, Detroit beat Kansas City-Omaha 113-100, Chicago whipped Philadelphia 118-102 and Milwaukee slaughtered, Golden State, 124-91.

In the American Basketball Association, it was New York 126, Virginia 124; Carolina 107, Denver 104; Kentucky 121, Indiana 114; Memphis 109, Dallas 108 and Utah 128, San Diego 95.

Bob Love came off Chicago's bench in the second period, hit seven straight shots and finished with 30 points to lead the Bulls past the hapless 76ers, whose Fred Carter took scoring honors with 31.

Dave Cowen's 25 points and 18 rebounds helped Boston turn back Cleveland and take a one-game lead over New York in the Atlantic Division. Boston's Jo Jo White and Cleveland's Austin Carr each scored 22 points.

Buffalo, which has lost all six starts against the Knicks in New York over the years, beat them for the fourth time in six home meetings.

Dick Garrett was the Braves' high scorer with 21 points while the Smith boys, Elmore and Randy, tallied 18 apiece and Elmore also pulled down 22 rebounds. Walt Frazier was high for New York with 26 points.

Pete Maravich and Lou Hudson combined for 71 points as Atlanta walloped Baltimore and sneaked past the Bullets by one-half game. Pistol Pete gunned in 34 points while Hudson had 31.

Los Angeles used a balanced attack — Happy Hairston's 28 points, Gail Goodrich's 22, Keith Erickson's 21 and Jim McMillian's 18— to rip Seattle and run their perfect home record against the not-so-SuperSonics to 17-0.

Detroit tied a club record with its sixth consecutive home triumph as Bob Lanier and Dave Bing led a fourth-period surge that turned back KC-Omaha. Lanier finished with 37 points and 21 rebounds while Bing had 27 points and 13 assists.

MARIN BOWLING

Baccei's 759 Series Is Top Score Of Week

This carpenter can apparently hammer pins as well as nails.

San Rafael carpenter Ron Baccei demonstrated excellent skill in hammering pins Wednesday night when he bowled an outstanding 759 series at Greenbrae Lanes. Bowling in the Merry Mixers League, he notched games of 248, 267 and 244.

His efforts easily capped the week's bowling output in Marin County.

COUNTRY CLUB BOWL in San Rafael reported that Jerry Cohl converted the difficult 7-10 split in TGIF League competition last Friday night. Country Club Bowl desk gal Barbara Henderson claimed it was the first such conversion there that she could recall.

JUNIORS Perry Litchfield and Ken Aeschlimann showed fine potential with good achievements this week at Country Club Bowl. Pitchfield rolled a 660 series last Saturday in the juniors league, while Aeschlimann turned in his first 600. Ken broke that barrier with a 613 Wednesday night in the Adult Juniors League.

SIBLING RIVALRY. Brothers Jerry and Larry Walker of Larkspur put on quite a show last Saturday at Greenbrae Lanes. Larry had a 635 and Jerry a 632 in the Greenbrae Juniors League last Saturday morning. Larry is 15 and Jerry is 17.

SOME 50 ENTRANTS have been penciled in for the "200" Classic Tournament at Nave Lanes Sunday, 11 a.m. with a few more late entries expected.

The tourney is open to Nave league bowlers who rolled games of 200 or better between September and Dec. 8, this year. Signups will be taken at Nave Lanes until Sunday, 10:30 a.m. Participants will bowl three games, total pins plus handicap determining the winner.

dropped six passes they should have held onto — says simply "we have to beat Atlanta and then Minnesota next week and hope someone knocks off the Rams."

"It's down to simple mathematics, so we know what we have to do," he added. "Now, the point is-can we do the job?"

Nolan, to hardly no one's surprise, has picked Spurrier, now 4-2-1 since taking over for the injured John Brodie, to start at quarterback against the Falcons.

There had been speculation that Brodie might get the start since he has recovered from an ankle injury and has looked sharp in practice drills.

"Spurrier is my man," Nolan said of the quarterback situation, and then added that he wouldn't hesitate to replace him with Brodie if Steve fails to move the club.

SPURRIER

Against the Rams, Spurrier threw the ball 46 times and completed 27 passes. His two touchdown tosses tied him with Joe Namath of the New York Jets for the most this year in the NFL — 18. Namath accomplished his total, thought, while playing in 12 games — five more than Spurrier.

Kickoff for Sunday's game is 1 p.m. with the usual Candlestick Park sellout of 61,000 anticipated. The game will be televised back to the Falcons' home territory.

Redwood and Terra Linda high schools split a pair of nonleague basketball games yesterday, with the Trojan junior varsity (6-0) beating the Giants, 48-41, behind a 12-point effort by Doug Carlisle, and the Giant freshmen (3-0) swamping the Trojans, 44-24, as Bill Peters scored 11.

West German Gal Wins Big Ski Cup Race

VAL D' ISERE France (UPI) — Sixteen-year-old Pamela Behr of West Germany more than matched her father's expectations today by winning a World Cup special slalom ski race in front of the elite of the international circuits.

Her father, Sepp Behr, used to be the German national ski team coach.

Pamela with her victory shared an early lead in World Cup standings with famed Annemarie Proell of Austria, two times cup-winner and winner of the first race this season, Thursday's downhill fighting against a blizzard.

Pamela was joined in top placings by two young French girls in their first World Cup year Odile Chalvin, who finished second and Patricia Emonet, 16 who was third.

Miss Emonet, in fact, had the fastest time in the first of the two runs but was two seconds slower than Miss Behr in the second. The blizzard and poor visibility seemed to worry the new young stars less than the 'veterans' of 20 years old or so. Many of the favorites fell or missed gates.

With four placings in the top 10, the French girls took part revenge over their Austrian rivals who completely dominated the downhill with seven in the first nine.

Today's heavy snow after such warm weather Friday that the snow began to disappear — disrupted preparations for Sundays mens downhill, last of the "Criterium of the First Snow" ski meet here.

The non-stop had to be cancelled in the morning and officials said the race may have to be held Monday.

Annemarie Proell fell in the second run while her big French rival, Jacqueline Rouvier, could manage no better than 19th place.

Britt Lafforgue, the French favorite, finished 12th.

Danielle Debernard, another French hope this year, finished fourth while Monika Kaserer saved Austria's honor with a fifth place. But she was the only Austrian girl in the top ten.

Other leaders were: 6. Judy Crawford, Canada. 7. Toril Forland Norway 8. Hanni Wenzel, Liechtenstein. 9. Christine Rolland, France. 10. Christa Zechmeister, West Germany.

SEALS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — The California Golden Seals, who managed to both blow a game and save it in their last outing, will have to be at their best this weekend.

They move into Montreal tonight and Boston Sunday. Montreal needs a win to stay ahead of Boston, and Boston needs a win to stay near Montreal.

California saw a 3-1 lead vanish late in the going against Pittsburgh Wednesday to fall behind 4-3. But then newcomer Darryl Maggs had a last-gasp goal and the Seals settled for a 4-4 tie.

BUNNY AND THE CHAMP

Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier compared his rope skipping techniques with those of a Playboy Club bunny during a training camp lull in McAfee, N.J. Thursday. Frazier was training at the Playboy Club for his Jan. 22 title defense against challenger George Foreman of Hayward in Kingston, Jamaica. In explaining his preference for this training camp locale, Frazier said: "The girls make it comfortable for me here." (UPI Telephoto)

Kuhn's Rebuff For Miller's Accusations

Combined AP & UPI

NEW YORK — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn denied Friday that he had acted in bad faith during the recent baseball meetings in Hawaii by disclosing the owners' side of the current negotiations between the clubs and the Players Association. Marvin Miller, executive director of the association, accused the commissioner on Thursday of breaking a "gentleman's agreement" not to disclose information on the progress of the talks.

Kuhn said, "I have been assured by Joe Cronin, American League president, Chub Feeney, president of the National League and John Gaherin, the clubs' negotiator, that there was no such agreement or understanding.

"In announcing the clubs' proposal at the Hawaiian meetings on Nov. 29, I commended the players and clubs for their diligent efforts to find a solution and stated that it was clear that the attitude on both sides was constructive," continued Kuhn. "I stated that I was and I continued to be hopeful that a solution would be found.

"Mister Miller expressed himself as anxious to resume negotiations and I urge the association and the clubs to meet promptly and to continue in a determined effort to conclude an agreement at the earliest possible time."

CINCINNATI — Doctors said that Cincinnati Reds' catcher Johnny Bench was to enter Christ Hospital today and undergo surgery Monday to remove a spot from his lung.

Team physician Dr. George Ballou said additional tests on the National League's Most Valuable Player were completed Friday and "no new additional diagnosis has been made."

Ballou said that after consultation with Dr. Luis Gonzalez, the local surgeon who will perform the operation, it was decided to put Bench in the hospital today to prepare for surgery.

Gonzalez had indicated earlier in the week that the spot could be either a benign lesion or possibly a fungus, but no malignancy was indicated in the diagnosis.

the Trojans got 31 free throws. They made just 14, but Novato was only 4 of 9, missing four straight clutch shots near the end.

San Rafael (3-2) unveiled a suffocating defense which held Napa (0-5) to nine field goals. Forward Guy Perry played an outstanding game for the Bulldogs, scoring 16 points, capturing 17 rebounds and holding Napa star Drew Aguilar to seven points. The game was not as close as the final score makes it seem — San Rafael led after three quarters, 50-29.

San Marin (4-1) got 19 points from Larry Butti and 16 from Fred Doar, but needed a bucket from Hoza Wright with 1:49 left to finally take the lead in its see-saw game with Terra Linda (3-3). Mark Lowey scored 16 and Nick Mattos 15 for the Trojans.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Long Beach Wins; Cable Car Title Game Tonight

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Long Beach State 49ers go panning for prize daffodils tonight, but a bunch of pesky loggers want to jump their claim.

Long Beach's nationally sixth-rated cagers flattened Portland State 102-66 Friday night in the first round of the Daffodil Classic at Tacoma, but tonight's finals won't be so easy.

They'll have to contend with the Puget Sound Loggers, who are trying for number one in the small college ranks just as the 49ers are in the big time. The Loggers, playing on their home turf, showed they were ready with a 67-44 crushing of Montana.

The University of Washington finds itself in a similar situation. The Huskies looked like the Pacific Seven's best (UCLA is in a league by itself) with a 68-56 win over Seattle.

The Huskies, 4-0, have to battle unbeaten Seattle Pacific, another small college terror, tonight.

In other tourney action, USF survived a furious LaSalle comeback to win 72-71 behind Phil Smith's 20 points. The Dons will battle Duke in the finals tonight of the Cable Car Classic at Oakland. Duke edged Santa Clara in a mild 69-65 upset.

California got 23 points and a dozen rebounds from its fine forward, John Coughran, to take Nebraska 75-50 at the Mountaineer Classic at Morgantown, W.Va. The Bears battle host West Virginia tonight.

Washington State finally won under new coach George Raveling with a 74-65 triumph over San Jose State.

Three Far Western Conference teams had surprisingly good nights, considering that the conference in the past has not made much of a splash in the cage swim.

Sacramento State took the 77-65 verdict at Idaho behind a 25-point burst by Bruce Green. Chico State meanwhile roared 114-67 at Oregon Tech and Marvin Buckley's 27 points led Nevada Reno to an 84-80 win at Fresno State.

There were record and near record performances elsewhere. Pinky Smith's school record 40 points led San Diego University past Southern California College 93-56. Raymond Lewis tied a 22-year-old record by scoring 28 points in the first half and his game total of 40 led Los Angeles State past San Francisco State 101-79. Other scores: Westmont 78

Hayward State 62, Pasadena 69 Redlands 59, Azusa 74 Pomona-Pitzer 63, Cal Baptist 87 Claremont 66, Western Washington 78 Eastern Montana 72, Hawaii 87 Pacific Lutheran 62, Cal State Sonoma 76 Eastern Oregon 69, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 99 Cal Lutheran 84, Dixie (Utah) 81 Imperial Valley 68.

Sonoma Ties 2-Year Total For Victories

California State College, Sonoma, equalled its basketball victory output of the past two years last night in San Luis Obispo with a 76-69 win over Eastern Oregon College in the opening game of the Cal Poly Tournament.

Tonight the Cossacks, who are now 3-0 for the year, will meet the winner of last night's game between Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, and Cal Lutheran for the championship.

"We should have won by 30 points," according to Joel Spear, Sonoma sports information director. "We just got sloppy. We're not pleased with the game, but it's win number three, and that's what counts."

The Cossacks had built up a 19-point lead with less than eight minutes left to play when Eastern Oregon rallied to cut the lead to five points with two minutes left in the game; but baskets by Steve Tiedeman and Dan Heien put the Cossacks comfortably ahead.

Tiedeman and Heien were the scoring leaders for the game with 28 and 16 points. Overall it was a fair shooting performance for Sonoma as it hit 44 per cent of its field goal attempts and 75 per cent from the line.

Cal State, Sonoma	38	41	— 79

Fan Loses Ticket Suit Versus NFL

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. District Court judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. yesterday granted a summary judgment in favor of the National Football League and Commissioner Pete Rozelle in a class action suit involving ticket sales to professional football games.

The suit, similar to 22 others against eight professional sports teams, was brought by Leo T. Pfieffer, naming the New England Patriots as well as the NFL and Rozelle.

Pfieffer asked triple damages totalling $15 million from the three parties.

The Patriots won a summary judgment in their case from Garrity November 6.

In the suit, Pfieffer argued against the package sale of tickets to Patriot football games. He said tickets should be sold on a game-by-game basis.

The Patriots, like most professional football teams, sell tickets in packages which include preseason exhibition games.

Similar suits are pending against the Buffalo Bills, Minnesota Vikings, Detroit Lions, Dallas Cowboys, New Orleans Saints and San Francisco 49ers of the NFL; the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, and the New York Knicks of the National Basketball Association.

Steelers May Lose 'Nice Guy' Image

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

For 39 seasons the Pittsburgh Steelers have been sort of like the "nice guys" of the National Football League. Not that they've always finished last. But they've never finished first.

Tomorrow — and with a little bit of help from Cincinnati today — the Steelers can finally achieve that goal, a championship, mainly the American Football Conference Central Division crown. Pittsburgh has to beat Houston and the Bengals have to defeat Cleveland to make the Steeler dream come true.

Then there's Green Bay, hardly a stranger to championships but a preseason pick this year to be a bystander to the National Football Conference Central brawl between Minnesota and Detroit.

The Packers, at 8-4, hold a one-game lead over the Vikings and Lions. But, unlike the Steelers and Falcons, Green Bay needs no help to clinch its division. A victory over Minnesota will wrap it up. Even if the Packers and Lions finish tied for the lead at the end of the season, Green Bay would get the title by virtue of its two victories over Detroit.

In today's other game, the Dallas Cowboys, needing a victory to lock up the NFC "wild card" berth, host the Washington Redskins.

Sunday's other games have Miami against the Giants in New York, Detroit at Buffalo, Chicago at Philadelphia, San Diego at Denver, Baltimore at Kansas City and New England at New Orleans. And on Monday night, the New York Jets face the Raiders in Oakland.

Cleveland is still in the AFC Central championship race but even a loss wouldn't be fatal, since they'd still have a shot at the conference wild card slot.

Miami, by winning, would not only knock the Giants out of playoff contention but would become the fifth team in NFL history to win 13 games in a season.

What it all comes down to is that, going into this next-to-last week of regular-season play, 15 of the league's 26 teams are still in the chase for Super Bowl VII. Washington, Miami and Oakland have wrapped up divisional championships, but for the remaining 12, it's still a scramble for the remaining five playoff berths.

Rancho Cotate Tops Petaluma In Wrestling

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park yesterday beat Petaluma High's wrestling team for the second time this week 52-7.

The Cougars completely dominated the Trojans, losing only the 145-pound class and drawing in the 103 and 154-pound divisions.

The results:

95 — Rich Sanchez (RC), pin; 103 — draw Tim Parnell (RC) and Greg Yoshioka; 112 — Jay Groepel (RC), pin; 120 — Harry Buerer (RC), pin; 127 — Dave Hubley (RC), decision 4-0; 133 — Russ Otten (RC), pin; 138 — Bruce Stuckey (RC), decision 3-2; 145 — Walker (P), decision 6-0; 154 — draw Sam Wenger (RC) and Bob Yamasaki; 165 — Gary Malone (RC), decision 6-2; 175 — Dave Codiroli (RC), decision 5-0; 191 — Rob Decker (RC), pin; heavyweight — Steve Mattern (RC), pin.

ART REVIEW

Cuban-Born Artist Has Style

By ADA GARFINKEL

It is only rarely that an artist is born with the mature, natural drawing talent of Eduardo Arderi, whose one-man show of 38 drawings and prints are currently on view at the Aragorn Gallery in Larkspur.

The 28-year-old Cuban-born artist started to draw fluently at age 5. He drew consistently for two years, greatly influenced by the strong Afro-Cuban and South American Indian cultures, and the lush vegetation of his environment.

Then came a 20-year hiatus during which Arderi did no drawing at all. This was due in part to the political upheaval, and because his parents wanted him to become a physician — and in Cuban families one does what the parents want.

However, in the hectic period of 1964, straining at the lack of personal expression, young Arderi left college in Havana and departed for Jamaica. Here he applied for and received a visa to stay with some Cuban countrymen in New Jersey, where he got a job in a handbag factory and studied English in the evenings in a nearby high school. In return, he had to serve two years in the American Army, from which he came out a sergeant.

Although still at sea about himself and his own directions, he was by this time more fluent in his adopted language and for the first time he met American friends — artists and writers. Suddenly, in 1968, he seems to have found himself. He began to draw again with an incredible production and soon had his first one-man show.

The drawings were all in black and white. The financial success of the show enabled Arderi to come to California to savor the warmer climate he desired. Landing in Marin was pure chance — a friend of a friend lived in Corte Madera. Arderi had no idea how fertile Marin is, either artistically or naturally. And it is only since his arrival in this area that color has come into his work.

Arderi's early Afro-Cuban and Indian influences are still very strong in his work. He uses only fine-line pens with which he constructs his sinuously flowing arabesques, stylized foliage, sea-shells and underwater life, philosophical concepts, and visual memorabilia.

The artist's delight in being able freely to vent his personal feelings are expressed in works with such lengthy titles as: "Lament for a Dead Love/or the Autobiography of the Artist in Limbo."

At times he over-all, tatoo-like designs with which he covers the entire anatomy of his figures are almost compulsive, but so perfectly controlled as to be hypnotic. Yet there is kindness and compassion, sensitivity and perception in everything he does. Humor supports his fantastic imagination in the anthropomorphized "The Contemplation of the Queen Bee", and his social concerns are expressed in several Third World drawings.

And despite his lengthy, flowery titles and ornate drawing, Arderi is also of a mechanistic turn of mind with clocks and wheels and various mechanical elements nestling as continuous design units in his stream-of-conscious works of art.

Interspersed with his religious and natural imagery, astrological symbols, erotica, fantasy and real events and places, Arderi's world is about everything that has ever happened to him — and sometimes to everyone else — throughout all of time.

The exhibit may be viewed from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, through December. The Aragorn Gallery is at 260 Magnolia Street, Larkspur.

COLLEGE CONCERT IN IGNACIO

Both musicians have studied and performed in Europe and this country extensively. The concert will include works by Beethoven, Handel, Schumann, Debussy and Brahms.

Concert To Spotlight Yule Music

The second annual "Thinking Man's" pops concert will be presented in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m.

The College Philharmonic and Chorus will use a Christmas theme for the performance. David Sloss of San Rafael will direct.

Music will include Vivaldi's "Gloria," Beethoven's "Eggmont Overture" and Tchaikovsky's Christmas perennial "Nutcracker Suite."

Children in the audience will be invited to improvise dances to the "Nutcracker." Hot mulled cider, coffee and cookies will be served during intermission.

Musicians at intermission will also demonstrate musical instruments for children.

Reservations may be made by contacting the Office of Continuing Education and Instructional Services.

AT THE RAFAEL

A suspense thriller doublebill is currently playing at the Rafael Theater in San Rafael. Patty Duke and Richard Thomas are shown in a scene from "You'll Like My Mother." The companion feature is "Groundstar Conspiracy" with George Peppard.

Reagan Will Light Tree Wednesday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The holiday season will be officially opened next week at the Capitol when Gov. Ronald Reagan lights a Christmas tree outside the golden-domed building.

The governor's office announced yesterday that Reagan will speak Wednesday at a Christmas carol program in the Capitol rotunda and then will preside at a lighting ceremony at a tree near the north steps of the building.

Later Wednesday afternoon, Reagan's staff will have a Christmas party in the governor's council room. Reagan's office said members of the Capitol press corps were invited to the party.

On Monday, Reagan will make a speech before the American Federation Convention in Los Angeles. He will address the Sacramento Rotary Club Thursday.

Mill Valley Hires Attorney For Advice On Shelter Ridge

In an attempt to avoid a conflict of interest, the City of Mill Valley has hired Tiburon's deputy city attorney, Richard H. Breiner, to offer legal advice on the controversial Shelter Ridge development.

Breiner will substitute for City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, who is employed by the developers of the project.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham announced yesterday that Breiner, 37, would be paid by the hour, rather than by a flat retainer fee.

The city council unanimously agreed Monday night to hire another city attorney in Marin County to pinch hit for Jordan, who currently represents developers Warner Odenthal and Eugene Harter in litigation over the Madera Del Presidio development in Corte Madera.

Breiner, a partner in the San Rafael law firm of Conn, Breiner, Birkie and Pagghianti, has served as deputy city attorney in Tiburon since 1965.

The city council recently was asked to revoke permits issued to the developers of Shelter Ridge to grade 83 home sites and an extension of Seaver Drive.

Breiner will be asked to advise the council on the legality of revoking those permits, in light of recent action by the state Legislature affecting the requirements for environmental impact statements.

Sausalito Man Admits Arson

A Sausalito man has admitted in Marin Superior Court that he set fire to his former home in Bolinas.

The admission by 28-year-old Charles K. Post was part of a plea bargain with Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, who promised to give him no more than six months in jail on the felony arson count. Sentencing was set for Wednesday.

Post, a former Bolinas volunteer fireman, was arrested Sept. 16 in Petaluma after a chase at 80 miles an hour. Two hours earlier he set fire to the 19th century Victorian home, which suffered $25,000 damage before firemen could douse the blaze.

Tokyo Land Sale Sets Price Mark

TOKYO (UPI) — A parcel of land in downtown Tokyo is changing hands at a price of $1,090 per square foot, believed to be the highest ever paid for land in Tokyo.

Mitsubishi Real Estate Co. Friday outbid 14 competitors to buy the 34-year-old building housing the Japan Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) near the Imperial Hotel.

Brownout Threatens That 'Better Life'

IT MUST BE 20 years since PG & E electric power customers suffered through the great post-war brownout.

It started insidiously. Electric clocks were discovered to be running slower than wind-ups. As it turned out electric clocks lost one minute per hour. Electric alarm clocks went off late. Many people were late to work. Some didn't know it, because the clocks at the shop ere electric, too.

Electric ovens took longer to reach desired temperatures. Homemakers found it taking longer to get dinner ready, mysteriously.

When the mystery was unveiled, it was simple. Consumption of electirc power had increased faster than PG & E's ability to produce it. During the war consumption had not risen greatly. Wartime controls limited PG & E's ability to expand its generating capacity. The post-war surge in consumption threatened to outstrip the supply of electrical energy.

PG & E engineers calculated that dropping from 60 cycle to 59 or 58 cycle alternating current, generating capacity could be stretched. And so it was.

But electric clocks ran slower, ovens took longer to bake, and electric heaters just didn't put out as much heat.

Before PG & E could catch up with demand, it was necessary to institute controls. Electric signs were among the items affected. Shopping areas were dark and dismal at night.

In short, the quality of life declined, until PG & E could expand its generating facilities and meet the demand once more.

LAST WEEK Michael McCloskey, executive director of the Sierra Club, told the press of California that one way to limit growth in the state is to put a lid on the expansion of electric power generating capacity.

We should, he said, be less dependent on electric lighting and air conditioning. He advocated building office buildings with more windows to take advantage of natural light. But he criticized the use of too much glass in new office buildings because over-glassed buildings require excessive amounts of energy for heating and cooling.

If you find this contradictory, so did many of his listeners at the annual conference of the California Press Association in San Francisco.

If you just reduce the growth rate of PG & E generating capacity, he said, somehow the rate of growth in power consumption will adjust to the supply of electric power.

McCloskey must either be too young or too recent an immigrant to California to remember what actually happened during the great post-war brownout.

No thanks, we don't want to go through that mess again.

AT THE SAME California Press Association meeting, J.P. Vukasin Jr., immediate past chairman of the California Public Utilities Commission, predicted, in effect, that we will go through it again — in the mid 1970s.

The mid-point of the 1970s, remember, is only about two years away.

What Vukasin said was this. The demand for both electrical and fossil fuel energy is rising steadily. As we expand industrial and agricultural production, to provide more jobs, energy needs increase. As we provide more and better housing, energy needs increase.

At the same time, the controls on PG & E expansion become more restrictive.

It is inevitable that California will face an "energy crunch" in the next couple of years, Vukasin believes.

His recitation of the factors involved lead one to conclude his prediction is probably corrent.

WE GOT A foretaste of it earlier this week during the abnormally cold weather.

On cold mornings and cold evenings, the residential use of PG & E gas for heating raised consumption levels beyond PG & E's supply. PG & E simply exercised its right to cut off the supply of some industrial customers. They had to use alternate sources of energy or close down till the cold spell was over.

Vukasin advised the press last week that the California Public Utilities Commission is sufficiently concerned about the threat of energy shortage to have begun steps toward dealing with it when it happens.

The commissioners have directed their staff to study how the feared "crunch" will be dealt with. In short, they will try to determine whose power is shut off first when there isn't enough to go around.

If the goal of the great contemporary conservation-ecology movement is genuinely to improve the quality of life, the movement needs to take care lest it brings us to cold showers, cold breakfasts, and evening reading by candlelight.

Sunshine-Sequined County

Have you noticed how shiny and sparkling the Marin countryside seems when the sun comes out after a rain? Not only is the dust settled and the air washed, little beads of water hang on trees and bushes and catch and reflect the light like a million sequins. Marin is at its best in the post-rain sunshine.

Bouquet And Brickbats

BRICKBAT to the Marin County Board of Supervisors nor using the threat to withhold state and federal road funds as a means of blackmailing cities planning redevelopment programs.

TODAY'S WORLD

"If Nixon is seeking ways to curb spending habits for '73, tell it to your congressman, not me."

BOUQUET to the Novato Chamber of Commerce for its Christmas window painting contest for junior and senior high school students.

BRICKBAT to the California Department of Motor Vehicles for its delays in delivering new and replacement driver licenses. The claim that the delay is caused by changing to colored photos and plastic license encasements just doesn't wash.

If the San Rafael City Council doesn't fill its vacancy without having to go to a special election, we'll have to give it a brickbat too.

Anti-Fluoridationist Disturbed By Result

Recently a well intentioned, but apparently misinformed, person compared taking fluoride tablets with "pill popping." Nothing could be farther from the truth.

The fluoride pills and fluoride drops that sincere parents give their children are on prescription, and only a careless thinker would fail to understand the difference between using a physician's prescription and illegal drug abuse.

I think it is a serious moral compromise for us to give our children a recognized prescription drug via the public drinking water. Putting the prescription drug, fluoride, in the public water supply is drug abuse on a grand scale.

Without a physician's supervision, the known side effects of fluorides at 1 ppm could take a long time to identify and lots of money could be spent on physicians trying to track down the cause of a fluoride-induced illness.

Educational Leader Needed Better Room

Brickbats to Mary Leydecker and her article published Nov. 21 regarding the furnishing of Dr. Sheppard's office at Tam. Her article and the accompanying picture gave the impression of a spacious room which had been refurnished. This is not true. The room contained two long tables and several chairs, hardly the kind of furniture for a functioning office.

The room is a narrow rectangle, 9 by 24 feet, with a 9-foot ceiling. . . When a few people meet in the room and close the door for privacy, the atmosphere quickly becomes stuffy and unpleasant, not conducive to productive work. I'm sure you would never accept that sort of working conditions. Hence the need for some kind of air circulating mechanism, which was overshadowed by the snide reference to "cool Mill Valley" by Mrs. Leydecker.

And brickbats to you, Mr. Editor, for tossing the brickbat at Dr. Sheppard for having the "arrogance" to request furnishings. Furniture had to be obtained and there was none available in the district which could have been considered as correct for the office of a top official at the school. The furniture which was installed has made the narrow room usable by groups of people in a manner not possible with conventional desks and chairs. . . Also, Dr. Sheppard has invited any member of the Tam staff to use his office for meetings whenever he is not using it.

Perhaps you could earn a bouquet if you directed your reporters to draw a true picture of the need for new buildings to replace "decaying Tamalpais High School" (Mrs. Leydecker's words) instead of criticizing an effort to make what there is more efficient. The Tam staff should receive large bouquets for working and teaching in conditions which are barely adequate and certainly inefficient.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Isn't that just like a man! President Nixon's idea of housekeeping was to put off cleaning house until the four-year lease at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue got renewed.

They say a new broom sweeps clean, but Dick is determined to demonstrate what an old rake can do.

Among those who don't approve of rearranging the cabinet are the ones who might be put on the shelf.

Instead of throwing out all the old crocks, Dick will just shift most of 'em from one corner to another.

When it comes to cleaning house, bureaucrats react like husbands. They're resigned.

It's A New Pack Of Trouble Packing Carry-On Flight Bag

WASHINGTON — Most of the airlines are now searching carry-on luggage in order to thwart hijackings. This is a very commendable practice, but it leads to some embarrassing situations.

In the past you never had to give much thought to what you packed in your hand suitcase. But now that strangers can plow through your personal effects, you have to change your whole style of traveling.

Some people don't care what an airline employe or federal marshal thinks when he zips open your luggage. But I'm not one of them. I get nervous as soon as my flight is announced.

FOR ONE THING, I get terribly embarrassed about anyone seeing dirty laundry in my bag. I'll stay over at a hotel an extra day and have my laundry done just so I won't be humiliated at the check-in gate.

While this takes up a lot of extra time, several federal marshals have complimented me on the whiteness of my shirts and the neatness of my underwear.

I spent a lot of time thinking about what books to carry in my bags in the past. Before the new anti-hijacking rules went into effect, I would always buy a Mickey Spillane paperback with a sexy cover at the airport. And I was never without a copy of Playboy.

But now I have to think about what books and maggzines the marshals would approve of.

I live in deathly fear that some federal marshal is going to find a copy of "Candy" in my personal effects and yell out, "Hey, Harry, we got a poyvert on this flight!"

So now I limit all the reading matter in my baggage to the Spech of George Romney and old copies of the Reader's Digest.

I AM EVEN NERVOUS about my toilet articles, particulgrly if a woman is inspecting my baggage. I never know if I'm using the right deohorant or carrying the right after-shave lotion.

Recently I offered a lady marshal who looked like Arlene Francis an antacid tablet and she scornfully produced one of her own which was half as large but contained twice the number of ingredients.

It's amazing how innocent pople feel guilty when someone goes through their luggage. This is particularly true of women who have to open up their handbags. I takes my wife two hours to get her handbag just right when she's going on an airplane trip. Then afterward she's never sure if it contained the right things.

IF I HAVE ANY objection to being searched at the airport, it is the impersonal way it's being done.

Usually the marshalls search your bag and then wave you through. I think it would add much more zest and fun to it if they would each carry a piece of chalk and grade you on the outside of your bag on your packing. Those who got "A" would be given the first choice of seats. Those who received an "F" would hav to repack and take the next plane.

It really galls me when I spend so much time on my hand luggage to get the same treatment as someone who just threw his dirty clothes into the bag as if he didn't give a damn.

New York May Be Bankrupt, But Treasures Fill Its Stores

NEW YORK — 'Tis the season to be joyful, in the words of one of those all-too-frequent carols. If spending money as though it were about to go out of style is any sign, this is the joyfulest place in the world. What promises to be one of the biggest Christmas Shopping sprees in many a year is off to a late start.

In this city, which is the greatest bazaar ever, the shoppers are crowding into the store in such droves as to overwhelm harassed sales people. Customers stand two or three deep to be waited on in Tiffany's, so that this stronghold of elegance on Fifth avenue looks like Macy's basement. As for Macy's basement, well, it's Macy's basement only doubled and redoubled in the Christmas spree.

THE RANGE of what you can buy in the bazaar is measured only by money. Tiffany's has a lovely ring with an emerald-cut diamond at $259,000, and for bargain hunters there is a marquie diamond at $145,000. Way down the scale Tiffany's offers a silver gadget to fasten on your belt to hold your golf tees at $6.50 (engraving $1.50 additional).

Across the avenue is Vancleef and Arpels, where the atmosphere is hushed and the prices of those emeralds and cabochon rubies are discreetly murmured as though it were slightly vulgar to speak of price. Nearby is Harry Winston, diamonds, looking as chaste in a little three-story temple all its own as though it were the Morgan Guaranty Bank.

New York, it has often been said, is a city for the very rich and the very poor. One out of every six individuals is on relief despite strenuous efforts of the city to cut down the burden. You would never know this in the glittering center with Christmas decorations festooned on every store front.

It is all here in this bazaar of bazaars for anyone with the wherewithal and the discriminating taste for the rare and the exotic.

You can buy pre-columbian artifacts, tomb figures, gold ornaments, the precious objects of civilizations long extinct. Further back in history are Greek and Roman fragments or, for that matter, figures virtually intact dug out of the dust of the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome. In the art galleries on 57th street is a range from old masters to the latest far-out contemporary.

At La Vieille Russie are Malachite treasures from the palaces of the grand dukes, the legend has it, in St. Petersburg, or for the really discriminating there is the silver service from the czar's yacht.

THE MAGNET is money. It attracts this fabulous variety of precious objects to a city that seems often on the point of bankruptcy and breakdown. The transcendence of America's economic power is still focused on this troubled city which has just seen the completion of Twin Trade Towers, the tallest in the world, at the tip of lower Manhattan.

For all the crime so shockingly evident, the plague of heroin, for all the scorn heaped by Washington on effete intellectual snobs, New York is the most exciting city in America. The museums, the concert halls, even what is left of the theater and, in particular, off Broadway, offer unparalleled fare.

Down in Wall Street the stock market goes right on up. That mythical thousand-mark barrier in the Dow-Jones average was crossed without a quiver and the climb goes on.

It is the beginning of the Nixon boom, the first fruit of the landslide that set the country on the course of free enterprise hampered as little as possible by government intervention. With the election over, the motor manufacturers got their price increases. So for this joyous season, all is well.

Government-To-Industry Job Switches Draw Skepticism

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The head of the President's reelection campaign, Clark MacGregor, takes a job with an aircraft engine firm fighting an anti-trust suit.

The general counsel of the Food and Drug Administration, William Goodrich, leaves to join a food industry firm and is replaced by Deter Hutt, a personal friend who has been representing industry clients bfore the FDA and now must regulate them.

Clarence Palmby, an assistant Agriculture Secretary, discusses a big wheat deal with Russia only a few days after using as credit references officials of a firm which he eventually joins, and which benefits from the wheat deal.

EVERY YEAR ABOUT 200,000 persons connected with the government quit to go back into private business. Most of the switches occur with little or no notice. But critics charge that what sometimes happens is that an industrial concern simply buys a former government official's influence.

Anyone who has a pipeline to the White House or a key government agency by virtue of his government job can be a valuable asset for a corporation doing business with the government.

Ralph Nader says bluntly that when a former government official takes a job, for example, as a Washington representative for a corporation, he simply is accepting a bribe.

As Nader sees it, government officials eyeing lucrative private jobs can increase their worth to a corporation by the way they influence the policy of an agency, through special treatment they give to some problem involving the corporation.

In some cases, he says, government employes maneuver themselves into certain jobs for the sole purpose of increasing their contacts within the bureaucracy, for use when they return to private industry.

THOSE WHO SEE nothing wrong with the government-industry job switching argue that it is indefensible to assume wrongdoing simply because an influential government official takes a job with an industry which was involved with the government.

According to this argument, the government profits much more than industry might by tapping industry's talent pool to help run the government — that means officials serve for years in government posts at salaries far below what they could command in private industry.

The Justice Department has prosecuted less than a dozen conflict of interest cases in the past five years. But the criminal code is specific about former government employes using their influence.

Former members of the executive branch, for example, cannot appear on behalf of their new boss in any governmental hearing on an issue in which they personally were involved while they were working for the government. There also is a time limit of one year against personal appearances if the issue was under a former official's broad jurisdiction.

But the critics argue that the law is evaded. According to them, the former government official exercises his influence in more subtle ways, such as advising his new firm on the strategy to use to counteract plans he may have devised for a government agency.

IN THE MARKET — Mrs. Virginia Knauer (right), President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, chats with a shopper in a New York supermarket. She thinks she has found the answer on how to find the best buys.

U.S. Consumer Boss Offers Solution To Marketing Woes

NEW YORK (UPI) — A modern supermarket may have as many as nine different brands of pancake mix in 16 sizes with 23 prices. How do you find the best buy?

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, the president's consumer affairs adviser, thinks she's found an answer—shop like a professional who buys in quantity.

She outlined her views in a series of articles distributed to food editors. They're based on talks with food experts, officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, food editors, writers and housewives.

She recommends comparison shopping, using unit pricing if available, or figuring the prices per market unit yourself if the store hasn't posted them.

Mrs. Knauer said a study by a New York bank showed that a shopper who compared prices on 36 basic food items saved more than $11 over the shopper who bought the same items without first comparing prices.

Not everyone has time to comparison shop at two or more stores, but some volunteer organizations and consumer groups are starting to do so for their members, she added.

She warned against using unit pricing alone as a measure of economy. Some products with low unit prices are inferior in quality or quantity to higher priced ones.

For instance, the cost per can of fruits and vegetables is not always a good guide to the cost per serving, because some packers use more water or syrup than others. Mrs. Knauer suggests buying several different brands of a product at one time to compare contents before establishing a buying pattern.

Questioning shoppers in supermarkets, Mrs. Knauer found one woman paying $1.55 per pound for presliced pizza in an aluminum pan when she could have bought an unsliced one without the pan for 75 cents to $1.04 per pound. She found another shopper who saved money by adding sausage to plain pizza instead of buying the ready-made sausage variety.

Some convenience foods are inexpensive time savers and some are not, she said. If a casserole calls for cream of mushroom soup, it's cheaper to open a 15 cent can than it is to spend time and money making the soup from scratch.

But premixed cinnamon sugar costs about five times as much as the homemade variety that can be made in a minute or two from less than three cents worth of bulk sugar and a few cents more of cinnamon.

Some convenience foods don't even save time, she said. One brand of boil-in-bag corn with butter sauce that sells for 53 cents a pound takes 11-15 minutes to cook. Plain frozen corn at less than 40 cents a pound cooks in 2-4 minutes, and a comparable sauce of butter, salt, starch, sugar, cheese and seasonings wouldn't take 15 minutes to prepare.

Her meat buying suggestions included:

Choose on a basis of cost per serving, not cost per pound.

"A relatively high-priced meat with little or no waste may be more economical per serving than a low-priced cut with a great deal of bone, gristle or fat."

Do some of your own meat cutting. A whole round steak bought as a special can be cut along its three natural sections to yield top round for broiling or roasting, bottom round for pot roast and eye of round for pan broiling. It's cheaper than paying three different prices for each cut bought separately.

Remember in buying a beef carcass that cutting loss can add up to 20 to 30 per cent or more. Carcass beef generally yields 25 per cent each of waste, ground beef and stew meat, steaks and roasts.

Poultry is one of the least expensive meats if it's bought whole. But boneless chicken breasts are high-ticket items and even cut-up chickens usually cost more than whole ones.

Mrs. Knauer also recommended buying seasonal specials among fruits and vegetables if you have time to process them for freezing and plenty of home freezer space for storage.

For canned and frozen produce, save money by choosing the style—whole, cut, sliced, diced or pieces—best suited to the way you plan to serve it. Fruit for topping or show calls for the best grades for appearance. But a less expensive cut style is just as good for puddings or other desert mixtures.

Opposition Is Seen In Plan To Overhaul Housing Subsidy

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — Any major effort to overhaul the troubled United States housing subsidy program is likely to face stiff opposition from the home-building and financing industries in the coming months.

In the budget it will submit to Congress in January, the Nixon administration is expected to cut back many domestic social programs, including housing subsidies for lower-income families. Widespread criticism of the rapidly escalating costs of long-term mortgage subsidy payments, high foreclosure rates, and administrative abuses have made these programs prime targets for the budget cutter's axe.

A recent report on the nation's housing goals, submitted to Congress by President Nixon three months ago, stated that interest subsidy programs "are expensive" and do not reach the lowest-income families. Federal outlays for directly subsidized housing, which accounted for more than one million housing starts in the past three years, are estimated to cost $2 billion in the current fiscal year and according to some experts could easily triple over the next five years.

Most of the funds go to help reduce mortgage interest costs to low and middle-income home buyers, as well as to builders who put up low-rent multifamily units.

In a recent speech to a mortage banking group, outgoing HUD Secretary George Romney called for a basic review of the federal role in housing subsidies and suggested that a system of housing allowances might be preferable to the present method of using federal aid mainly to lower the carrying charges on newly built housing.

Although home builders aren't opposed to housing allowances in principle, the industry has serious misgivings about the potential impact of direct cash payments on local housing markets. Permitting families to select their own dwelling with a government check in their hands, a new study commissioned by the National Association of Home-builders argues, would chiefly serve to drive up the price of older units.

Without doing much to expand the available housing allowances, the report says, Washington should make some improvements in the existing subsidy programs, which it calls "basically sound and effective."

Specifically endorsed were the two biggest interest-rate subsidy programs under the 1968 Housing Act, the Section 235 home ownership program and Section 236 rental plan. Apart from public housing, these two programs have been responsible for about half the subsidized housing produced since the 1968 law was passed.

The controversial study, prepared by Real Estate Research Corporation of Chicago, an independent consulting firm, said that the major inadequacies of existing housing programs stemmed mainly from either "poor administration" by the Department of Housing and Urban Development or from the "inherently high risks" of investing capital in housing in blighted neighborhoods.

Responding to critics' charges that subsidy programs cost far more than they should, the 106-page study points out that federal housing programs are compelled to bear a "large excess burden" growing out of serious intercity problems such as drug addiction, crime, and poverty.

This destroys the shelter-oriented effectiveness of such subsidies, the report adds, not because of any inherent deficiencies but "because of society's failure to cope with social problems in more direct ways."

Underscoring what many tax reform advocates have repeatedly stated, the report points out the middle-income Americans receive the biggest handout of all — the federal income tax deduction allowed for mortgage interest payments. In 1966 it left homeowners with $7 billion more than if they had been treated like property owners who do not get the interest benefit.

The report projects the annual budgetary cost of direct housing subsidies at $5 to $8 billion by 1978, but argues that the nation can afford to spend that amount to provide housing for lower-income groups.

The study emphasized that the widely publicized housing foreclosures and and scandals in Detroit, New York City and Philadelphia earlier this year grew out of older, nonsubsidy programs that involved mainly Federal Housing Administration (FHA) insurance.

This is the position taken by the home-building industry, which feels it has been unfairly implicated in the massive foreclosures. Industry leaders maintain that it was not legitimate home-builders but "quick-buck contractors" who failed to make promised repairs on dilapidated housing that subsequently had to be taken over by the government.

Yet the entire home-building industry has been affected by the fallout from scandals. The Department of Housing and Urban Development has tightened up its processing and scrutiny on all housing programs, placed an emphasis on quality above quantity, and reduced the number of subsidized housing starts by more than 100,000 units this year.

New Problem: Hike In Saigon Army Desertions

By DANIEL SOUTHERLAND
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

SAIGON — Desertions from the South Vietnamese army have risen steadily over the past four months, according to well-informed sources.

The sources said the desertions passed the 20,000-per-month mark in August. During the months of July and August, there were more losses through desertions than there were officially announced battle casualties.

For a regular army of some 500,000 men, the desertions have been a heavy drain. The recent "net loss" has been the highest in at least two years.

Some analysts note that in the past there has been an upsurge in desertions following a period of heavy fighting, such as was the case this year. But the analysts had expected that the desertions would drop off in September and October. Instead, they have stayed at a high level.

One explanation provided by South Vietnamese officers is that all the talk of an impending cease-fire has encouraged men to drop out of the army. No one wants to be the last man killed just before a cease-fire, officers say.

Another factor, they say, has been the "upgrading" of regional force troops to replace losses in regular army units.

Many of these "upgraded" troops joined the regional forces in order to stay close to home. But once they are taken into the regular army, they can be sent far from home. For some, this has been enough of a reason to leave the army.

During the high point of the North Vietnamese offensive, the government also opened the jails and put some chronic draft evaders and other "undesirables" into the army in order to replace losses. It's thought that quite a few of these men, who numbered in the thousands, deserted. But this would hardly be enough of a factor to account for the steady rise in desertions over a period of several months.

American advisers seem to be at a loss to explain the rise. They say that they can only speculate on the causes.

For the moment few South Vietnamese officers appear to be greatly alarmed. Desertions have always been a problem in the South Vietnamese army, officers say. They point out that new recruiting and roundups of draft dodgers have replaced many of the losses suffered during the North Vietnamese offensive.

Few of the deserters become defectors. That is, few of them join the Communist side. If past experience is any indicator, a significant number leave the regular army so that they can return to their homes, where they often end up joining locally based popular and regional force units.

This correspondent met a popular forces soldier in the Mekong Delta who had served, over a period of only two years, in three different kinds of units, including the paratroops and regional forces.

The soldier explained that he didn't like the regional forces company he was with because its commander was constantly beating him. He didn't like the paratroops because they took him too far from home. In the end, he decided that he was better off in his home village.

The "deserter" was given a warm welcome when he returned to his old popular forces platoon.

Despite what strikes some Americans as an almost casual attitude on the part of many South Vietnamese officers, there have been some signs of concern at the top of the Saigon command. The command has sent out a number of communiques concerning desertions recently.

A military committee dealing with the desertion problem had been attended primarily by low-ranking South Vietnamese officers. But at the last meeting of the committee, perhaps thanks to American prodding, top-ranking officers attended.

Although the number of desertions for the month of October was high, the "net loss" figure dropped, apparently because of renewed efforts by the command to round up deserters.

Some South Vietnamese officers are worried that great numbers of soldiers might try to desert just before and after a cease-fire. They are particularly concerned about the Communists' proselyting efforts, which seem to have stepped up lately.

The Liberation Front radio has increased the number of programs directed at officers and men of the army and police, apparently in anticipation of a cease-fire. The main point of many of these programs is that the Communist side will forgive and accept those who were "forced" to fight for the government but who now are willing to lay down their arms.

Whether any significant number among the recent desertions can be attributed to Communist proselyting is not clear at this point.

New Defense Chief-Designate Is A Man Of Many Activities

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
The Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON — Elliot Lee Richardson, 52, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), whom President Nixon has nominated as Secretary of Defense, is a Boston Brahmin who swims in his heated open-air swimming pool before breakfast every day of the year and who runs up the five flights to his (HEW) office taking the stairs two at a time.

In this spirit he has raced through a crowded career to the heights of the United States government's two most difficult managerial jobs:

First, as head of HEW, combining seven intractable agencies with 108,000 employees and a budget of $79 billion.

Now, as head of the Defense Department, combining a Pentagon bureaucracy of 25,000 and four jealous armed services, Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, with a total manpower of 2,360,000, and a budget of $75 billion.

The highlights of Elliott Richardson's rapid progress from law to state government to diplomacy to welfare to the military are these:

After graduating from Harvard and Harvard Law School with cum laude degrees he served as law clerk to two of this country's most distinguished judges: Learned Hand and Felix Frankfurter. Later, in another stage of apprenticeship he worked as an assistant to Senator Leverett Saltonstall.

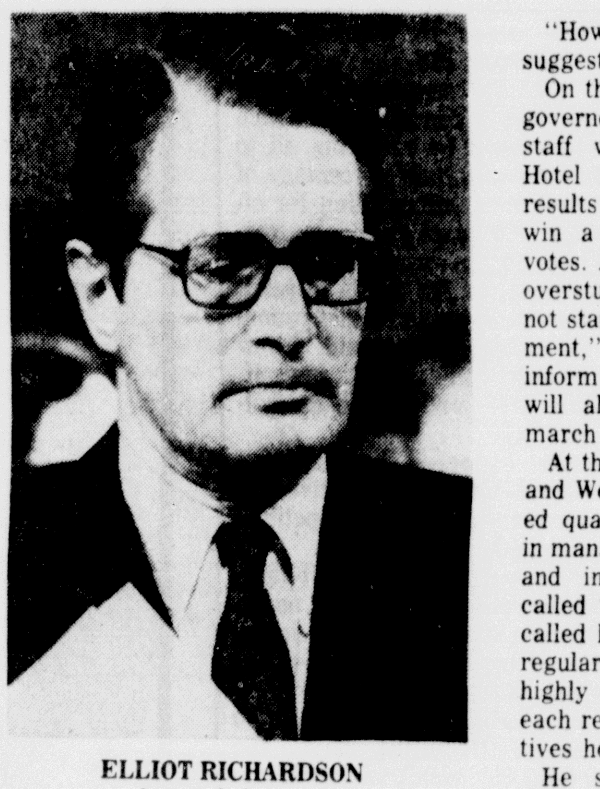
A stint as HEW assistant secretary for legislation preceded his election in 1964 as lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts. In 1966 he was named United States attorney for Massachusetts.

He joined the State Department as undersecretary in the service of Dean Rusk until President Nixon asked him, in June 1970, to take on Health, Education and Welfare.

In between government jobs he worked for and became a partner in the Boston law firm of Roper, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg.

Richardson's father was chief surgeon of Massachusetts General Hospital, and his grandfather held the same post. His two brothers are physicians.

Since his mother died soon after he was born, and his father while he was still a boy, Richardson's maternal uncle, Henry Shattuck, had great influence on young Elliot. Shattuck was for many years sponsor of an industrial school in the north end of Boston. From this the adult Richardson may have derived a sense for the needs of the common man.



ELLIOT RICHARDSON
A crowded career

From his earliest days he was a sportsman: sailing off Cape Cod, scuba diving, fishing.

Although always employed in the most engrossing of tasks, he finds time for everything. In Chicago a few months ago on business he took time to go to an art exhibition. In San Diego he had a moment for the zoo. In Washington he goes to the theater. Last year he managed to take his sons on a vacation with pack mules into the mountains of British Columbia.

He smokes a pipe and an occasional cigar, dresses well but conservatively, in dark business clothes.

Some have found him haughty and reserved in public, but among those he knows well, he is warm and humorous.

Once when he had become attorney general after serving as lieutenant-governor his friends wondered what to call him, given the fact that people usually use the highest title in their past careers.

"How about lieutenent general," he suggested, "or governor general."

On the night he was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts some of his staff were gathered at the Somerset Hotel in Boston. About 6:30 p.m. the results shifted to indicate that he would win a narrow victory of about 30,000 votes. At that moment he stood up on an overstuffed chair and announced: "I am not standing to make a victory announcement," he said coolly, "but rather to inform you that the hotel is one fire. We will all carefully, quietly and quickly march to the exit and go downstairs."

At the department of Health, Education and Welfare Richardson found a dispirited quarrelling bureaucracy. He brought in management experts from government and industry and instituted what he called "management by objectives." He called himself a "results man" and held regular managerial conferences with his highly disparate agency heads, holding each responsible for achieving the objectives he had set.

He said he was not interested in organizational lines, but in "getting the job done". The vast HEW bureaucracy responded, and thousands there are sorry to see him go.

At HEW, Richardson "made the unmanageable manageable." He will face the same sort of challenge at the Pentagon.

There he will need all the qualities that derive from his personal and professional backgrounds. Among the top tasks will be, once again, a problem in organization. Melvin R. Laird, his predecessor, instituted many of the reforms recommended by a blue ribbon panel on reorganization, but ducked the toughest ones, which would have cut down the power of the joint chiefs of staff.

Richardson will find racial problems near the top of his list, especially in the Navy.

The all-volunteer Army will be his to manage and develop, if it can be done. Disarmament and NATO will take him back into internal affairs.

At HEW he played the role of conservative harnessing a team of intractable liberals; at the Pentagon he now probably will appear in the role of liberal among intractable conservatives.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Apollo 17 streaked smoothly through space this week toward it rendezvous with the moon— but not before a heart-stopping "hold" only 30 seconds before the rocket with its three astronauts was scheduled to take off from Cape Kennedy.

With an estimated half-million persons watching from vantage points as far as hundreds away of miles from the cape, and 80 million more viewing the scene on television, the countdown proceeded faultlessly.

Past the one minute mark tension began to mount as spectators braced themselves for the visual and emotional impact of the blastoff.

Then just at 30 seconds before the planned liftoff the unscheduled "hold" went into effect, triggered by an automatic countdown sequence computer, which had detected a faulty electronic circuit.

While spectators watched and wondered, space technicians tackled the problem. Two hours and 40 minutes later Apollo 17 was on the 11th and last of the $25 billion Apollo series that put man on the moon in 1969.

Astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Ronald E. Evans and Harrison Schmitt, never in danger atop the Saturn 5 rocket because of the delay, whooped it up as they sped off toward the moon.

"Hey! there she goes," shouted Cernan. "We've seen it all."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Former President Harry S Truman, battling a serious illness that has weakened his heart and impaired his breathing, was in critical condition at Research Hospital and Medical Center in Kansas City. The 33rd President of the United states rallied somewhat toward the end of the week after the administration of antibiotics but doctors continued to describe his condition as critical.

PARIS — Henry Kissinger met five times with Hanoi diplomats in this week in what may have been the most intense bargaining to end the Vietnam war since the private negotiations began more than three years ago. Optimism flowed from French news media and diplomatic sources that the two sides would announce a ceasefire, but by week's end the fighting raged on in South Vietnam, U.S. aircraft were still bombing in the North and there was no word on a peace pact.

SAIGON — The heaviest fighting in nearly a month raged the length of South Vietnam but bad weather forced a steep cut-back toward the end of the week in U.S. air raids against North Vietnam.

BELFAST — Extra police and army patrols searched the streets of Belfast for religious fanatics believed responsible for more than 100 murders this year. Others sought clues to the whereabouts of the Soviet antitank rockets that have wounded more than 20 soldiers in a week.

MANILA — A knife-wielding would-be assassin attacked the wife of President Ferdinand E. Marcos of the Philippines, inflicting her with severe stab wounds before being shot dead by security men. The attack took place before a nationwide television audience.

Brown Assails Election Spending

By NELS JOHNSON

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
Urges new laws

Declaring that modern-day political campaigns have degenerated into little more than massive spending sprees, California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday urged new laws to minimize the impact of money on the political process.

Brown, the state's chief elections officer and a longtime critic of campaign spending practices, said in San Rafael that the average candidate spends half of his time seeking money. "The main activity of politics is fund-raising. . . there is little discussion of the issues," he declared.

Brown later acknowledged to his audience that he had spent $240,000 in winning his state post.

The 34-year-old son of former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, mentioned as a possible 1974 gubernatorial candidate, spoke on "Money and Politics" before a crowd of about 60 businessmen, civic leaders and educators at the second in a series of seminars at Dominican College called, "Stop the World. I Want to Get On."

Brown decried what he called the degeneration of campaign practices and called for complete disclosure of political fund-raising and expenses.

The first step is complete disclosure. We have to set forth all the facts to see who is giving what money to who," he said.

He said the state disclosure law regarding campaign spending was deficient because it did not require an audit, urged that the amount of a campaign contribution a candidate is required to report be reduced from $500 to $100 and called for a reduction in the use of the committee system of campaign fund-raising.

Brown told the Independent-Journal after his talk he will urge introduction of a bill within several months providing for an audit of campaign expenses.

Brown, noting that about $400 million was spent on political campaigns nationwide in 1970 and that up to $10 million was spent on California ballot measures in last month's election, said campaign efforts should center on precinct work and press conferences. He said that candidates now pay thousands of dollars for 30-second television spots that tell the voter "next to nothing about the candidate or the issues."

The major political parties should raise the bulk of campaign expenses, voters should be given tax credits of up to $10 to be given to the party of their choice and a fair campaign practices commission should be established to evaluate campaign deceptions, he said.

Brown also said the .voters' information pamphlet on ballot measures should be rewritten in "simple English without legal jargon so everyone can understand it."

He also suggested that the number of candidates in a race be limited by requiring all to obtain a certain percentage of signatures before filing for office. "A lot of candidates running for the same office makes it hard for the media to cover the campaign and stifles rational dialogue," he said. "Now anyone can annoint himself, pay a fee and get on the ballot."

He endorsed limiting the number of ballot initiatives by prohibiting payment of petition circulators.

Brown noted that well-bankrolled campaigns aren't necessarily successful. Four initiatives backed by million-dollar war chests in California's recent election were defeated, he said, attributing it to the "growing sophistication of the people."

Brown, elected to his state post in 1970, told a questioner he spent $240,000 during his campaign against a $80,000 expense by his opponent. "It's not cheap to run for office," he said.

Brown said expenses for a serious candidate in a gubernatorial race in California are at least $1.5 million and might run as high as $3 million. He declined comment, however, on whether or not he will be a candidate in 1974.

Charge Of Theft Denied In Court

An 18-year-old Inverness resident has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of taking a sleeping bag, two lanterns and a hammer from a house in Point Reyes Station.

Preliminary hearing for Jule Brand Bogart on the felony burglary count was set for Dec. 19. Bogart is also known as Pettis and Oehlschlager.

Sheriff's deputies arrested him and a 17-year-old from Novato on Monday about four hours after receiving a theft report from Nancy Dougan, who was fixing up the house on the Grossi ranch.

Deputies said they followed tire tracks to a tin shack nearby and found the missing items, valued at $65, and the two teenagers.

The juvenile, whose name was withheld, was turned over to juvenile authorities.

BART Study Panel Picked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate committee yesterday named an independent panel of three electronics experts to study the reliability of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's automatic train control system.

The appointments were announced by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, chairman of the Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, which recently completed lengthy hearings on the computerized system.

Appointed to the panel were William M. Brobeck of Berkeley, director and president of William M. Brobeck Associates; Clarence A. Lovell of Fairfax, Va., a former Bell Telephone engineer; and Dr. Bernard M. Oliver, of Palo Alto, a vice president of research and development at Hewlett-Packard Co.

Suspect In Mistaken Death Holdups Found

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth has been charged with a string of holdups that a 15-year-old high school football star was mistakenly suspected of when he was shot to death by police earlier this week.

Police said Raymond William Smith was booked Friday on eight counts of robbery and two of attempted murder in connection with a series of robberies in which a gang of bandits carrying sawed-off shotguns hit cocktail lounges and beer bars.

Last Sunday night, Raymond E. Brewer was killed by police who mistakenly suspected he and his two fleeing comrades were members of the holdup gang.

Police said Brewer and his companions, all Negroes, ignored an order to halt. The youths were carrying broom handles that the officers thought were sawed-off shotguns, a police spokesman said.

Lt. Hal Taylor said Smith, a Negro, was arrested last week on a traffic warrant and "had been a prime suspect for two weeks" in the series of robberies which occurred in a predominantly black area of north Sacramento.

Taylor said investigators were seeking "four or five" more suspects in the robberies. Two women were shot and injured in the holdups.

The district attorney's office is investigating the shooting death of Brewer, who was a sophomore at Del Norte High School where he was voted "most valuable player".

'Collegiality' Still A Just Word

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Five years ago, the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, assembled in global conclave at the Vatican Council, approved overwhelmingly "the principle of collegiality."

Translated from ecclesiastical jargon, this principle means that all bishops of the church have a right to share in its government and the making of doctrinal decisions. And they have this right, not by sufferance of the Pope, but by the direct authorization of the church's founder, Jesus Christ.

Many expected in that fall of 1967 the principle of collegiality would be the most basic and far-reaching reform accomplished by the Vatican Council. Had it been implemented, it would have led to a great redistribution of power and a much-needed decentralization of authority that for centuries has been tightly held by the Pope — or more accurately, by the papal bureaucracy known as the Curia —in Rome.

But it has not happened.

"Collegiality" remains only a word to which lip service is paid —not a dynamic principle of church government.

Pope Paul pored the basic idea of shared authority when he promulgated his famous decree on contraception without even consulting his fellow bishops. Many of them were shocked —and told him so in private.

Later, the Pope seemed to be carrying out the council's plan for a "senate" of bishops, composed of elected representatives from all national hierarchies, to advise and consult with him on major problems.

The Pope set up such a senate —although he preferred to call it a "synod" —to meet at the Vatican every two years. But it became obvious at the first two synod meetings that Paul VI had no intention of giving power to this body. He balked even at letting the synod choose its own agenda, specifically refusing to permit discussion of certain hot issues such as priestly celibacy.

Whatever credibility might have remained to the "principle of collegiality" is now being deolished. Vatican sources say Paul VI has quietly shelved a plan under which representation bishops chosen by national hierarchies would have joined the College of Cardinals in electing new popes. Cardinal Leo Suenens of Belgium had urged this plan on Paul VI as the best way to give concrete expression to the concept of collegiality.

This latest rebuff to the bishops may give powerful impetus to a movement already underway in some parts of the church to go ahead and make decisions at the diocesan level without asking Rome for permission.

Because it always is done quietly and discreetly, no one knows just how much of this is taking place. But it may be far more widespread than Rome realizes. And if the trend continues, it could lead to a kind of de facto collegiality. Apparently no one, not even a pope, can hold back forever an idea whose time has come.

PROJECT IN BRAZIL

Pentecostal Revival Taking Shape In A Catholic Nation

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — A Pentecostal revival is taking hold in the world's largest Roman Catholic country.

Signs of the Protestant denomination's growth range from storefront-type meeting halls reminiscent of some U.S. urban areas to huge million-dollar "Brazil for Christ" temple going up in Sao Paulo's Pompeia district.

By completion in 1975, it will accommodate 25,000 Pentecostal faithful in what the founder claims will be "the world's largest evangelical church."

"Amen, Jesus!" and "Hallelujah!" punctuate services of "Brazil for Christ," the largest of three main Pentecostal groups here. Its leader is 43-year-old Manuel de Mello.

"Now let's sing that song that's taking hold of Brazil," Mello exhorts from his pulpit.

"We're looking for revival, the power of the Father, the power of the Son, the power of the Holy Ghost!"

The lively Pentecostal services of Brazil for Christ, the Assemblies of God and the Brazil Christian Congregation are filled with hand-clapping and use of musical instruments considered unconventional by more conservative Protestant groups.

Its growth has been so spectacular that Brazil's National Conference of Bishops has undertaken a study to assess the movement's prospects in this vast Catholic nation.

From the poor sugar capitol of Recife in the northeast to this booming industrialized metropolis of 6.5 million inhabitants in the south, the characteristics of the movement remain the same: extreme devotion to "divine will," a belief in God-inspired miraculous cures, the "receiving" of the Holy Spirit and the ability to "speak in tongues" after receiving "the gift of the spirit."

A ridig moral code is common to all.

"One of the main causes of the wide growth of Pentecostal sects in Brazil could be the innate and somewhat primitive religiosity of the Brazilian," says Amaury Castanho, a Catholic priest who edits the Sao Paulo archdiocese newspaper.

"That, combined with the great African influence in his cultural formation, condition his religious behavior and explain the spreading not only of Pentecostalism but of spiritualism and Macumba as well."

In Brazil religion is often diluted with voodoo-like rites of African origin. There is widespread belief in religions brought here by African slaves and known as Macumba, Umbanda and Candomble.

The "Holy Rollers," as they are sometimes called in the United States, began missionary activity 62 years ago in Brazil.

In 1932 — two decades after the first Pentecostal Church opened — a mere 9.5 per cent of all Brazilian Protestants were Pentecostal.

Today an estimated 2 million Brazilian Pentecostals make up 60 per cent of the country's Protestant population.

Concert Of Yule Music At Cathedral

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The 40-voice choir of men and boys of Grace Cathedral will present its annual Christmas concert at 4 p.m. Dec. 17, featuring medieval and traditional carols.

The concert will open with the choir singing from the cathedral's gallery. Included in that music will be the 15th Century "Coventry Carol", "Greensleeves" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

From the chancel of the Cathedral the choir will sing the 12th Century "Verbum Patris Humanatur", "God Rest You Merry" as arranged by the English director David Willcocks and Leo Sowerby's arrangement of the "Gevaert Carol."

At the offertory during the concert the Handel "Concerto VII in B Flat Major" will be performed with John Fenstermaker, choir director, conducting, and Richard Ditewig at the organ.

The concert is open to the public.

A New Form Of Lessons Is Endorsed

DES PLAINES, Ill. — (LC) — A new lectionary for Lutherans in North America, based on the series of scripture readings used by the Roman Catholic church has been approved by the Inter-Lutheran Commission on Worship.

The lectionary — lessons for each Sunday and festival day of the church year — already has the approval of two church bodies participating in the ILCW. The three-year cycle of scripture lessons is scheduled to begin in Advent (December) of next year.

Eight readings from the Apocrypha, a series of books not generally included in Protestant Bibles, were recommended by the ILCW Liturgical Texts committee as alternates for the Old Testament lessons on certain Sundays. However, the ILCW meeting here voted to eliminate the recommended alternate lessons from the apocryphal book.

Instead, the inter-Lutheran commission declared that the apocryphal alternates would be "recorded in the minutes (of the ILCW) and made availabe to those who wish to use them." Lutheran lectionaries have generally not included readings from the books of the Apocrypha; and the Rev. Stanley Schneider of Columbus, Ohio, secretary of the Liturgical Texts committee, said that the recommended alternates were included because "they supported the gospel text for the day."

The ILCW used the Roman Catholic lectionary as a "base" for its deliberations, according to Mr. Schneider, secretary of the ILCW lectionary committee. Newly-revised lectionaries of the Episcopal Church and the Presbyterian churches were also consulted. The new series of lessons is "overwhelmingly" in agreement with the Roman Catholic lectionary, the ILCW was told.

Dr. Eugene Brand, head of the Commission on Worship of the Lutheran Church in America and a member of the ILCW, said that he sees a number of "preaching opportunities" in the new format.

An Appeal Program Is Under Way

Seventh-day Adventist members in Marin have launched the church's 69th World Service Appeal.

Harold M. Keehnel, Marin pastor, said "The purpose of the project is to give local people an opportunity to get acquainted with the worldwide ministry of the church and to contribute toward its support."

During the next three weeks church members will be calling house-to-house to distribute free copies of These Times magazines, which has been especially prepared for the event.

"This will not be a drive for church membership," Keehnel said, "but an effort to help people become better acquainted with us."

In describing some of his church's activities, he said some 165 Adventist college students spent last summer as foreign missionaries on a volunteer basis, assisting in hospitals, youth camps and in construction of schools and churches.

Special Advent Rite At Church

Several guest musicians will join the choir of St. John's Church in Ross for an Advent service of Evensong and choral concert at 7 p.m. tomorrow.

R. Jay Williamson, St. John's organist and choirmaster, will conduct the group in Handel's Chandos Anthem No. 4, "O Sing Unto the Lord," and a Christmas cantata, "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," by J. S. Bach.

The anthem is one of 12 written by Handel for an English nobleman, James of Chandos, between 1717 and 1720 which is little known today.

Sunday's anthem, rescored for four parts, will be performed by the choir, with soloists Kay Collette of San Rafael, Eleanor Prugh of San Anselmo and David Logan of San Francisco.

The more familiar Bach cantata will feature soloists Claudia Siefer of San Rafael, Henry Allnutt of Tiburon and Jeffrey Davis of San Francisco.

A chamber orchestra and organ will accompany the singers.

Musicians will be Carol Phode and Steven Golden, violinists; Pamela Crookston, cellist; Joan Johnson, organist, and Shelley Masinow, oboist.

Concern To Women's Liberation In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — The leader of Mormon women, whose pioneer forebears threw themselves wholeheartedly into the struggle that early in this century won women the right to vote, says the modern extension of that movement sometimes goes too far.

"Anything that gets out of control becomes a hazard, whether it's fire, flood or women's lib," says Belle S. Spafford, president of the worldwide women's auxiliary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"But if properly controlled, these things mean power for us. We've reached the point in women's liberation where we need to look at ourselves objectively and see what we can do that's reasonable. We need a steadying hand."

Asked if it wasn't somewhat paradoxical for the leader of a heritag that took such a vigorous part in the women's suffrage movement to have misgivings about its present-day counterpart, the Salt Lake City resident said in an interview:

"Any good movement can become distorted. You can abuse any privilege and freedom can become license. That's not good."

Mrs. Spafford, a warmly good-humored, silver-haired woman of 77, said she sees dangers in some aspects of women's lib, such as tendencies in it to blur sexual identity and reject distinctive endowments of women and men.

"We want to preserve the nobility, dignity and femininity of women," she said. "There's a danger of some of that being lost. But I think we have too many common-sense women for that to happen."

The 450,000-member body of church women that Mrs. Spafford has headed for 27 years is formally titled the Relief Societies of the Church. It carries on extensive education programs in home-management, child-rearing and cultural development, as well as larg-scale service in nursing care and home teaching visits.

It has taken a "long pull" for women to gain their just status, Mrs. Spafford said, adding that much of the continued effort for women's rights is good, including the insistence on equal pay for equal work.

She said women also shoulh have equal opportunities for top positions in government, industry and education if they are qualified and they're free from other responsibilities.

"But the primary role of women is in the home and family," she added, a conditional note she cited often.

"Men still need wives to welcome them home at the end of the day. Children still need a good mother to come to with their little troubles."

Choir Will Be Feted Tomorrow

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin will mark "choir day" tomorrow with members being honored at a brunch at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

According to Rev. James T. Adams, pastor, the choir is a capella with its music based on the traditional hymns and chants of the Bysantine era.

The choir's first public performance was the Crecian Festival in May. The choir was organized by Jerome Caran of San Rafael.

BAPTIST SEMINARY

Students Raise Funds For Chair

Two student-led pledge days for a proposed Chair of Evangelism at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary brought in almost $6,000 in pledge funds from students, faculty and staff at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary.

Soliciting of funds for the Chair of Evangelism was announced at the seminary earlier this year, but the students' campaign and help was their idea, said Stanton H. Nash, assistant to the president at Golden Gate.

R. Eugene Kishen, master of divinity student from Fresno, is leading a Student Council-appointed committee in helping to raise the funds, for which the students' goal is $10,000. In two recent days, pledges and gifts amounted to $5,885, Kishen said. He added that many other students had indicated to him their intent to pledge in the near future.

Realizing it would be difficult to raise $10,000 among the student body, Kishen, who is pastor of First Baptist Church, Gustine, Merced County, and the student Committee for the Endowment of the Chair of Evangelism enlisted the aid of fellow students in sending out more than 400 personal letters to friends, relatives and anyone who might be willing to help.

"I believe with the response we've had in the number of letters sent out and the pledges made, we'll go over our goal of $10,000," Kishen said.

The initial idea for the student-led drive came from Kishen, who took his suggestion to the Golden Gate Student Association Council. He was immediately put in charge of a committee which Nash said produced some amazing results.

"Kishen told me if the evangelism chair wasn't established before he and his classmates were graduated, he would feel cheated," Nash said.

The students actually began their drive on Nov. 16, 1972, with a memo mailed to all students at the Golden Gate campus. The drive for funds was titled Student Involvement Now. On Nov. 22, committee members spoke in classrooms where they stressed the need for a Chair of Evangelism at the Seminarh.

Kishen said the students' goal is to be met over a three-year period. Many of those contributing have done so on a basis of contributing on a periodic basis, such as monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, or annually, he said.

"Golden Gate is our school, and we should all be willing to support it," Kishen said. An augmented evangelism curriculum and training program is vital to growth and success of God's work among Southern Baptists in California and the West, he added.

Kishen said pledges may be sent to the Public Relations Office, Golden Gate Seminary, Mill Valley, Ca. 94941.

Call For Work Now On Coastline Plan

BURLINGAME (AP) — The state's newly passed coastline initiative, Prop. 20, was described yesterday as "an idea whose time has come," at a joint workshop meeting of representatives of California's 15 coastal counties and 30 cities.

"We are all inhabitants of a fragile environment whether it be a physical one or a political one," Victor Calvo, chairman of the County Supervisors Association of California's Government Operations Committee, told the CSAC and League of California Cities representatives in opening remarks.

"We must either enjoy this complex environment or suffer from the damage we do to it," Calvo said. "Let us look at Prop. 20, let us examine it. It is here."

Calvo was followed by Richard "Bud" Carpenter, executive director and general counsel of the League, who made a technical presentation of the proposition's provisions.

He said that the coastal zone created by the proposition would encompass an area from Oregon to the Mexico border, extending seaward to the limits of California's jurisdiction and inland to the highest elevation of the nearest coastal mountain.

In Los Angeles, Orange, and San Diego counties, however, the boundaries would reach inland to the nearest mountain range or five miles from the mean high-tide line, whichever is closer, Carpenter said.

He said the proposition required creation of a California Coastal Zone Conservation Plan consistent with the following objectives:

The maintenance, restoration and enhancement of the overall quality of the coastline environment, including its aesthetics.

The continued existence of all species of living organisms.

The orderly and balanced utilization of coastal zone resources.

An avoidance of irreversible and irretrievable commitment of coastal resources.

Passed in November, Prop. 20 required creation of six regional commissions and a statewide "Coastal Zone Conservation Commission" to prepare a coastal plan and insure that any development occurring in the coastal zone be consistent with its objectives.

The proposition required that the plan be submitted to the state Legislature by Dec. 1, 1975.

The 12-member statewide commission will include one member from each six regional commissions and six representatives of the public.

The regional commission, varying in membership from 12 to 16 persons, represents 15 counties broken into north coast, north central coast, central coast, south central coast, south coast and San Diego.

Talk Of Gas Rationing To Check Smog

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gas rationing more stringent than that during World War II would cut gas consumption during high smog periods by 86 per cent in six Southern California counties under a federal air plan being considered here, governmental officials said yesterday.

The regional Environmental Protection Agency office said the plan, if approved, would begin in 1975 to seriously curtail motor vehicle transportation in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Riverside, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties from May 1 through Oct. 31 each year.

"We're not wild about gas rationing," said regional EPA spokesman Lou Jefferson. "But from our standpoint, this was the only way to cut hydrocarbons sufficiently to meet federal clean air standards."

Jefferson said the EPA has no plans to use rationing in other parts of California. He said that rationing is being considered in Houston, Tex., but has not been formally proposed there.

The mechanism for rationing has not been worked out, Jefferson added.

The road to approval is expected to be a long and perhaps bumpy one, which will include EPA review at the national level, public hearings and approval by several federal departments.

Although smog problems exist in the San Francisco Bay area and other parts of the state, Jefferson said the EPA found that "the Los Angeles area is a unique situation."

After some modifications, he said, a state clean air plan for most areas met the hydrocarbon standards set by the National Clean Air Act amendments of 1970.

However, the Southern California plan was found unsatisfactory, and it became federal responsibility, Jefferson said.

The federal government has ordered that hydrocarbons be limited .08 parts per million parts of air by 1977, with exceptions permitted only one day each year.

Los Angeles County exceeded the 1977 total on 220 days during 1971.

EPA staff members in San Francisco reportedly have been working 12-hour days to complete the preliminary plan which a U.S. District Court judge has ordered prepared by Jan. 15, at the request of Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The plan, which could be approved by next spring, is designed to prevent 520 tons of hydrocarbons from entering the Southern California atmosphere daily.

The EPA said it expects the rationing to eliminate 198 tons of hydrocarbons daily, since vehicles are responsible for 90 per cent of all smog in Southern California.

The Los Angeles Times reported the remaining 322 tons would be reduced by such means as controlling motor vehicle emissions, trapping industrial emissions and limiting use of certain polluting industrial compounds.

Innocent Plea In Morals Case

A Fairfax man charged with forcing a 9-year-old girl to copulate orally with him, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

Preliminary hearing for Frank Clifford Seewester, 22, is set for Dec. 26.

San Anselmo police arrested him Nov. 18 after linking him to the alleged sexual perversion through a license number supplied by a witness.

Police said that on Nov. 14 the girl on her way home from school was forced into a car at knifepoint and forced to commit the sex act.

Getty Buys Da La Tour For Museum

LONDON (UPI) — The Paul Getty Museum of California bought "the Beggars Brawl" by the 17th Century French artist Georges de la Tour yesterday for $930,600 in a sale at Christie's Auction rooms.

Burton Frederikson, chief curator of the museum, which was founded by U.S. oil millionaire John Paul Getty, said they would apply for an export license immediately. He expects the National Gallery in London to object to the painting leaving Britain.

Frederikson said he will be prepared to sell to the National Gallery, "if we have to," for the same price. He said there is a good chance that the National Gallery will be able to raise the money.

"The Beggars Bowl," measuring 37 by 55-½ inches was sold anonymously after its discovery in a private collection in England about a year ago. Until then it had been attributed to Caravaggio. The picture represents a group of itinerant musicians, two of whom are quarrelling.

It is one of about 34 works that have been identified as by de la Tour. There are only two other works by the artist in England.

New On The Stereo Scene—

By JOHN SUNIER

"Pops" records on the busy A&M label:

MIMI FARINA and Tom Jans — "Take Heart" — A & M SP 4310:

Mimi, one of the Baez girls and widow of the ill-starred folkster and author Richard Farina, now has what seems a very satisfying partner both professionally and personally in folk singer Tom Jans.

The music, mostly their own originals, is a joy in its serenity, level-headedness and pleasant acoustic settings.

Of the 10 tunes, I liked "Letter to Jesus," of the country-religious genre, and "Reach Out," which is dedicated to the Committee's Christopher Ross. For smashing four-channel effect on your rear speakers (if you have them), try "Madman."

Speaking of setting, the cover portrait of the pair looks as though it was taken in Marin's ill-fated Marshall Hotel, where they appeared regularly before the disastrous fire.

ROGER KELLAWAY Cello Quartert — A & M SP 3034:

One of the loveliest musical experiences outside of the classical idiom that I've heard in a long time, but not four celli. Rather piano, cello and rhythm section with a small symphonic group.

Kellaway is a name frequently seen on the music credits of TV programs, and this is his Sunday cutting with fellow creative musicians, including percussionist Emil Richards, whose experiements in time-signatures have received some attention already. His work on the marimba is a vital part of this part-improvised and serene-sounding music, which is close in flavor to the "wide music" efforts of Paul Winter.

THE WINTER Consort — "Road" — A & M SP 4279:

Paul Winter's Consort has in its new LP, taped during live concerts at UCLA, combined an astonishing variety of musical styles and instrumental timbres into another heady mixture of superlative music.

Cello is an important voice in this group as well as Roger Kellaway's. Classical guitar, oboe, English horn, xylophone, and even a V-8 juice-shaker are featured along with Winter's saxophone.

Themes of Bach and Dufay are part of two of the tracks, but most of the album is the work of either cellist David Darling or guitarist Ralph Towner. "Africanus Brasileiras Americanus" is a gem with its musical idioms laid out clearly in its title.

SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '66 — "Stillness" A&M SP 4284; SERGIO MENDES and BRASIL '77 — "Pais Tropical" A&M SP 4315:

Between these two LPs the Mendes group has updated their name by 11 years. A&M had a contest to allow fans to vote on the change, and I guess that approved it. They appear to have acquired an eighth member as well.

The '66 album features first-rate bass flute on the title tune, and some very nice orchestrations behind the group.

As you may know, Brasil '66/77 does not limit itself to Brazilian music — among the highlights of the first LP are "Sometimes in Winter" and "Chelsea Morning." The newer effort is packaged in a charming Rousseau-esque jungle, and seems to have more of an African influence. Gracinha and Karen, besides being fine to look upon, contribute occasional vocals. "After Midnight" is a fine close to the album.

PROCOL HARUM — "Home" A&M SP 4261:

Procol Harum has been one of the top-rated British rock groups ever since their "Whiter Shade of Pale" hit years ago.

A tight, musically responsible quartet revolving around the compositions, voice and keyboard work of talented Gary Brooker, PH has issued a series of fine albums. This one boasts nine cuts, with symbolic-absurdist lyrics that often make a lot of sense: "God's alive inside a movie! Watch the silver screen!" Keith Reid is the non-performing lyric writer. Lead guitarist Robin Trower also turns in two interesting compositions.

TELEVISION NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The 90-minute "Once Upon a Mattress" musical comedy special starring Carol Burnett on CBS Dec. 12 is the second time around for this one-time New York stage success. But this is a new production, this time in color, whereas the 1964 telecast was in black and white. Besides Miss Burnett, Jack Gilford and Jane White were in the original stage presentation and in the 1964 video special.

Shirley Jones, star of ABC's "The Partridge Family" series, has a Bell Records single, "Ain't Love Easy," on the market. The son was introduced on the Nov. 3 episode of the television series.

ABC will have an early 1973 airing of a special starring Marlo Thomas late of the successful "That Girl" series. The show is "How to Be a Woman" which has been written by the husband-wife team of Renee Taylor and Joe Bologna, who wrote Broadway's "Lovers and Strangers" of two seasns ago.

William E. Waste: From Boulder Dam To Giant Shipyard

By JEFF GREER

WILLIAM E. WASTE of Kentfield recalls most vividly the hectic days of World War II, when he headed Marinship shipyard and ship building operations that set new world records. At the age of 75, he still commutes daily to his San Francisco financial district office to work, surrounded by models of ships and photos of yards, as a consultant for Pacific Indemnity Co. and for other Bechtel Corp. interests.

(Independent-Journal photo)

William E. Waste of Kentfield helped make Marin County a maritime power during World War II. In fact, he even changed geography a bit to make sure ships bearing Marin-related names sailed under Allied colors.

But, three decades later, he still considers himself "a member of the commuter club" to San Francisco's financial district, and claims, "I don't know Marin as well as I should."

His business and social associates through the years might dispute the claim as too modest. Waste came to Marin County in 1942 as vice president and general manager of Marinship Corp., subsidiary of W. A. Bechtel Co., a world-wide heavy construction firm.

Under Waste's guidance, Marinship built a 17-million-dollar shipyard on the bay shoreline north of Sausalito. It launched 93 Liberty ships and oil tankers, shattering numerous world shipbuilding records.

WHEN PEACE stilled the riveters' guns, Waste moved into Bechtel's main offices across the Golden Gate Bridge, but he continued to live in Kentfield. Among his dozens of organizational activities, he served as president of the Marin Council, Boy Scouts of America, from 1945 to 1956.

During his tenure, the Marin Council's headquarters was constructed on A Street in San Rafael —"we scrounged materials and help wherever we could, and Harry Albert gave us a substantial cash gift." Waste also served on the scouts'executive committee for the Bay Region.

"I was never a Boy Scout — it didn't come along in time for me. I'm 75," Waste said. "But both my sons are Eagle Scouts."

WASTE AND the Marinship workers had to resort to innocent subterfuge to get Marin names onto ships they were building.

"We wanted to name a ship the Mount Tamalpais," Waste recalled as he pointed out numerous ship models in his tenth-floor office in San Francisco's Industrial Indemnity Building. "But the Navy wouldn't let us. The ships we were building were supposed to be named after rivers or oil fields."

A search of the maps revealed "an unnamed creek running through Kent Woodlands" near Waste's home. He said Marinship officials persuaded geographers to name it Tamalpais Creek — and thus a ship was named for Marin's landmark mountain, more or less.

ANOTHER VESSEL, a tanker, was named the Marin Hills because Waste learned that historians recorded oil seepages near Point Reyes.

Waste's firm changed not only Marin maps, but the looks of Sausalito, too, almost overnight. The city was in the waning days of its importance as a rail center, when suddenly it became a shipyard town.

"Seventy-saven thousand people went through our hiring hall" during the war years, Waste recalled. "We started out with a work force of 20,000, but we streamlined the production line until we only needed 9,000 by the time we were through. It was quite a learning course."

NEARLY AS many women as men worked in the Marinship yards, as welders and laborers, "but not as heavy equipment operators," Waste said. The pride of the yard was the huge cranes that worked in pairs, lifting as much as 100 tons of prefabricated ships into place at a time.

Turning to a picture of Marinship in its heyday, Waste pointed out a shipbuilding innovation he pioneered — huge ramps that ran alongside the ship at deck level, greatly speeding outfitting the vessels. The workers were able to build a complete ship in a record 29 days, he said.

Waste still believes that Marin "missed a real opportunity" to become a major industrial center "if Sausalito had wanted to." But the dismantling of the shipyard was "badly planned and never thought through."

THE OLD MOLDING loft which was intended to be demolished but still is standing "will make a good fire some day," Waste warned.

The abandonment of Northwestern Pacific Railroad lines may be another costly example of "lack of foresight," Waste said.

Marin County's dependence on highways and the Golden Gate Bridge for transportation "has pretty well reached the saturation point," Waste added. "The sad part of it is, there's nothing being done" to really solve the commuter's problems, the industry executive declared.

"I'VE NEVER been a believer in the need for the Golden Gate Bridge District," Waste added. "They thought the ferryboats and the buses were going to divert the cars from downtown San Francisco, but it's bad as ever."

Waste said he believes "Marin County missed its golden opportunity — the Bay Area Rapid Transit District. Marin County had a free ride. The bridge could have had a mile of single track. The load with modern, lightweight rail cars would be peanuts compared to present commuter loads. But they blew it."

"Monkey business" led to the bridge board's decision against trains, Waste charged.

"THE ENGINEERS said the bridge understory could support trains, but they had to answer a lot of loaded questions. The answers they gave were correct, but the questions were biased," he said.

Continued population growth in Marin will merely add to San Francisco congestion during business hours, even though many firms such as Bechtel are moving their office forces out of the city into suburbs, Waste opined. "Most of the big firms may want to put their working forces outside the city, but they want that financial district mailing address for the home office," he explained.

Waste journeys daily to his office, where he is a consultant for Pacific Indemnity and other Bechtel interests. He sees firsthand the problems of the commuter.

THE LONGTIME executive has close ties with the Bay Area. He was born in Berkeley in 1897, the son of the late chief justice of the California Supreme Court, William H. Waste.

He was studying law at the University of California in Berkeley when World War I began. Young Waste went to work in an Alameda shipyard as a rivet passer. He later joined the Army, earned sergeant's stripes and was in officer candidate school at Fort MacArthur near Waco, Tex. ("What a mudhole that was!" he exclaimed) when Armistice Day arrived.

Returning to Berkeley, he switched his studies to economics and business administration. After graduating, he joined a steamship line as office boy — and by 1931 was head of its ship operations and export lumber department.

THAT SAME year he joined the W. A. Bechtel Co. and — in the depths of the depression — was manager of purchasing for the gigantic Boulder Dam project for the Six Companies consortium that included Bechtel.

In 1934 he returned to the Bay Area to head construction of the piers at the Oakland end of the Bay Bridge. He has held an ever higher series of corporate offices, and after World War II was executive vice president of Bechtel Corp. and a director of Industrial Indemnity Co.

Representing Bechtel in the community, he became the first president of the Bay Area Council, which he described as "a sort of industrial Stanford Research Institute," gathering data and offering proposals on Bay Area growth.

HE IS NO longer active with the Bay Area Council, which, he said, "unfortunately has gotten tagged with a chamber of commerce approach."

And Waste has eased out of active directorship in the American Ordinance Assn. — he was its president — as well as the boards of California Taxpayers Assn., the Commonwealth Club, Pacific School of Religion, San Francisco Council of Churches, World Affairs Council, World Trade Club, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations.

He still keeps up his 49-year membership in the San Francisco Kiwanis Club, several Masonic organizations, the Franklin Hospital Foundation Board, the Menninger Foundation board and a score of other organizations.

HE IS AN avid railroad fan and stamp collector. His California Street office is filled with large photos and paintings of now-vanished railroad scenes.

As for hunting, fishing or other avocations, "I have too many interests and not enough time," Waste declared.

"But I do a lot of gardening, and I'm the 'do-it-yourself guy' around the home" at 44 Hill Drive, Kentfield.

From Boulder Dam to a giant shipyard to leaky faucets is quite a range — but William E. Waste has taken it all in stride.

Sausalito Firm Specializes In Our Regional History

By DON KEOWN

From an office building along Sausalito's Bridgeway a young couple from New England is pioneering with something new in book publishing.

From there, at 3030 Bridgeway, where Richard and Dori Gould and their Comstock Editions share space with a boat dealer, realtors, two other publishers and others, comes a steady stream of paperback books of regional interest to western America.

The Goulds are winning their gamble that important books of keen regional interest but not justifying national distribution can be reprinted profitably for local sales only.

Sharing the gamble with the Goulds is another husband-and-wife publishing team, Ian and Betty Ballantine of Ballantine Books Inc., one of the nation's busiest paperback houses and headquartered in New York City.

COMSTOCK Editions has functioned as the western subsidiary of Ballantine since operations began in Sausalito in August, 1970. Thus Ballantine is the only major publishing firm in America to have such a regional affiliate.

New Englanders Richard and Dori met while both were attending the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He began with a career as a doctor of medicine in mind, while she was studying journalism. After college, they worked together in research at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston while she served as an editor of the New England Journal of Medicine.

They were married in 1959. Richard went to work for a department store, setting up its book department "and getting my first really good idea of what the publishing world was like." He liked what he saw, and when New York publisher Dodd, Mead and Co. offered him a job, he accepted. The next two years were spent with various publishers.

"I HAD DECIDED that I really liked books," he says. "They were my thing."

Meanwhile Dori had settled down to the rearing of a family. The Goulds have two children, Timothy, now 9, and Gillian, now 7.

In the course of Richard's work, the Goulds became good friends of Ian and Betty Ballantine. And when the Goulds moved to California, the friendship was deepened rather than weakened by the distance between the two couples.

RICHARD GOULD was then working for Simon & Schuster Inc. and Ballantine was then affiliated with Simon & Schuster. But the Ballantine operation had become so large that it severed the affiliation and became an independent publishing house. And Gould decided to associate himself with Ballantine instead of Simon & Schuster — "it was really a case of choosing a person over a company."

Says Gould: "Over the years we had discussed with the Ballantines our own particular concept of regional publishing. While no major house had tried the idea, we felt that books could succeed without a national distribution if the regional interest was strong enough. And so we sat down, talked it over with the Ballantines, and we all decided to take the gamble."

Dori Gould, no longer a full-time housewife, was in on the discussions and planning from the start.

AND SO COMSTOCK Editions had its beginnings in Sausalito in August, 1970, with Richard Gould as publisher, Dori Gould as editor, and a part-time secretary completing the staff. And with Ballantine becoming the first parent publishing firm with a fledgling regional house as an offspring.

Why did the Goulds choose Sausalito as home base for their Comstock Editions?

The Goulds explained: "We had lived in Sausalito for a time after coming West and before moving to San Anselmo (where they still reside in Sleepy Hollow). And we liked Sausalito

COVER PHOTO

THE CHOICE of the cover art can be all-important in the paperback book publishing business. Dori and Richard Gould of Comstock Editions, Sausalito, make their selections from photographs, sketches, watercolors and oil paintings, both old and newly commissioned, for the western American classic reprints and originals they publish. And thus daughter Gillian, 7, has an "art gallery" of western scenes that she can peruse and dream about the past of a colorful region.

Comstock Editions— The Western Arm Of Ballantine Books

Young Marin Couple Pioneers In Regional Publishing Field

very much. It is such a lovely place.

"And its central location gives us access to San Francisco and to other cities without confining us to a metropolis. Writers, too, find it an easy place to visit."

WHY, THEN, did they decide upon San Anselmo instead of Sausalito for their own residence?"Sausalito is a town for adults only."

Since they opened the doors of their Comstock Editions offices, the Goulds have published 87 books at the rate of about four a month.

"When you consider that more than 400 new paperbacks go onto the newsstands every month, our output isn't really so big," Richard says.

In keeping with their plan to emphasize western classics out of print and give them a new life, the Goulds began with reprints of George Stewart's "Committee of Vigilance" and Don Berry's "Moontrap," the latter an account of early-day life on the Oregon coast.

SINCE THEN the Goulds have included five "originals" receiving their first publication on their lists.

Good originals on western subjects are difficult to find, they say. Generally the idea for the subject for these books has originated with the Goulds, and then they have found an author to execute it. "But," they add, "almost invariably we find that the author has also been thinking about the same or a similar idea, on his own hook."

Maintains Dori Gould: "There is really no such thing as an original idea. They are always in the air, free for the grabbing. And almost always two people will pluck one of those ideas out of the air almost simultaneously, unaware of what the other is doing.

"That is the way it has been with us and the authors of our originals."

WHILE THE Goulds expect to increase the number of original books out of Comstock Editions, they also plan to step up their total production, so that the ratio between reprints and non-reprints will remain basically unchanged.

"We want to keep our commitment to the western classics," they say.

Isn't there the danger that the supply of worthwhile regional classics available for reprint will be exhausted?

"We were fearful of that at first," they reply. "But since we have got involved, it has become apparent that the supply is much larger than we had anticipated. At this time, it is nowhere near happening. We are finding more and more western books of value — and we haven't even started going into original western literature as yet. The few novels we have published have all been reprints."

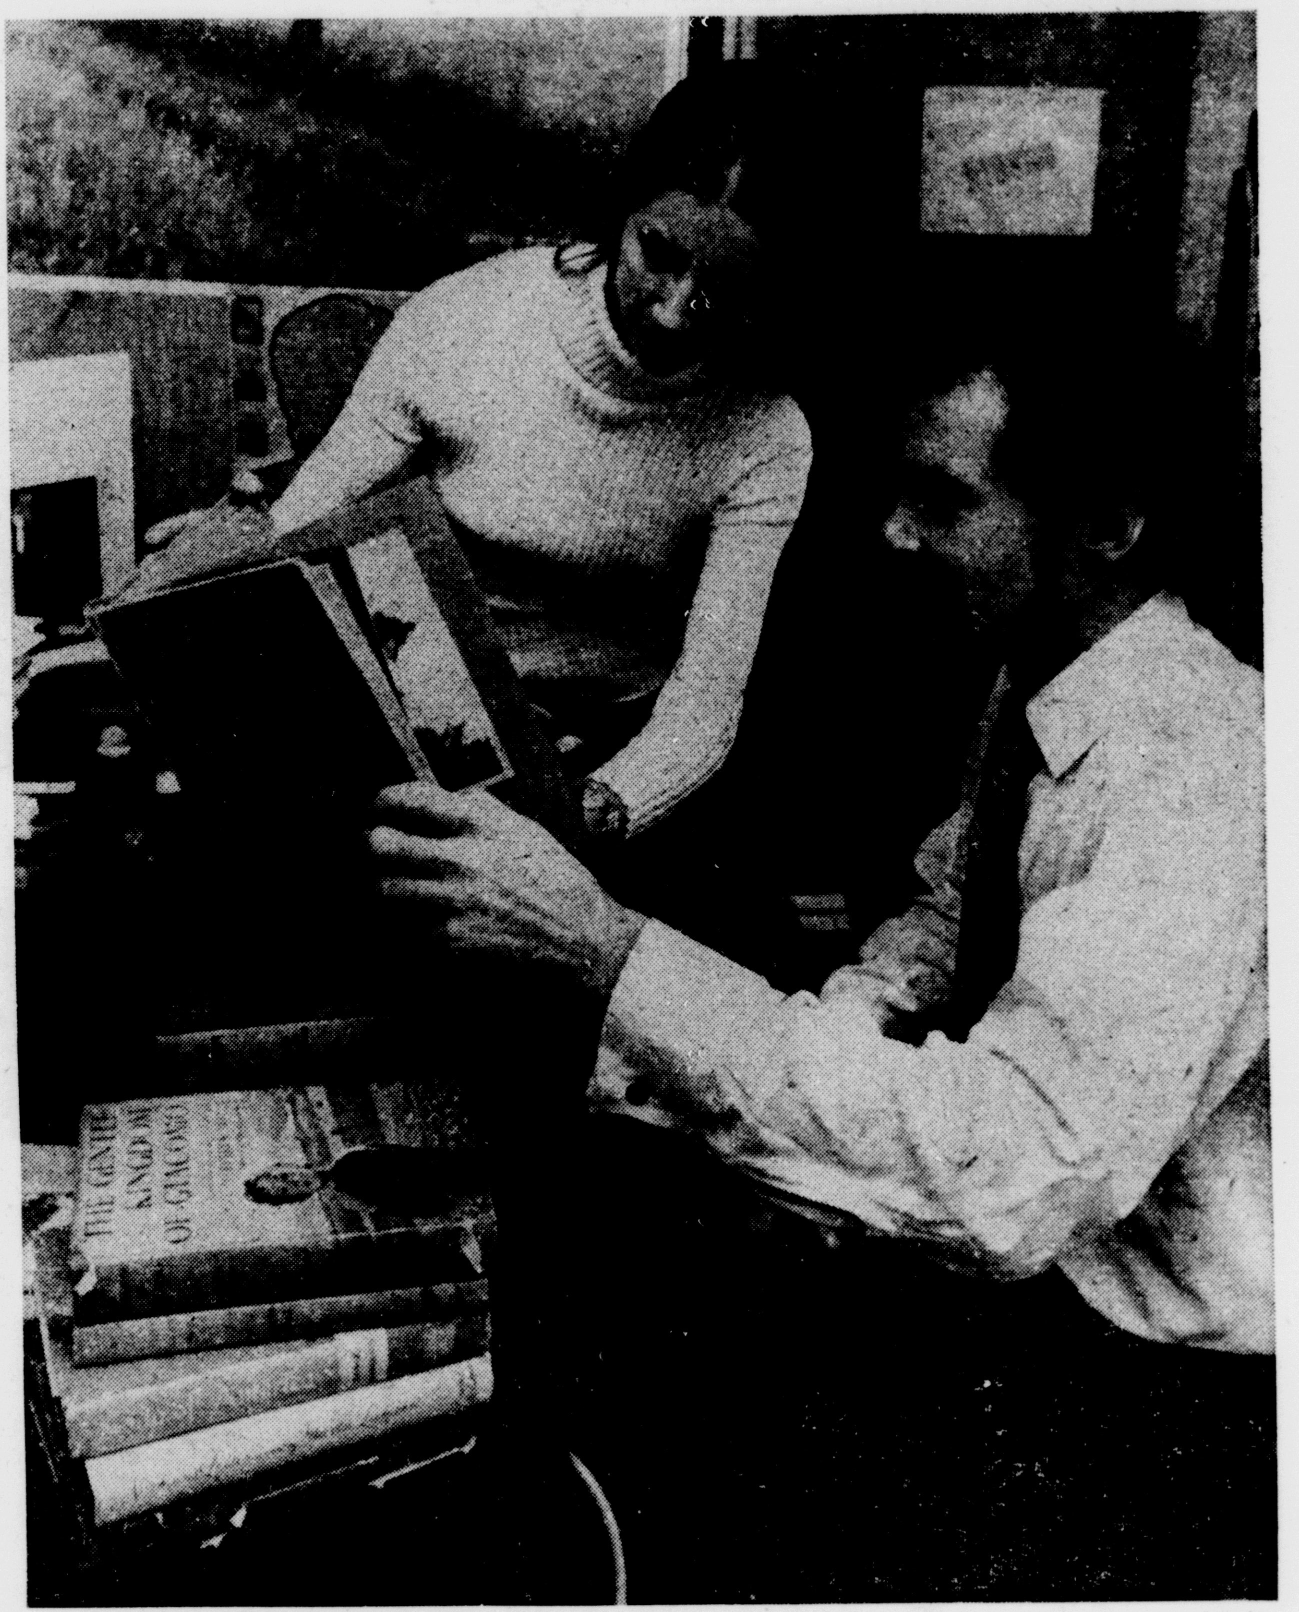
HOW DO THE Goulds find their books for reprinting?

Usually, they say, the first clue comes by word of mouth. "We will hear about a wonderful book, but often it works out that we can't find it anywhere. So we will stay after it, and eventually track it down, through the catalogs, antique shops, used book stores or some such place.

"Then we have to read the book to see if it is really as good as we have been told it was."

If it passes that test, the Goulds then proceed with its production, now reading the book for corrections and annotations.

"WE HAVE abridged only one of the books that we have reprinted. We did that only with the author's permission, and Dori was opposed to it, even then," says Richard. "And she was right. We will never again abridge a book."



PART OF THE JOBS of Richard and Dori Gould as publisher and editor of Comstock Editions, the Sausalito-based subsidiary of Ballantine Books, is to read through stacks of old and often rare books in search of work worthy of reprint, or of ideas for, Comstock originals.

Type for a Comstock Edition is set from the original book or from a Zerox copy of it. "Which means that we sometimes have to destroy a copy of the book, and remember that we are dealing with really rare books, in order to get our copies."

The books are printed offset by a Tennessee printer, W. F. Hall, who specializes in small paperbacks ("there is no one in the West who does") and who has had an extended association with Ballantine.

A MINIMUM printing of a Comstock Editions book is 25,000 copies. "If we can't sell that many, there is no sense in printing."

The covers for the Comstock books come from many sources — sometimes from old watercolors or oils or photographs (the photo used on the cover of Marinite Richard Dillon's "The Hatchet Men" was discovered in a San Francisco second-hand shop). Once a shadow box was used for a cover. Sometimes they are obtained through Ballantine's services in the East — "although we will first let them know exactly what they want, and then approve or have revised a preliminary sketch or painting before they proceed with the final work."

And sometimes the Goulds

NOT YET two and a half years old, Comstock Editions of Sausalito has to date published 87 books and is continuing to issue them at the rate of about four a month. A selection of the titles ranging from "The Saga of the Comstock Lode" to "Flower Drum Song" is shown here. The Richard Goulds, who operate the Ballantine subsidiary, concentrate largely upon reprints of western classics that have gone out of print or are in danger of doing so. But they also, from time to time, publish original books dealing with western American regional subjects.

will deal directly with the artist or photographer.

UNFORTUNATELY, the Goulds say, western American artists do not seem to be doing the kind of work suited to their covers. "They are more into abstract and impressionistic things than realism," they explain.

A good many of the beautiful paintings used by the Goulds for their bookcovers are coming from England where realism is still held in high esteem.

Although most of their books are reprints, the Goulds nevertheless work closely with the authors.

"THEY ARE delighted by the opportunity to again receive some remuneration from books they wrote years ago. Sometimes, too, they are pleased to have a chance to update their material, or to correct errors in the original editions that have long bothered them."

For the authors of their originals, the Goulds furnish all the usual editorial services expected of a publisher.

Comstock Editions paperbacks are priced from $1.25 to $1.95, with 90 per cent of the book at the $1.25 figure. "We find that the price does make a very big difference in our sales volumes."

SO FAR THE biggest Comstock seller has been "Skid Road," a history of Seattle by Murray Morgan, that was originally brought out in hardback in 1951 by Viking and then brought out again by that same house in 1959 in a revised edition.

At the Goulds' request, Morgan again revised his text for the Comstock paperback edition, working from a hospital bed while fighting off an attack of pneumonia. It has sold 65,000 copies for Comstock, and is still selling briskly.

For his favorite books among the 87 brought out to date under Comstock's imprint, Richard Gould selects "Back Packing Guide to the Northwest" and "Back Packing Guide to California," both by Tom Winnett of Berkeley, both originals "for which the ideas originated with us," and both doing well commercially.

DORI GOULD'S favorite iu a reprint, "The Sacrilegious Shore" by Wallace Thompson.

"It is a history of the Spanish invasion and the era of the conquistadores that was originally published in England and received magnificent reviews there, but for some reason just never was picked up and published in this country," she relates. "We feel very fortunate in having been able to do it." It is just out this fall.

Another newly published paperback for which the Goulds have especially high expectations is "Missions of California," a collection of pieces on the Franciscan missions taken from the pages of Westways magazine of the Automobile Club of Southern California and edited for the book by Davis Dutton. Westways is the copublisher with Comstock of this $1.50 original.

TWO MORE late additions to Comstock Editions are "Here They Dug the Gold," George F. Willison's classic story of the Leadville, Colo., gold rush — and especially of H. A. W. Tabor; and "Ark of Empire," Idwal Jones' history of San Francisco's Montgomery Block — and especially of Henry W. Halleck.

Other Comstock Editions range from William Saroyan's "Bicycle Rider in Beverly Hills" to Curt Gentry's "The Madams of San Francisco, from Isabella Bird's "Ladies' Life in the Rocky Mountains" to Harry Sinclair Drago's "Notorious Ladies of the West." Richard Dillon's "The Embarcadero" and "The Hatchet Men" are on the lists.

What sort of an audience do these kind of books appeal to? To begin with, very largely a regional one, although Comstock books, despite their restricted sales area, frequently find their way outside the western half of the USA.

AS FOR THE age range, the Goulds have discovered to their pleasure that interest in the Old West isn't confined to older history buffs. The Comstock Editions stall at the San Francisco Book Fair was crowded throughout the event "with some very hip kids making up the majority of our visitors. They love the outdoors. And they seem to have a yearning for adventure."

Don Berry is an especially

About CARPETS

By Doug Emerson

Today, no room is complete without the carpet treatment and its popularity is well justified. It not only is a great decorating tool but carpet's contribution to the quiet of the home alone makes it deserving of the gold-star treatment.

Carpet provides safety in many areas throughout a home, particularly on stairways, in bathrooms, kitchens and in any area where a fall could lead to injuries.

The durability of carpeting as well as ease of care, gives it a special spot in the home where the action is. And why not? No more back breaking chores of scrubbing, waxing and buffing. It's certainly more comfortable to walk on and it's far less fatiguing.

With winter coming it also helps to insulate your home and eliminate those cold floors . . . Now it is the time to buy and install your carpet and at RAFAEL FLOORS our personnel are well qualified to help you choose the correct carpet. They can also help with any decorating problems you may have.

Marin Publishers Save Books From Extinction

popular writer with this age group, the Goulds say.

What are the Comstock plans for the future?

"WE HAVE thought about hardcover books," Richard admits, "but for a regional publishing house, that would be hard to do. For one thing, there are essentially two very different channels of distribution. Our paperbacks sell largely through the newsstands. For hardcover distribution, you have to shift to the bookstores.

"And make no mistake about it, distribution is the key to success in publishing. You must go where you reach the greatest number of people who might be interested in your product. And when you are limited in staff and time, it is probably best to concentrate upon one of those channels."

So what the Goulds foresee for the future is a stepped-up schedule of doing pretty much the same kind of thing they have been doing successfully so far, with some expansion of their field.

"FOR INSTANCE," they say, "we really haven't gone into original western literature as yet. All our novels have been reprints."

And while western novels, like novels of all genres, are not selling well at this time, the Goulds feel that "the public taste is bound to take a turn, and there will come a time when original western novels will again be in demand."

When that time comes, the Goulds will be ready to help meet the demand. Perhaps they will even move earlier, and attempt to generate the interest.

But in the meantime, they will concentrate upon rescuing our regional classics from oblivion, spicing up that list with occasional originals thought up by themselves or brought to them by creative authors, and always stressing the kind of quality in their selections, their editing and their presentations that have won them in just over two years recognition in the 1972 Ken Boyle Award from the Pacific Northwest Booksellers Assn.

"THAT WAS our first prize, and we are very proud of it," says Dori Gould.

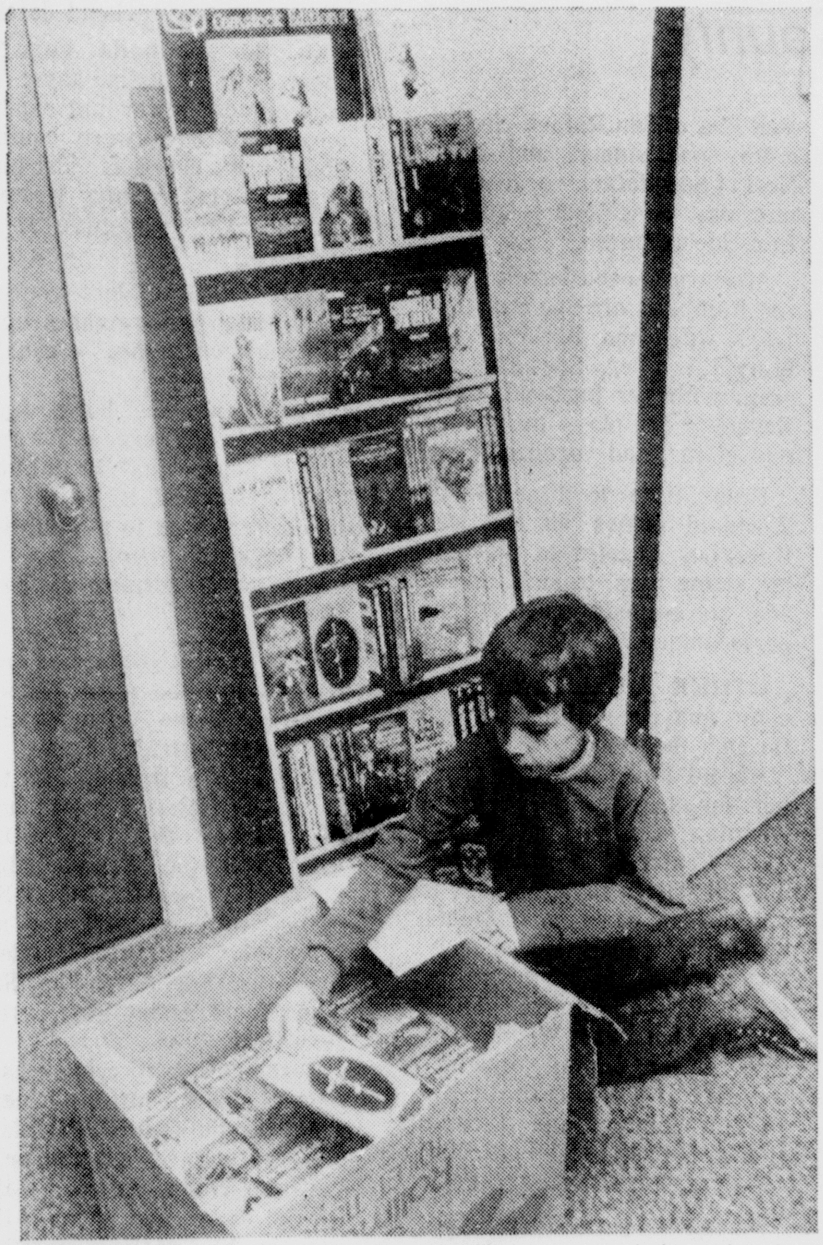
And her husband adds: "But we expect to win other awards in the future. There is a lot more satisfaction in book publishing than just making money."

IN CONFERENCE are writer Ray Grosnevor and editor Dori Gould at the Comstock Editions offices in Sausalito on Bridgeway. They are studying galley proofs of the introduction Grosvenor has written for Stewart Edward White's "Arizona Night," being published this month by Comstock. Grosnevor, a professor at San Francisco State University, also serves as a consultant on western history to Comstock in its continuing effort to perpetuate the history and the literature of the American West.



TIMOTHY GOULD, 9 years old, gives his parents a helping hand at their Comstock Editions headquarters by working after school as their stock boy.

THE LONE STAR RAMBLERS are on stage and performing, with banjoist Barbara Faustine at the "mike." The place is the Kentfield Fire Station. And the occasion was the annual fall country dance with the Kentfield firemen hosting the fire-fighters of neighboring communities for an evening of dancing and fun. The Ramblers are a popular country music group, based in Marin County.

Fun And Music By Lone Star Ramblers

Marin Country Band Has Acquired Large Following In The County

By DON KEOWN

Barbara Paulsen was only 10 years old when the boy friend of an older sister left his banjo behind in the Paulsen home.

Now Mrs. Joe Faustine of San Rafael, Barbara says: "I picked it up, starting playing it, and liked it."

Soon her brother, Harold Paulsen, a guitarist, was teaching her the string instrument. And by the time Barbara was 12, she and her brother had formed the western music group, the Marin Mavericks.

"Mike Comiskey was our fiddle player, Tony Tartala the accordionist, and Johnny Lucas played the harmonica," she remembers. And the Mavericks played mainly for hospital patients and other shut-ins as part of a troupe organized by Gertrude Foley.

"BUT WE played for dances as well, particularly Rod and Gun Club dances," recalls Barbara Paulsen Faustine. "And we played at the 1939 world exposition on Treasure Island, and on radio amateur hour shows."

The country music of that time was the cowboy tune — songs like "Red River Valley," "Strawberry Roan" and "Home on the Range." It was, Mrs. Faustine notes, a considerably different kind of music from the country music of today.

The Marin Mavericks played together for five years, then broke up when World War II intruded and the boys in the band were called away.

"BUT DURING the war," Barbara says, "whenever the boys were home, we would get together and play. During the blackouts, we would play in the dark in our living rooms."

Barbara Faustine was not to play with another organized country music band until 1958.

It was then that she and husband Joe with oldest son Lee and daughter Joyce, plus Joyce's then husband, Jim Loftin, formed the Rhythm Ramblers.

The name was changed in 1964 to the Lone Star Ramblers, the name the group still carries today, "to give us more individuality, since there were so many other groups with names similar to Rhythm Ramblers, and in recognition of the fact that we had a genuine Texan, Jim Loftin, among our members."

WHEN THE Jim Loftins' marriage broke up, he left the Ramblers.

Today the members are Barbara Faustine, banjo and vocalist; Lee Faustine, now 24 and living in Petaluma, lead guitar and singer; younger son Johnny Faustine, 20, of San Rafael, drums, guitar, bass and vocals; Joyce Loftin of Novato, steel guitar and singer; daughter Lisa Faustine, 18, who lives with her parents in San Rafael and who sings and plays the tambourines.

Joe Faustine, who used to play the string bass, now concentrates upon the duties of manager of the ban.

OUTSIDE-THE-Faustine-family regulars are David Dell'Era of San Rafael, rhythm guitar and singer, and Mary Noel of San Rafael, vocalist and maracas. Miss Noel is Johnny Faustine's fiancee.

Appearing occasionally with the Ramblers are Sue Faustine, Lee's wife, and Barney Noel, Mary's brother. Sue Faustine sings with her husband, while Barney Noel plays harmonica and guitar, and vocalizes.

From time to time Gregg Wormald comes all the way from Los Angeles to play the big string bass, to sing, and to add his comedy touch to the performances.

OTHER MUSICIANS have come and gone with the group through the years.

Harold Paulsen was a member for a time. But he is a postman working out of the Civic Center branch postoffice and, his sister says, "he has to get up too early to do much music-playing any more."

Other former members include Wally Holmes, guitar; Betty Leach, bass; Wayne Jamison, bass; Sammi Mondino, vocalist; Tom Donaldson, rhythm guitar; and Richard Pfeiffer, bass. "And Richard was fantastic," says Mrs. Faustine.

FOR FOUR years the Ramblers played every Thursday night at the White Hat Club at the Alameda Naval Air Station, thus freeing them for local dances on the weekend dates.

Of the Alameda engagements, Mrs. Faustine says: "It was a most rewarding experience. The boys were coming home from overseas, just hungry for some country western music. And we gave it to them."

Now the Ramblers concentrate their performances upon the weekend nights — usually Saturdays.

"Everyone else holds down an outside job, except for myself, a housewife," Mrs. Faustine says, "and it is just too much of a grind to play during the week and then to have to get up in the morning and go to work."

HER HUSBAND Joe is superintendent of the motor vehicle division for the Marin Municipal Water District.

The dates he arranges for the Lone Star Ramblers include playing for such groups as the Elks Club, the Moose Lodge, the Odd Fellows, the Viking Ski Club ("once a year, for six years now"), the Independent Order of Foresters, the San Francisco Presidio, Fort Barry, Fort Baker, etc.

Particularly satisfying was a recent engagement for a benefit dance for the family of the late deputy sheriff Gerald Tanner, a drowning victim, because of the worthy cause, and because the site, the West Marin Community Center, the old Red Barn, was so appropriate for a barndance.

A BIG PART of the popularity of the Lone Star Ramblers comes from the entertainment they provide along with their country music. "We do a lot of dancing ourselves when we play for a dance," they say. And here Barney Noel and Lisa Faustine of the Ramblers join Kentfield firemen and their guests in a spirited Virginia Reel, always a popular part of one of the country dances. This night the dancers demanded — and got — four Virginia Reels during the evening.

ON DEC. 16 AT the Novato Moose Lodge Hall, they will be playing for the Western Telephone Co. employees' Christmas dance. On New Year's Eve, they'll play at the same hall.

And their weekend engagement book is well filled for the immediate future.

"Generally," says Barbara Faustine, "our audiences are in the 30s, 40s and 50s. But this is because we play so often for lodges."

Young people do enjoy country music, she says, and proof of that comes when the Lone Star Ramblers make their annual trip to Fort Ord.

IT BEGAN when their son Lee was drafted and assigned to Fort Ord. "We went down there on his birthday, just to be with him and play a little music," his mother says. "We wound up playing for four hours, with more and more of the fellows coming in to listen and to applaud. It developed into a full-fledged country music concert."

The Fort Ord newspaper described the impromptu performance as "pleasure a la carte" with "fine to watch performers" and "wonderful to hear music."

GENERALLY, the Lone Star Rambler vocalists are solo singers, but here Johnny Faustine and his attractive fiancee Mary Noel blend their voices in a western tune.

The Ramblers have been going back to Fort Ord annually for the past four years, spending a vacation week playing there and touring other nearby military installations.

"WE HAVE A great time," Barbara Faustine enthuses. "It's marvelous!"

The Lone Star Rambler dances and concerts no longer feature the cowboy tunes played by the Marin Mavericks three decades ago. Now the Ramblers are more likely to play such more modern country-western pieces as "Ode to Billy Joe," "Happiest Girl in the Whole USA," "Leaving on Your Mind" and "Folsom Prison Blues."

"But we will still throw in a couple of the old cowboy tunes," says vivacious Barbara Faustine, as full of pep and enthusiasm as any of the younger members of the troupe. "I love them."

AND THERE will be as many as three Virginia reels in a night at the dances, but no square dances. "We find it takes too long to explain those, and the people get impatient. It slows things down."

Lee Faustine shifts over to the accordion for the popular polkas.

And there are sometimes Hawaiian numbers. But no rock and roll. "When they ask for rock, we tell them they will just have to go somewhere else for that," Barbara says. "It isn't our bag."

THE RAMBLERS increase their repertoire with something like 10 or a dozen "new" songs per year. Singers usually work alone, as soloists, although Lee Faustine and his sister Lisa frequently sing together.

The band holds no practices except in preparations for special events such as the Fort Ord tour. Their dances, which generally last from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. ("and sometimes when they won't go home, we just keep on playing until 2 o'clock") afford them plenty of work together.

To what do the Ramblers themselves attribute their popularity?

REPLIES Barbara Faustine: "We think the people like our stage personality as much as our music. It is so apparent that everyone in the band is enjoying himself so much that it is contagious with the audience. They tell us that they like a band that has fun. And we do have fun!"

Clad in the usual western paraphernalia including satin shirts, levis, ponchos, fringed vests, boots and cowboy hats, the Ramblers do a lot of dancing on their own, as well as laughing and clowning while they play.

"By the time an evening is over, we have danced as much as the people down in front," laughs Barbara.

ALTHOUGH they play with the Ramblers virtually every weekend, the Faustines apparently can't get enough music. Barbara and Johnny play every Wednesday night with the banjo band at Cal's Steak House in downtown San Rafael. "

And an event that was especially pleasing to Barbara was a gathering of the old Marin Mavericks at the Deer Park Villa, the occasion being member Mike Comiskey's 50th wedding anniversary, to play together once agina.

Do the Lone Star Ramblers aspire to something bigger in the music world?

IT'S A BROTHER-and-sister act as pretty Lisa Faustine vocalizes to the guitar accompaniment of her older brother Lee Faustine, standing to her left.

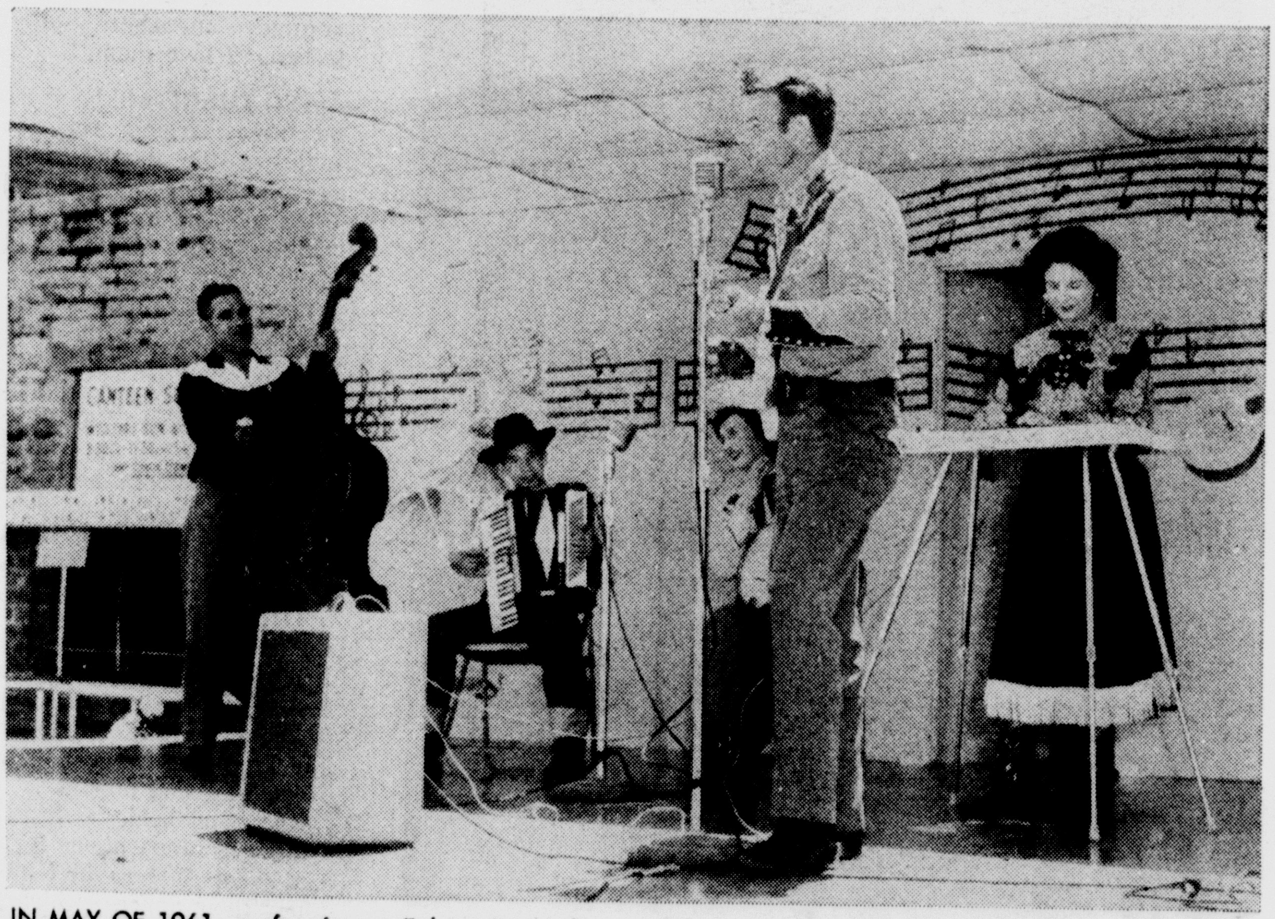
"IT'S TEMPTING," Barbara Faustine admits, "but the members are all too involved in their regular jobs to take the time off."

So there have been no recordings, although the Ramblers have cut their own tapes which they send to servicemen overseas to help satisfy their craving for "good old American music."

Interest in country music rises and falls in waves, Mrs. Faustine notes, and right now it is on an upsurge that began about three years ago and is continuing.

"But one thing about it," she adds. "It never dies out completely. Country music is always with us, to some degree. It is never dead. And it is very much alive right now."

And groups like the Lone Star Ramblers seemingly provide it with every assurance of continued good health for years to come.



IN MAY OF 1961, performing at Folsom Prison for the inmates, the Marin country music group was still known as the Rhythm Ramblers. On stage, left to right, were Joe Faustine, Lee Faustine, Barbara Faustine, Jim Loftin (vocalizing) and Joyce Loftin, an all-family group.

Our $200 component music system is plenty big enough to fill a small room with good sound, and it excels at reproducing music much more naturally than any compact or portable stereo.

The new TransAudio 1008 speakers sound just fine powered by the Nikko 2010 AM/FM stereo receiver. They're two-way systems priced at a phenomenally low $75 a pair, and their eight-inch bass speakers will do justice to your favorite string quartet's cello player. The one-way systems found in most other $200 music systems can't pick up his low notes at all. The receiver's tuner section can bring you a clean rendition of just about anything on the air, and the Nikko 2010 has a loudness contour switch so you can hear all of the low bass even at low volumes. There's even special provision for adding a four-channel adaptor, and the $139.95 price includes the case. The record player is also a fine value. It's the totally reliable Garrard 40B. Its $60.90 price includes a base and the excellent new ADC 220XE diamond elliptical cartridge, something else you won't find in other $200 music systems.

JUST RIGHT FOR BASS FANS ON A BUDGET

Music systems depend on room size as well as speaker size for their ability to reproduce low notes, and in any moderate-sized room this $300 system will go right down to the bass man's low E. An $80 saving and two new products that are outstanding values make it possible. The TransAudio 1010 speakers are two-way ten-inch systems, and until now we didn't believe that anyone could make speakers capable of such deep bass for anywhere near their $99.90 a pair price.

The receiver in this system is another surprise. The Spectrosonic 110-4 AM/FM stereo receiver has more power than any other receiver in its $220 price range, delivering 44 RMS watts with less than .5% distortion all the way from 20 to 20,000 Hz. The amplifier is direct coupled, so there's nothing between the transistors and the speakers to mess up the sound. The 110-4 also has a sensitive tuner section and a front panel switch to control an optional four channel adaptor. The walnut case is optional.

The Garrard 40B record player is so hard to beat for value we include it here too, again with a base and the ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge, which will add a great deal to the life of your records.

SHERWOOD, DUAL, AR AND A $155 SAVING GET TOGETHER FOR ONE WEEK ONLY

Each of these components is an exceptionally fine performer, and the $500 price is the added feature attraction you really shouldn't miss. It can be offered this week only, and you save $155 if you act fast.

The new Sherwood S7200 AM/FM stereo receiver carries on the long Sherwood tradition of providing a very high quality tuner section, plenty of power and a full range of features for a most reasonable price, $299.95 in this case. FM sensitivity is an excellent 1.8 microvolts, and ceramic filters account in part for the very good selectivity. The filters are permanently aligned, eliminating the need for expensive readjustments. The S7200's direct coupled amplifier section puts out 64 RMS watts of power from 20 to 20,000 Hz. Convenience features include FM muting, a high filter, a front panel tape dubbing jack, tape monitoring and a loudness contour. A new feature is the front panel switch for four-channel sound if you care to add a decoder. The walnut case is included.

The new design features of Dual's modestly-priced 1215S record player bring it amazingly close to the superb Dual 1229 in performance. It can track at pressures as low as .75 gram, and the anti-skate control is calibrated separately for conical and elliptical cartridges. A variable pitch control allows up to 6% change in speed. We equip the 1215S with a base and an ADC 220XE elliptical diamond cartridge for $120.45.

AR 2ax speaker systems have been praised by any number of reviewers. They're three-way ten-inch acoustic suspension systems that sound very good indeed. Our normal price is a quite reasonable $235 a pair.

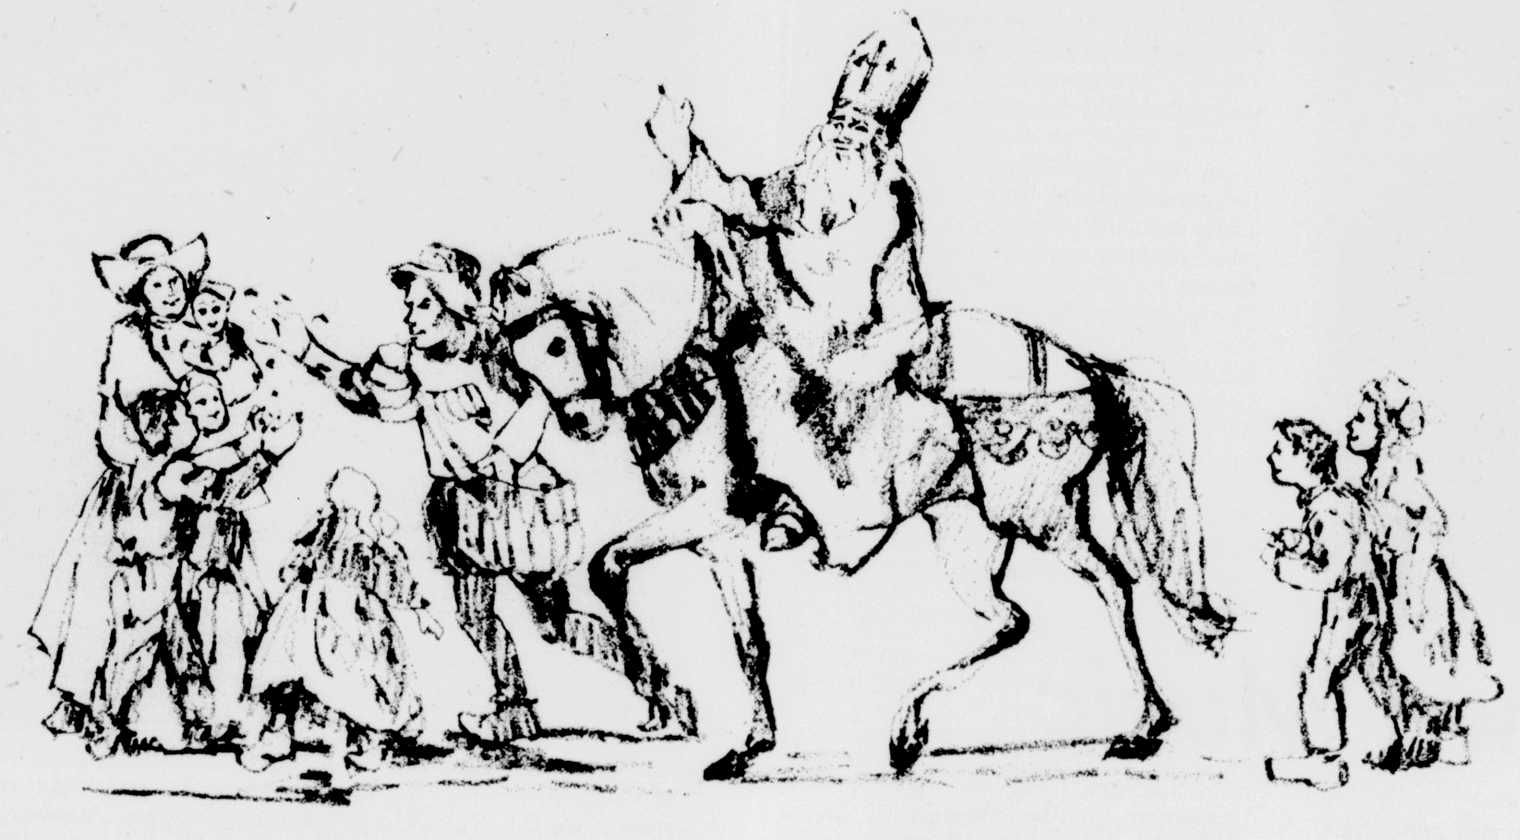
This Week's HOLIDAY OFFERING from Pacific Stereo will be gone in a twinkling



Our headline paraphrases a line from a poem everybody knows, Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas," but the St. Nicholas of our illustration was bringing gifts to children in Europe long before he acquired that miniature sleigh with eight tiny reindeer. His transformation into the modern Santa Claus was accomplished largely by Moore, Washington Irving, and the nineteenth century cartoonist Thomas Nast. Now hardly anyone remembers when the original Santa wore clerical vestments and rode a horse.

Admittedly, there's no overwhelming connection between this anecdote of Christmas history and Pacific Stereo's newest holiday offering, but it is a pleasant way to introduce you to our totally transformed selection of gifts for yourself or others at prices which are bound to add some holiday cheer. You have to act fast, however: some items are available only this week, others only until our very limited supply runs out, and there are still other things you haven't seen before now specially priced for the holidays.

Come in today; there's really not much time left to avoid the last minute hassles, and you'll want plenty of time for listening, comparing, and browsing around to see the unadvertised special values we offer whenever they come up. Remember you can take advantage of our free layaway and extended exchange privileges as well as all the other holiday amenities described in the "Free Offerings..." portion of our ad.

Even if you wrap up your system and don't use it until Christmas you get the full warranty.

LAYAWAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

INTRODUCING THE HARMAN-KARDON 75+ IN OUR BEST FOUR-CHANNEL SYSTEM YET

We're very proud of being the first to offer you the Harman-Kardon 75+, because this versatile four-channel receiver is an amazing achievement that's hard to fault for stereo or four-channel sound. It incorporates some advanced ideas Harman-Kardon first developed in their Citation line, and it has a couple of unique four-channel features all its own. Harman-Kardon's well-known twin power supplies and exceptionally wide frequency response contribute greatly to the outstanding clarity of sound you'll get with the 75+. A most unusual feature is the bridging circuit which, by linking the four amplifier sections into two, enables you to get more total power in stereo than in four-channel. The 75+ delivers 18 RMS watts per channel (72 total) in the four-channel mode, or 45 RMS watts per channel (90 total) in stereo. The 75+ incorporates an SQ matrix decoder which can provide either full four-channel separation or introduce a slight amount of blend in the front channels to position a soloist more pleasingly. An exclusive 360° balance control lets you adjust the total sound field for optimum four-channel realism or create some unusual moving-sound effects of your own. There's a synthesizer to create four-channel effects from stereo sources, facilities for adding discrete four-channel tape or cartridge decks and four-channel headphones, and of course a very good AM/FM stereo tuner section with all the usual controls. At $399.95, the 75+ costs no more than Harman-Kardon's best stereo receiver. The walnut case is extra.

The rest of this system deserves as much comment as the 75+, but space doesn't permit a full description. You get the excellent Benjamin Miracord 750 record player equipped with a base and a broadcast quality Stanton 500E elliptical cartridge, plus four of the direct/reflecting Bose 501 speaker systems. We'll be glad to tell you more about their features when you come in to hear what four-channel sound can really be.

TREAT YOURSELF TO TEAC'S SEMI-PRO DECK

The TEAC 3300-10 stereo tape deck is one of the most flexible and convenient-to-use machines we've seen. Its professionalism starts with 10½-inch reels, which double recording time. Three heads permit monitoring your recordings. Three motors and solenoid controls eliminate the need for mechanical linkages and their problems. It has a pause control for editing, a bias control switch, line and mike mixer inputs, and automatic tape lifters. This exceptionally sturdy machine performs so well in terms of frequency response and signal to noise ratio that $500 is really a most reasonable price.

SAVE $100 ON THE NIKKO 8010 IF YOU GET ONE THIS WEEK

Nikko consistently packs a lot of value into their receivers, and when you can take $100 off the Nikko 8010's regular $254.95 price "value" is hardly strong enough to describe what you're getting. The 8010 delivers 40 RMS watts of power, and the tuner section's rated FM sensitivity of 2 microvolts is very good indeed for the price. Features include FM muting, a loudness contour, tape monitoring, and high and low filters. Circuit breakers are used in place of fuses. You can build a fine music system around the Nikko 8010, especially at this price, but the $100 saving is offered this week only. $154.95

BUY ONE, GET THE SECOND WHARFEDALE W70E FOR HALF PRICE

A Museum For America's Own Music

By ANDREA CHAMBERS

Midtown Manhattan, New York City, is a muted plaid of browns, grays and sandy beiges, juxtaposed in organized stone and steel blocks. But on West 55th Street, elbowing stone and steel on its left and on its right, is a discordant patch of blazing blue — jazz blue, to be exact.

This is the New York Jazz Museum, the first in the U.S. devoted to the history, legend, and legacy of jazz from its African origins to the modern era.

"We're anxious to show people the history and significance of jazz," explains the museum's managing director, Jack Bradley.

Terming jazz the "only truly American art form," he adds that his museum, with its broad spectrum, differs from the very first American jazz museum located in New Orleans, which is devoted solely to the jazz tradition in that Louisiana city..

NEW YORK'S new jazz museum, only a few months old, is the offspring of the New York Hot Jazz Society, establihsed in 1967 to promote a greater appreciation of jazz. The society's programs include the screening of rare jazz films, tapes, records, slides and photos, a jazz touring program for schools and civic groups, and parties featuring great jazz personalities.

Thanks to a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts, the society was able to realize a long-hoped-for goal: establishment of a permanent jazz museum.

Today, the New York Jazz Museum basks in the rhythm of "total jazz." Horns, posters and jazz memorabilia decorate the walls.

A "Jazz Store" offers records, old and new and reams of sheet music. And there is the gentle wail of a trumpet... or perhaps a horn... from the tapes spinning in a corner. Soon, live concerts will be performed from the museum's upstairs balcony.

THE ARCHITECTS and overseers of this environment are two ardent jazz fans, Howard Fischer and Jack Bradley. Fischer, a theatrical attorney, is founder and president of the New York Hot Jazz Society and executive director of the Jazz Museum. Bradley, managing director, is a jazz writer, collector, photographer and historian.

As directors, Fischer and Bradley must be not only administrators but jazz sleuths as well. What ever happened to Artie Shaw's clarinet? Lester Young's famous hat? That congratulatory telegram Dave Brubeck sent to Louis Armstrong?

Such jazz memorabilia must be scouted for museum exhibits.

Currently, the museum is amassing a permanent collection of jazz instruments and memorabilia from assorted musicians, collectors, film distributors and fans. Until this can be completed, the Jazz Museum is sponsoring a number of temporary shows devoted to all-time jazz greats.

The first? What else but a retrospective exhibit honoring "the King of Jazz," Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong himself.

VISITORS TO the Armstrong exhibit were able to view a pictorial history of "Satchmo's" rise to stardom as well as a chronological arrangement of his countless record jackets. Then, too, there was the less dramatic but still vital fabric of Armstrong's everyday life: an itemized laundry bill from a Buffalo hotel, a copy of the Armstrong diet and even a "Satchmo" hankie.

To show Armstrong's worldwide reputation, the Jazz Museum pinned up a few selected international fan letters addressed, for example, to "Louis Armstrong, King of the Jazz," "Rex Jazz," and "To Ole Satchmo Himself, Wherever He Is."

Following the "Satchmo" retrospective, the museum has scheduled a Duke Ellington exhibit and an expanded jazz-film program.

IN ADDITION to exhibiting jazz artifacts and films, the Jazz Museum serves as an up-to-date jazz information center. All jazz events in and around New York appear on the museum's Jazz Calendar.

Fortuitous visitors to the West 55th Street jazz center might find an added bonus: a chance meeting with a member of the museum's illustrious board of directors, who drop in now and then to see how things are progressing. Among them are Artie Shaw, Clark Terry, Sy Oliver, Billy Taylor and Milt Hinton.

Alaska Where Winter Is Fishing Season

Alaska offers the world's greatest sports fishing, and this applies in summer and winter. Admittedly, summer fishing in the 49th State offers more appeal to most of those from the "other 49," but for Alaskans and the few outsiders who have tried it, winter or "ice" fishing offers a world of challenge and fun.

Ice fishing in Alaska starts as soon as the waters of the numerous Alaskan lakes are frozen to a depth of four or five inches and continues until things begin to thaw out in the spring.

Two of the favorite fish caught during the winter months are rainbow trout and silver salmon. Both are delicious on the table and are especially tasty if caught during the colder months as the flesh is firm and solid.

A little more gear is generally required for the wintertime sport, although if one prefers to travel light, a dollar's worth of beef liver will put you in business. In addition, an axe, ice spur or ice auger are required to get through the ice to the water.

Shelter of some sort, made of canvas or another material is sometimes popular, although not in vogue with Alaskans.

Somehow The Bahamians Keep Smiling

By JUNE GOODWIN

NASSAU, Bahamas — It's no wonder the Bahamas' "smile campaign" toward tourists occasionally turns into a case of grin-and-bear-it.

After all, there were 1,473,591 people to smile at last year and fewer than 180,000 people to do the smiling.

Sometimes, just sometimes, a Bahamian gets tired of remembering who butters his bread. He would rather think, say, of eating a conch with lime juice squeezed on it, or think of lying under a palm tree like the tourists.

IN A WAY, though, smiling conditions for the Bahamians are getting better. More and more tourists are coming on cruise ships, instead of flying in. This means that most of the smiling (and grinning) goes on in Nassau, gateway to this sunny archipelago. And the lion's share of Nassau's tourism takes place up and down Bay Street, the shoppers' row, very near Prince George Wharf where the cruise ships tie up.

Tourism officials are not ecstatic about the cruise boom, since it means less time and money in hotels. But neither are they completely unecstatic since cruises increase the number of arrivals. And that always looks good in reports.

Then, too, some cruise ships bring in more money than others. The Homeric Lines, for example, sailing every week from New York, arrive in Nassau Tuesday and leave Thursday.

THAT'S PLENTY of time to buy almost anything your heart could desire, some of it at bargain prices. Straw bags, china and crystal, cameras, and perfume are among the bargains.

Straw bags, at the same time, are not always among the bargains — depending on the bag and the market. The market at Prince George Wharf is great fun to watch, but buy there only if you can't get any farther.

Nassau merchants aren't always as well served by other cruise ships as they are by the Homeric Line however. The Queen Elizabeth 2 went to Nassau last Jan. 1, arriving at 8 a.m. and leaving at 5 p.m.

"MORE TIME was spent climbing the ladder down from the ship than in going around Nassau," one tourism official remarked.

But that's what a city sometimes gets if it is a gateway. Many tourists come to Nassau (on New Providence Isand) to get to another of the 700-odd Bahamian islands — often termed the Out Islands, many of them unspoiled in comparison with New Providence.

Of course, "unspoiled" to some people just means boring and out-of-it. So it's back to Nassau for them, although it's questionable whether Nassau is "in it."

NASSAU USED to be THE elegant city for society-conscious people going to the Bahamas. But a lot of those people now spread themselves farther around the world. Nassau still has a casino and all that goes with it on Paradise Island.

The island is a phenomenal tourist development only a short taxi ride from the city center. It is connected to New Providence Island by a soaring, fairytale-like bridge that carries the unfairytale toll of $2. In more ways than one Paradise Island is not for everyone.

If it's not for you, the alternative is to stay in Nassau proper or in a hotel on Cable Beach. For information on hotels a good guide book is "Fielding's Guide to the Caribbean plus the Bahamas, published in New York and available in many American bookstores for $7.95.

ABOUT FOUR or five years ago there was a land boom in and around Nassau, with tremendous buying and building of condominiums. But the boom has slacked off with the decision by the government of Prime Minister Lynden Pindling not to sell crown land.

If you desire, there are ways to meet Bahamians other than just your taxi driver. One way is to go to Nassau during Goombay Summer. Three years ago the Ministry of Tourism set up a program to entice tourists to the Bahamas during the months June to September, mistakenly considered too hot for visiting.

The idea of closing off Bay Street every Friday night during the summer to allow snake dancing to the music of local bands has gone over almost too well. One can hardly get onto the street during this miniature Mardi Gras.

AMONG OTHER things, Goombay Summer sponsors a folklore show and a weekly festival in Jumbey Village where you can buy soursop ice cream and conch fritters.

If you don't go to the Bahamas during the summer, you probably go because you want the summer. Temperatures never drop below 65 degrees.

Other people have gone to the Bahamas looking for things besides the sun. Christopher Coumbus went looking for China and gold. Ponce de Leon was looking for the fountain of youth. George Washington said he found the "isles of perpetual June" (but didn't say that was what he was looking for).

Whatever you go for, take a smile and give it to a Bahamian. He may need it.

Life With A Famous Father—

SON OF GROUCHO by Arthur Marx, David McKay Co., 357 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jim Williams

Looking for something light to read? "Son of Groucho" by the famed comedian's son Arthur Marx should fill the bill.

It is an intimate family portrait of his father Groucho and the other Marx Brothers. And Arthur should know his facts.

The book spans Arthur's years of growing up with a famous father, their mid-years and Groucho's presnet life.

There are also vignettes of celebrities drawn into the Marx orbit — Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer, Alexander Woollcott and others.

Groucho's pithy remarks are legion. A way to share them is to take a look at this living legend from the "son of Groucho."

History's Human Dimension

CALIFORNIA: LAND OF NEW BEGINNINGS by David Lavender; Harper and Row, 430 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

California history has been told and retold so many times that any new book of it faces the handicap of redundancy. But David Lavender has brought a fresh approach to "California: Land of New Beginnings."

There is little new historical material in Lavender's volume for Harper and Row's "Regions of America" series. But he tells the story in a more human dimension than most.

The Spanish explorers and padres, the Mexican generals, the '49ers and those who followed — all are real, believable people as depicted in "California: Land of New Beginnings." And the things they did are, therefore, more understandable.

Lavender's thesis is that California has been in ferment since its earliest settlement by whites. It has gone through beginning after beginning — and now seems launched on still another.

He sets the stage in his opening paragraphs:

"About six miles west of downtown Los Angeles is an accidental juxtaposition of landmarks, natural and man-made, that serves as an ironic introduction to some of California's furious ambivalences. The site is Hancock Park. Within the park's modest 32 acres are several ugly black bogs, a few life-sized, fiberglass replicas of prehistoric mammals, and a cluster of three spectacular buildings that were opened in March, 1965, as housing for the Los Angeles County Art Museum. Fronting both the bogs and the buildings is the nervous energy of Wilshire Boulevard, created during the 1920s to exploit the revolutionary shopping and living patterns just being created by the automobile.

"All tour guides of the city mention these items in isolation. More might be learned by pulling them together."

He spends the rest of the book "pulling them together," by reciting what has happened in California, where the oil that created those black bogs fuels the cars that stop and go, stop and go on Wilshire and hundreds of other boulevards.

Sleuths & Suspense

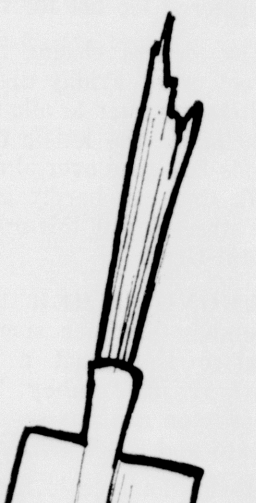
THE SHREWSDALE EXIT by John Buell; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 279 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

One of the most frightening, ugliest aspects of American life today is the prospect of suffering sudden, unprovoked violence. For Joe Grant, central character in John Buell's "The Shrewsdale Exit," that prospect became a terrible reality.

Bringing the terror and tragedy of mindless violence to Grant are three motorcycle-riding thugs. And when the ordeal is over, Grant's wife and small daughter are dead.

Buell recreates the helplessness of the average citizen placed in such a predicament with an almost unbearable realism. And he does well, too, with the aftermath of a Joe Grant at first stunned and numbed by what has occurred, then aching for revenge once his mind and emotions begin to thaw.

The rest of the novel, however, is not up to that start, and seems to trail off to a pat ending that is at odds with the tough, honest beginning. Drama becomes melodrama.



But on the whole, Buell, writing his third suspense novel, is deserving of applause. Despite the faltering finish, his book is well worth the reading — although the explosive start will give no comfort to a public already, perhaps, overly suspicious and fearful of other people, particularly those who are unlike the majority.

Fewer Titles

McGraw-Hill Book Co. has announced plans to cut its trade book list by half, from more than 200 titles to 100 titles a year.

Lincoln And Grant Vs. Lee And Davis

THE LAST CAMPAIGN by Earl Schenck Miers; Lippincott, 182 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

There is an ironic fitness in the title of this book: "The Last Campaign." For the author, Earl Schenck Miers, died at his home in Edison, N.J., a few days before it went on sale.

The "Last Campaign" of the volume is that of Grant and the Army of the Potomac against Lee and the Army of Northern Virginia, which closed the Civil War. The story has been told often. Miers tells it in terms of the four men who among them held the fate of Union and Confederacy: Lincoln and Grant, Davis and Lee.

It opens with the Battle of the Wilderness, in which Grant took over field command from Gen. George G. Meade. It follows the bloody, grinding trail that led to North Anna, Cold Harbor, Harrison's Landing, Petersburg — and at last to Appomatox Court House.

It is well told, a fitting addition to Lippincott's "Great Battles of History" series and a fitting period to the works of Miers, who has written a host of volumes, from juveniles to the full range of American history, since the boyhood days when he and this reviewer, as Lone Scouts, both tried their hands as amateurs at the typewriter.

An Exercise In Taste And Beauty

LOVE AFFAIR — A VENETIAN JOURNAL by Wright Morris; Harper and Row, 104 pages, $12.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here is an exquisite exercise in taste and sensitivity.

A beautiful array of superbly reproduced and displayed color photographs of one of the globe's most fascinating and photogenic cities is accompanied by Wright Morris' affectionate and perceptive description of what it is like to live in Venice.

"The mind-boggling gift of Venice," he writes, "is that it has escaped the tyranny of vehicles." It is a city where man walks — or more likely dawdles. And Morris revels in the pace and the unique way of life it creates.

So will the reader as he turns the pages to enjoy Morris' remarkable narrative and to savor the fine photos on each facing page.

A person who does not already share Morris' feeling for Venice will soon have the fire lit. There is more to Venice, one discovers, than canals, gondolas and palaces.

As for the worry that Venice's splendor is slowly disappearing, Morris observes that, yes, "Venice is sinking, but slower than most of us, and the sea will be less harsh than her likely survivors, ringed by motorcades."

Of Divas And The Music —

THE OPERA by Joseph Wechsberg; Macmillan, 312 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Jim Williams.

In the forward to "The Opera" Joseph Wechsberg quickly sums up the intention of his absorbing work: "Opera is enjoyed only by those who know something about it. This is the idea behind this book . . ."

But please don't stop at his forward. "The Opera" is a treasure from beginning to end. Not only is it a book for the seasoned opera lover, but for the novice as well. It could serve as a great conversation piece at a very dull party.

Wechsberg traces the origins of opera, then explores singing and singers, people in opera, the great opera houses, as well as opera as a business.

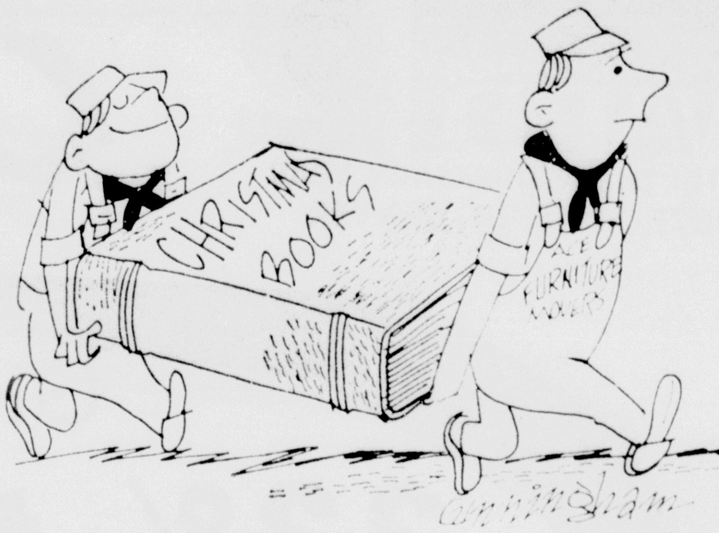
The author, now a United States citizen, grew up in one of the world's greatest operatic cities. His love for the Vienna-style of opera is clear. His discussions of the State Opera (Vienna's central house) are painted in detail. And I have to concur with Wechsberg that an evening at the famed house is one of the most thrilling experiences afforded an opera buff. I had the privilege of attending two performances there this fall. Not only does he discuss, Vienna, but deals at length on Italy's great house — La Scala in Milan — which to this day is still Toscanini's house. Rudolf Bing and the Metropolitan Opera are also very interesting.

But the noted critic gives only a line to the San Francisco Opera — noting that it occasionally presents outstanding productions. It's a shame that he did not come West for a closer look at the pride of San Francisco.

There are also many little gems on great divas, their battles and triumphs.

"The Opera" is a welcome addition to any opera lover's library.

"For one, I doubt that any single moment of human experience has ever been fully understood or described. In fact, other than the surface worldly aspect of ourselves, most people have only a glimmering of what goes on in their heads. Often their most common fantasy or fear is just half known. . . We seem to know far more of rocks, clouds and machines than we do of our own experiencing." Wilson Van Dusen in "The Natural Depth of Man."



The Inner Messages

By DON KEOWN

THE NATURAL DEPTH IN MAN by Wilson Van Dusen; Harper and Row, 197 pages, $5.95.

"If one were locked up in an ancient castle for one's whole life — a castle full of artifacts, dungeons, endless rooms, art and books — one would spend much time exploring and recreating the lives of the inhabitants. We are locked up in such a mind castle, yet we have explored little. Many know little more than a sitting room in the east wing and assume this is the whole. The size of the mind-castle is little appreciated. It includes all you have experienced, are experiencing, will experience, and in the remote corners, all you can experience."

Thus Wilson Van Dusen, a much-published East Bay clinical psychologist, begins his book "The Natural Depth of Man," which, he says, he hopes will awaken his readers to their own "often dismissed inner messages."

In what manner are these inner messages delivered? Van Dusen suggests self-reflection, fantasy, meditation, dreams, the hypnogogic state, perhaps even hallucinations as among the media.

From whence come these messages is an even more involved and more difficult question. But Van Dusen suggests that there is within the individual a transcendent inner process and presence, which he personalizes as The Other Me, that exceeds our outer self in wisdom and experience and which, if listened to, can be used for guidance and direction in life.

It is not, however, quite that simple. Not only must this The Other Me be listened to, but it must be understood as well. And The Other Me speaks to us in a language all its own, dealing in esoteric symbols whose meaning often escapes us even when we remember the content of our dreams or fantasies.

Van Dusen believes we can train ourselves to remember our dreams and our equally fragile experiences while in the hypnogogic state — the twilight between awakeness and sleep that he regards as a particularly promising and fascinating field neglected by psychology and psychiatry. And he offers some instruction.

He believes, too, that the dreamer or fantasizer is his own best interpreter of his dreams or fantasies. But here he can be less helpful. Admittedly, the involved symbolism lends itself to many diverse interpretations. And the examples he provides of supposedly correct interpretations seem tenuous and unproven at best. Certainly the untrained individual who wrestles with the productions of his own mind — a kind of inner theater of the absurd — is taking on a difficult and uncertain task in trying to pin concrete meanings to allusory symbols.

A central question is whether all this is even worth the effort.

Van Dusen does not see fantasies, hypnogogic experiences or dreams as particularly useful for peering into the future. The Other Me, he believes, is concerned with the present. Thus, he feels, the most productive use the individual can make of these inner processes is the development of an enlightened understanding of himself as he exists today — of his needs, his fears, his values, his objectives. Blocks that limit the outer man pose no real problem for the inner psyche, so that we get from it a clearer, more honest picture of what we really are. Likewise, the psyche offers a sharper perspective of others and of society as a whole as well.

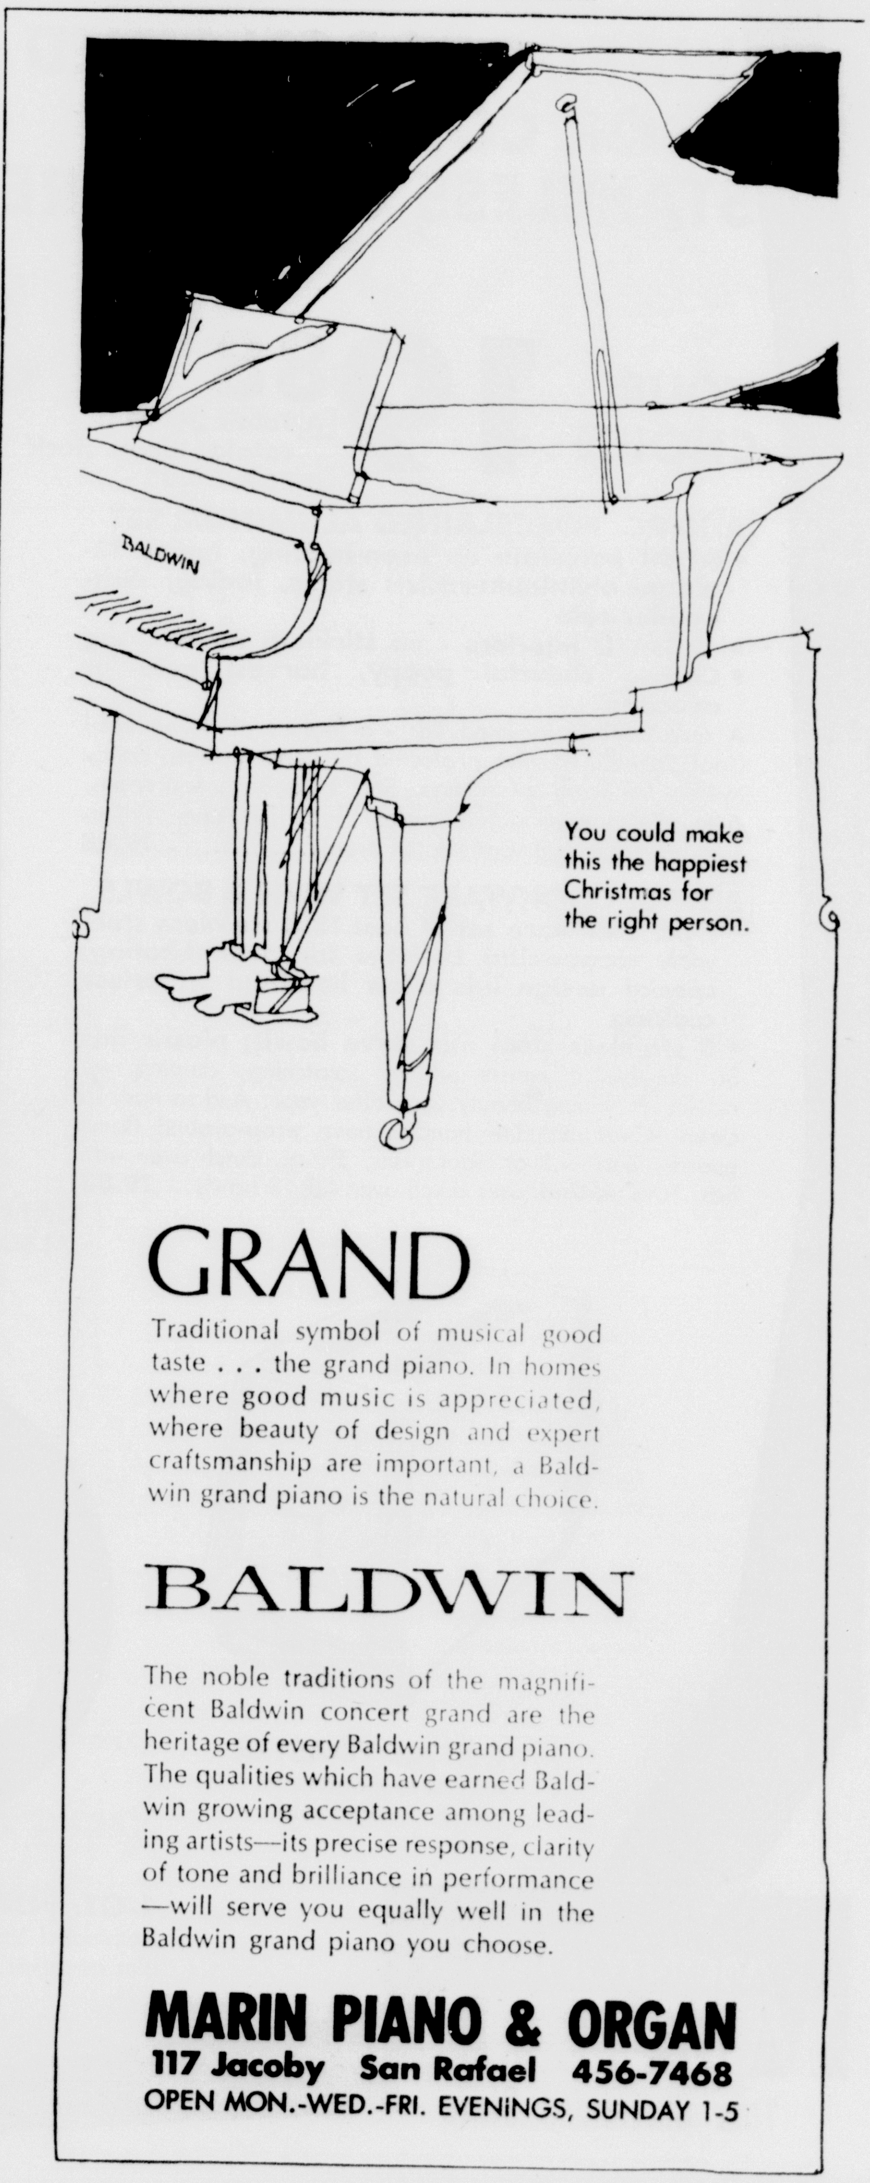
Mystical experiences, Van Dusen believes, are more common than generally believed, and these, too, can be used for enlightenment.

Van Dusen also tosses in some unorthodox theories on madness, seeing it broadly as a constriction of one's world, as a loss of meaning to existence, and as a move toward uselessness and unproductivity. Rather than delving into psyche, he suggests for recovery a course emphasizing useful work and consideration for others.

"Madness is uselessness; sanity is usefulness," he asserts.

Wilson Van Dusen obviously has been profoundly influenced by the works of Emanuel Swedenborg, the Swedish philosopher, religious leader and mystic. "The Natural Depth in Man" is replete with Swedenborgian quotations and theories, and finishes with a brief biography of Swedenborg.

Van Dusen's own book is important in bringing to our attention the presence of these often dismissed inner messages. But it also makes apparent the extreme difficulty of interpreting and using these subtle inner processes effectively. It is one thing to realize that our dreams have meaning. It is quite another to peer through the tricky web of allusion and symbolism to determine exactly what that meaning might be. "The Natural Depth in Man" can only start you to thinking in that direction.



You could make this the happiest Christmas for the right person.

Are You Allergic To Your Garden?

Is that rash on your hands and arms caused by pesticides or did it result from handling flowers or foliage?

The California Department of Agriculture reports many calls from people concerned about a skin rash or an uncomfortable itch after working in thier gardens.

Such callers sometimes blame their discomfort on a pesticide, when many common plants, including flowers and ornamentals, can cause dermatitis.

According to Dr. Robert Adams, dermatologist at the Palo Alto Medical Clinic, and Jack Washkuhn, industrial hygienist with the San Mateo County Department of Public Health, authors of "Contact Dermatitis," even that beautiful bunch of chrysanthemums or that cluster of Shasta daisies may produce dermatitis under certain conditions.

Usually chrysanthemum dermatitis appears in the late fall and early winter during the blooming season, they say. Since the blooms emit a pollen, the eyelids may be the first area of the body affected. This may suggest an allergic sensitivity to chrysanthemums.

Philodendron is widely used for interior decorating and patio planting. Several species of this plant may cause dermatitis, especailly of the hands and arm. Exposure takes place when the person washes or plucks the leaves.

Dieffenbachia, or "deaf and dumb plant," is a houseplant closely related to philodendron. It may also cause a skin rash.

Oleander may cause dermatitis if crushed leaves come into contact with the skin of persons sensitized by previous exposures.

There are many varieties of primroses, any of which may cause dermatitis on some people. "Lily rash" is a frequent type of skin eruption, often involving the face, hands and forearms. Those affected are usually engaged in cutting, bunching or packing daffodil and narcissus flowers.

Chinese rice paper plant, a popular ornamental, may cause severe dermatitis. The toxic substance is present in a heavy yellow pollen produced by the plant in fall and winter months.

Less commonly, dermatitis may be produced by dichondra, magnolia, century plant, tea roses, poinsettias and Australian silk oak trees.

"Bulb fingers" may be produced by handling tulips or narcissus. It may be caused by specific allergens contained in the oleoresins of the bulbs, or by needle-like calcium oxalate monohydrate crystals in the bulbs which penetrate the skin when the bulbs are handled.

Early symptoms of bulb fingers includes tingling and tenderness of the fingertips. Redness soon develops and, with repeated exposrue, the fingertips may become dry, scaly and fissured.

A similar type of skin eruption may be produced by hyacinth bulbs or by handling onions and garlic. Even common garden vegetables like carrots, parsley, parsnips and celery may cause allergies in some individuals.

Not everyone is subject to dermatitis from these sources, but, says Dr. Adams and Waskhuhu, a skin rash is as likely to be caused by such plants as by a chemical carelessly handled.

How To Care For Your Living Christmas Tree Indoors

More Marinites than ever before will be using living Christmas trees this holiday season, aware that living trees enhance the quality of the environment.

Trees provide vital oxygen for humans, plus trap and filter dust and dirt particles from the air we breathe. They are nature's own air conditioners, providing shade and offering temperature control on hot summer days. They also reduce sound and city noises which fray one's nerves!

TO INSURE a long life for a living Christmas tree — and that's an important reason for selecting a growing tree in preference to a cut one — it should receive air, light, moisture and a comfortable temperature. Indoors, the requirements of a living Christmas tree are much like those of a foliage house plant.

The air and temperature conditions inside the average home during the winter are suitable for a living Christmas tree. It should be located in a well-lighted room — as opposed to being placed in a dark location, where drapes are drawn.

While it may be possible to enjoy the tree indoors for 10 to 14 days, the California Assn. of Nurserymen recommends one week's time — especially if the home is kept warm. Avoid placing the tree close to a fireplace or a heat outlet, as excess warmth can damage a live tree as easily as a cut tree.

IN CARING for the tree indoors, keep the roots of the tree moist. If the tree is growing in a container, this simplifies watering; if the root ball is contained in burlap, set this in a can or tub which will catch the drainage — and saturate the root ball with water. A heavy plastic covering will protect carpeting or floor.

It isn't necessary to keep the tree standing in water, but watch that the plant doesn't dry out between waterings.

Living Christmas trees can be decorated with ornaments and lights — miniatures are recommended. Many Californians decorate a container-grown tree and display it at the entrance or on the patio to add a festive holiday spirit to the outdoor living area or entryway.

AFTER DEC. 25, and after the decorations have been removed, take the tree outdoors and hose off its foliage with a fine mist spray. This will be helpful in the transition from indoors and will aid the tree in its efforts to provide beauty and enjoyment for its owners — as well as enhancing the quality of the environment.

Remember: all these benefits accrue, whether the living Christmas tree is planted in the landscape or grown in a container to serve as an accessory to decorate the garden.

Garden Page

THE ICELAND POPPY is just one of the annuals that can be planted in December in Marin to get the jump on spring. There are newer hybrids in intense shades and a wide color range — oranges, reds, yellows, pinks, whites. Give them good drainage. And grow them as borders, in beds, or in window boxes or other containers.

Three More Plant Books By Kramer

San Rafael's Jack Kramer, who has established himself as this country's leading author of gardening books, has three new ones to bid for the green thumb trade this Christmas season.

They are:

"Garden Rooms and Greenhouses" (Harper and Row, $10), a guide to the design, construction, maintenance and stocking of these increasingly popular indoor gardens, written by a man whose own garden room is a showplace and which has been included among the many photographs in this book. There are also diagrams to aid in the planning and the building. And special material on plants best suited to greenhouses and garden rooms.

"Natural Dyes: Plants and Processes" (Scribner's, $9.95) is an illustrated manual on the plants that can be used for natural dyeing, how to collect them and how to use them. Blackberry shoots, fennel, yellow lichen, rhododendron leaves, red onion skins, eucalyptus bark and flowering plum leaves are typical ingredients from his dye recipes. The processes, Kramer promises, have been tested by himself and proven. It deals with a currently popular craft riding the do-it-for-yourself wave.

"Ferns and Palms for Interior Decoration" (Scribner's, $6.95) takes up two foliage plants that graced Victorian homes and are now making a strong comeback as freshening touches in indoor decor. Kramer takes up all the many species of ferns and palms, their specific growing requirements, and the special uses to which they are adapted. Again, there are lots of illustrations.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENER OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Perennials you can plant this month include Shasta Daisies, Day Lilies, Columbine, Phlox and Lily-of-the Valley. Mix in plenty of organic material with the soil. The plants will be strongly established when it is time to produce new growth in the spring.

✓ Supplies are dwindling, so hurry to plant Daffodils, Tulips, Hyacinths and other spring-blooming bulbs. Ranunculus can be planted from now into January for a succession of bloom in the spring garden.

✓ Remember that rains can't reach plants growing next to the house, under wide overhangs. Don't let the plants dry out.

✓ Cut back Dahlia stalks to within six inches of the ground and dig tubers after foliage turns yellow or is blackened by frost. Wash off dirt from tubers and place them in the sun to dry. Then, apply a recommended all-purpose garden dust. Store in a cool place until planting-time in spring.

✓ Heather, Azaleas and Camellias head the list of blooming shrubs available in nurseries this month.

✓ Don't overlook plants and garden tools in your Christmas shopping.

A Little Color And Pattern Can Give A Room That Lift

By CAROLYN MURRAY

If there's one dog of a room in your house one you find hard to resolve from a decorating point of view — try winging your way to a solution through the use of color and pattern.

Sometimes a single strong theme such as a bold plaid or an over-scaled flower motif can give that hopeless area a sense of continuity.

The kitchen shown today is one hard-to-believe rehabilitation job.

The plaster on the ceilings and walls was a shambles. Existing cabinetry was painted an old ivory color that showed every greasy fingerprint. The floor was covered in a 1930 linoleum, and cooking equipment was adequate but not enhanced in any way by the decorative materials.

Handyman's Pages

IN CAME designer Betty Willis, to salvage the situation.

She has a special talent with paint and color so she decided to create a warm kitchen, the kind we think of when we say family kitchen. She found reproductions of American Colonial furniture by Pennsylvania House and ordered the tables and chairs, plus a mobile service cart, in a warm red finish.

Then she went looking for a way to disguise the ugly ceilings and walls without having to replaster.

THE ANSWER was a vinyl-coated wall covering from C. W. Stockwell. It has a delightful strawberry motif, trailing over a simple trellis.

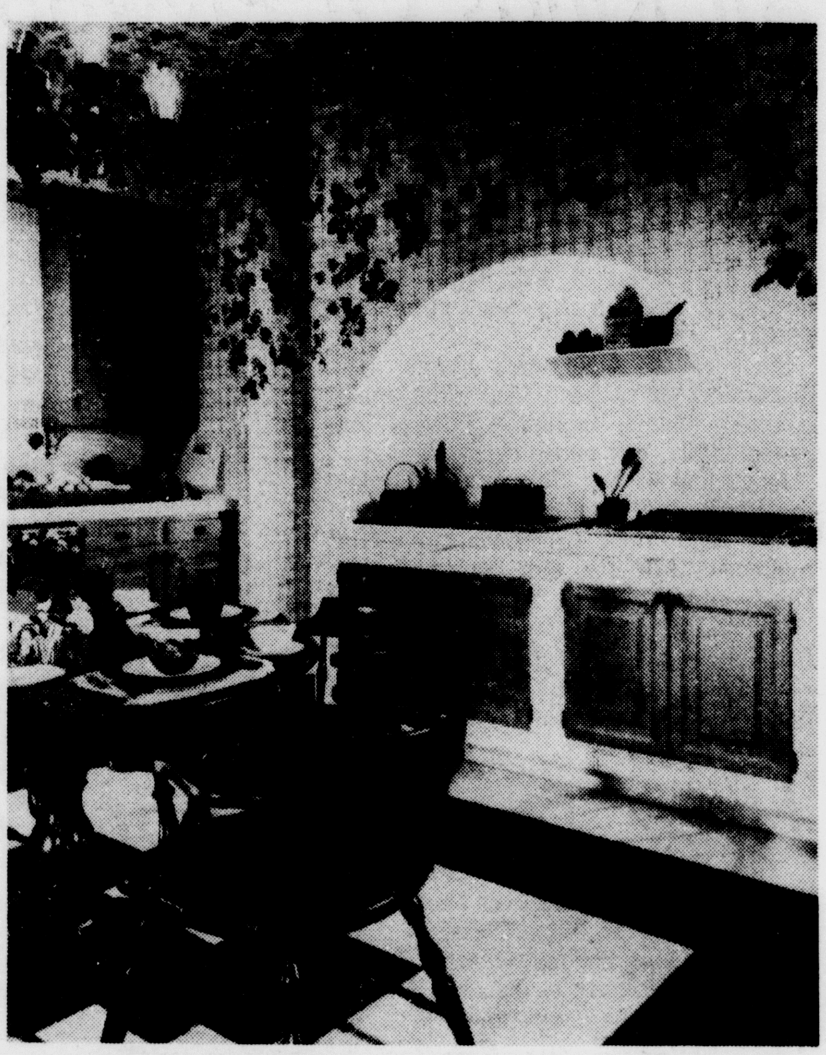
Instead of merely dabbling with small areas of paper, she covered the entire ceiling, then trailed the strawberry vine halfway down the wall area. The lower section is covered with the plain trellis pattern minus the strawberries.

Another quick piece of trickery was the plywood arch she asked the carpenter to make. This conceals all that dead space above the cook top and gives a little more character to the whole room. One small shelf holds decorative and useful items.

CABINETS throughout the kitchen wer painted a leaf green. On one door to a storage pantry she had the owner hand-paint little strawberries and vines, then add hand-lettered mottoes.

The result is warm and personal — a happy blend of family and professional touches.

The flooring is a simple geometric idea and uses wood tiles stained to two shades: off-white and green. These are KolorWood from Edward Fields. An effective perk-up for a drab workroom.



AN UGLY DUCKLING kitchen was transformed by designer Betty Willis into this warm and comfortable room, through the imaginative use of color and pattern.

'Making Do' In The Manner Of The American Pioneer

Arthur M. Hill, a now retired shop teacher, is a throwback to the old pioneer days — a self-sufficient man.

All his life he has made with his own hands, simply but sturdily, the things which he and his family needed. He anticipated today's do-it-yourself, natural living craze by several decades.

In "Making Do," $3.95 softcover, published jointly by Ballantine Books and San Francisco Book Co., Hill shares a good many of his designs and projects, with diagrams, drawings and detailed directions.

For the home, there is the framing itself, the fireplace, fireplace tools, simple furniture, homemade bread mixer (with bread recipe), hand-powered washing machine, potter's wheel, drinking glasses, etc. For the garden, there are a wheelbarrow, a rake, a push plow, a hotbed, a post hole digger, and some advice on gardening itself. For the yard, there's a child's swing and slide, a dollhouse, a cement mixer. For the shop, saws, vise, lathe, mallet, die holder, sanding disc, forge, hinges, directions on bending wrought iron, working sheet metal and much, much else.

Hill obviously is a man who, like our more isolated and self-reliant forefathers, stresses utility and function over appearance, although there is no reason why his projects cannot be finished for aesthetic effect. In fact, their rude simplicity has a certain beauty of its own.

One can learn from Arthur M. Hill not only how to build a bed or to fit a pipe, but also something of a philosophy of life that obviously is rich with dignity and satisfaction.

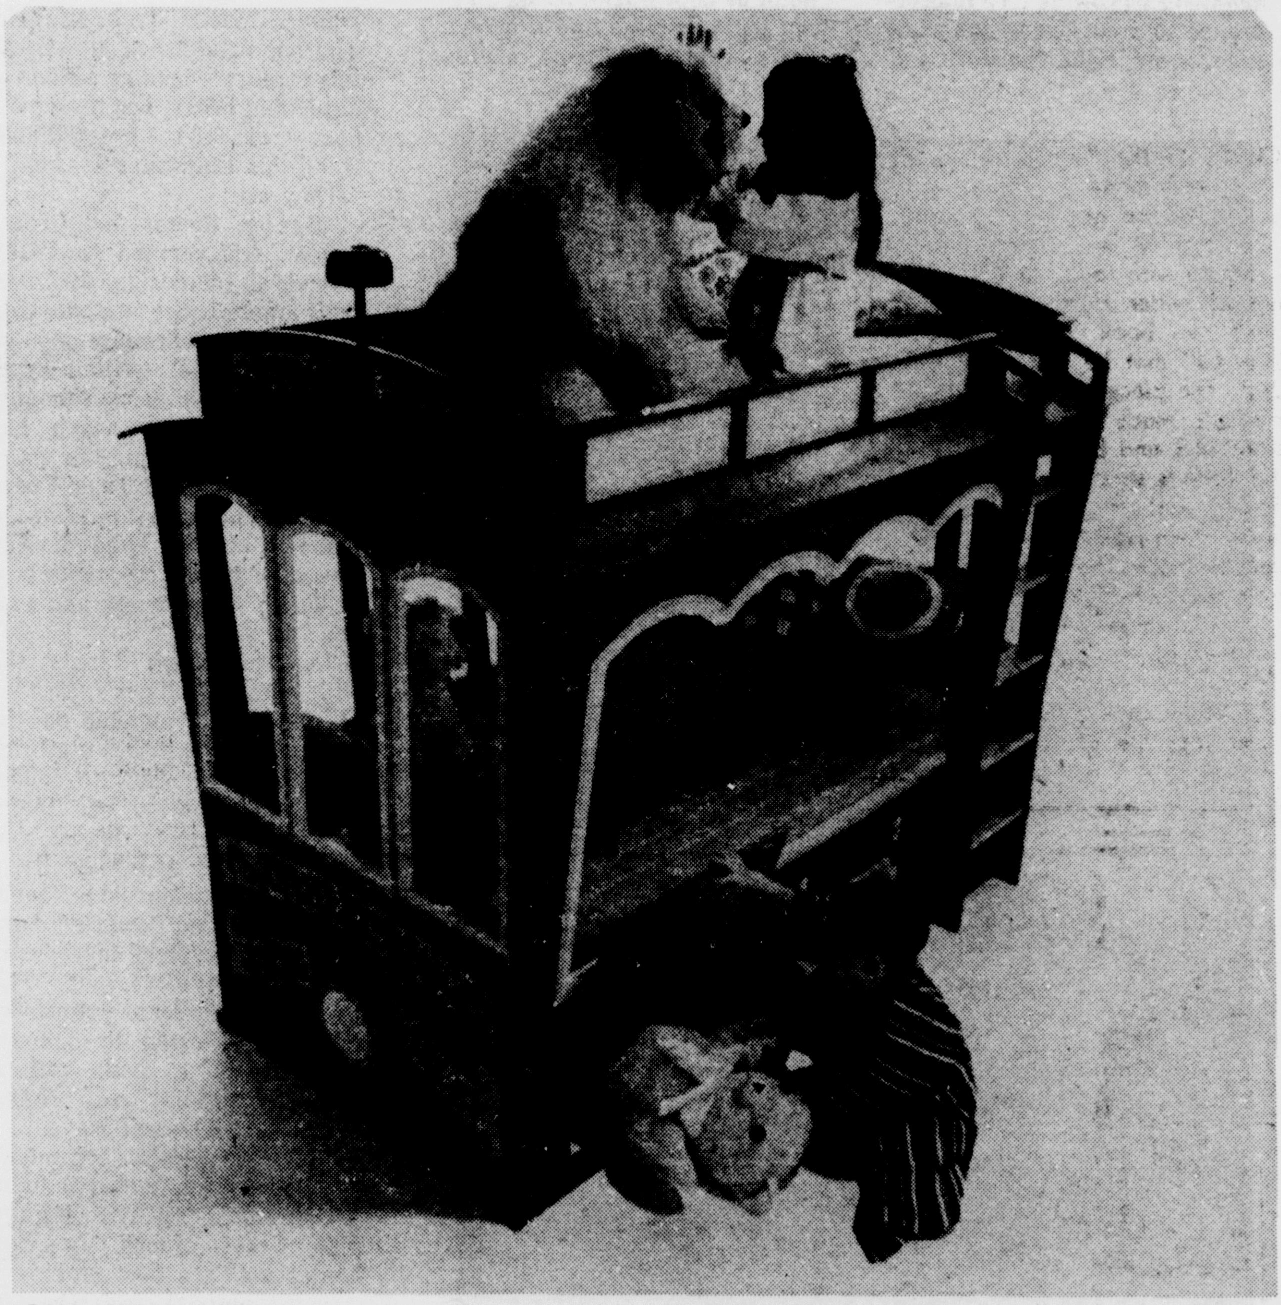
ALL ABOARD FOR SLUMBERLAND



SAN FRANCISCO'S world famous cable cars provide the model for this six-foot-high, seven-foot-long bunk bed, accommodating standard 39-by-75-inch mattresses. Built of durable fir plywood, both bunks are safely enclosed. There's a ladder for easy ascent to the top bunk. And large doors on the skirt of the bed conceal bedding and store toys. Send $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 92409, and ask for Cable Car Bunk Bed Pattern 507. From those directions you can easily construct a lightweight bed that disassembles, for storing or moving, into eight individual pieces.

All Kinds Of Plywood Are Made From The Real Thing

By ANDY LANG

The varieties of plywood are almost endless, but none is a synthetic product, as some persons are inclined to think.

Webster puts it this way:

"A structural material consisting of wood glued or cemented together with the grains of adjacent layers arranged at right angles or at a wide angle."

The key word there is "wood." But it would take several pages of any dictionary to delve into the many types, classes and grades of plywood.

THE MOST common kind of plywood is Douglas fir, which is what you get when you walk into a lumber yard and buy a piece of four by eight plywood without giving any specifications. It is strong, has a wide range of applications and is the least expensive.

When you want plywood for a special purpose, tell the dealer what the purpose is. This is especially important if you intend to use the plywood outdoors where it will be continually exposed to the elements. In that case, you will need exterior plywood, which has completely waterproof glue between the veneers.

Interior plywood is highly moisture resistant but the bond is not 100 per cent waterproof. Also, the veneers used in the inner plys may be of lower grade than those in the exterior type. But interior plywood may be used anywhere it will not be subject to continuing moisture conditions or extreme humidity.

SHEETS OF plywood have all kinds of markings on them. Here is what a few of them mean:

A-A — For applications where both sides of the plywood will be on view.

A-B — For applications similar to A-A but where the appearance of one side is less important yet two smooth solid surfaces are necessary.

A-C or A-D — Where the appearance of only one side is important.

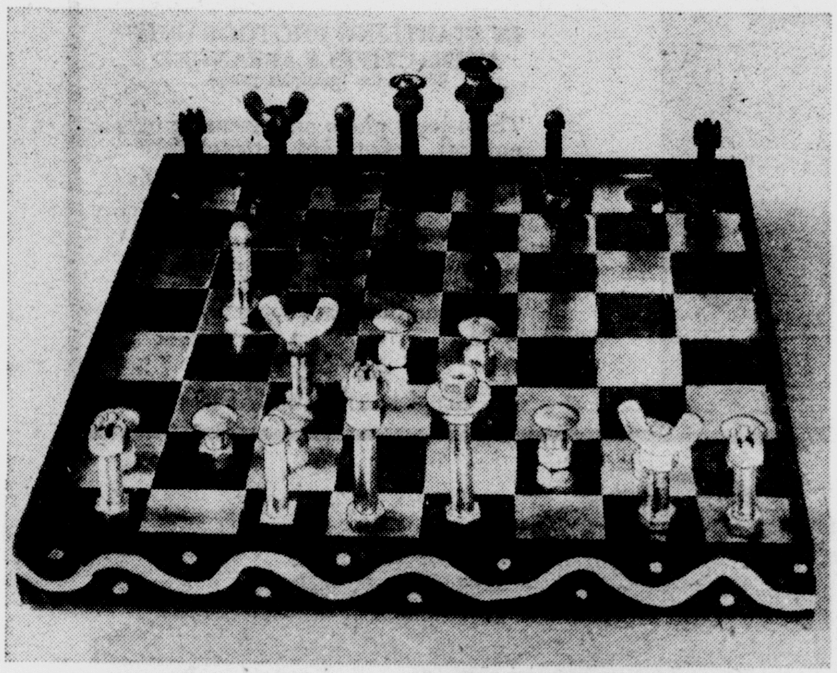
B-B — Has solid surfaces but generally used where the plywood will be painted rather than given a clear finish.

B-C or B-D — For use as utility panels.

Plywood comes in both softwood and hardwood, the softwood — pine, Douglas Fir, Spruce, poplar, etc. — being the big seller. Hardwood-faced plywood is more expensive generally, but is distinguished for the beauty of its grain and color. It has four common grades, one to four, the lower the number the higher the over-all appearance and quality.

Many plywood sheets have various kinds of special finishes, including hardboard surfaces, striations, grooves and plastic coats. It is safe to say that there is a plywood for every possible use.

A GAME OF NUTS AND BOLTS



CHESS IS the "in" game these days, and many a head-of-the-house will be getting a set for Christmas. If the son or a friend is handy with tools, here is one out of Better Homes and Garden's new book "Gifts to Make Yourself" that he can make for dad. The pieces, pawn to king, are all made from hardware store nuts and bolts, by threading various shapes together and adding washers and fancy crown bolts, then securing with glue and painted. The board is cut from half-inch-thick plywood into a 16-inch square, then marked with two colors of vinyl, cloth or metallic tape cut into two-inch squares. A clear plastic or glass cover tops the board.
